Sir,—At the last open show in Cowdenbeath, the competition for the above cup was particularly keen, almost resulting in a dead heat, in fact. When I counted the points, I made Mr. Robert Heggie to be the winner by a bare majority over Mr. John Sykes. The latter gentleman (in quite a friendly way) challenged, as he thought he should have won, so I got them both together, and we went over the classes again, with the same result. Mr. Sykes congratulated Mr. Heggie on his win, and there I thought the matter had ended. Later, however, our new sec. has been drawn over the coals by certain members of the Scottish British Bird and Mule Club, who maintain that Mr. Sykes did win the cup, and that Mr. Heggie had got more than justice. I give here in detail the classes and points scored by both exhibitors, which I hope will convince all interested of the truth of my statements.—Mr Heggie's points. Class 22, 1st, 3rd, 6th, 11 points; 23, 1st, 6; 24, 1st, 5th, 8; 25, 1st, 3rd, 4th, 12; 26, 2nd, 3rd, 5th, 11; 27, 2nd, 4th, 6th, 9; 28, 1st, 5th, 8; 30, 1st, 6; 61, 1st, 6; total 77 points. Mr Sykes' points: Class 26, 2nd, 5 points; 67, 2nd, 3rd, 9; 69, 1st, 3rd, 10; 74, 2nd, 5; 75, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 15; 77, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 15; 78, 2nd, 5; 80, 1st, 6; 84, 1st, 6; total, 76 points.

It should be stated, in fairness to all, that a mistake occurred in the marked catalogue in class 27, but the foregoing figures are taken from the judging slips, and the entry books, and can be vouched for by any of our society officials as absolutely correct.—J. R. Reid, late asst. sec., Cowdenbeath C.B.S.

Laid 15 Eggs—then Died!

Sir,—A Ribbon Finch of mine laid 15 eggs in one clutch and is dead. Has any of your readers any experience with them in breeding? If any of them could enlighten me as to the cause of this strange happening, I should be pleased. The eggs were laid in fifteen days.

H. E. LALLEN, JUNR.

The Waxwing Crowd in the Isle of Man.

Sir,—In CAGE BIRDS of March 14 I see "Tom Dipper" writes of seeing "a huge flock of Waxwings" in the Isle of Man. Is there any one on the Isle of Man or the next isle to it who has seen a crowd of Waxwings similar to a great flock of Starlings? Surely a sight in a lifetime, and yet he has not given your readers the benefit of his name. For over twenty years there have been only two isolated incidents of Waxwings on the island so far as I have known. Perhaps "Tom Dipper" would let readers of CAGE BIRDS know if he has noticed their return from Scotland?

H. GALE.

The Clashing of Show Dates in Scotland.

Sir,—Mr. Foster, secretary of Buckhaven C.B.S., says he is sorry that he has offended me and my committee. He and his society could soon find a remedy for that sorrow, by choosing a date different to ours, or any other show in Fife. There is nobody to blame but themselves, seeing that I made them aware of what they were doing. He says I have misrepresented the case altogether. I have misrepresented nothing. Did I not, with all courtesy, make you, Mr. F., aware that our date was the last Saturday of October, whether it be the 25th or the 31st, just as all dates vary, year in, year out? What do you mean by Buckhaven being lenient with dates? Buckhaven has had quite a variety of dates, and it is not the case that they have been clashed with, but the other way about. As to being first in the field—which field? Kirkcaldy had a society and show before you were born. Nobody has ever disputed that the last Saturday of October was Dysart's date for a long time. But we did not clash or try to chase Dysart from their date, as Buckhaven is doing now. On the contrary, Dysart Society and Kirkcaldy have never quarrelled about dates or anything else. Dysart left that date quite voluntarily, and Kirkcaldy stepped into it, as we considered it better than the one we previously held. These are facts which none can contradict. Mr. Foster thinks it would be a proper thing for Dysart to fight Kirkcaldy for a date which they left quite voluntarily. That would have meant three shows (Dysart, Kirkcaldy, and Buckhaven) all on the same day, and all within seven miles, which would have been disastrous to all of us. I say that Kirkcaldy is on the main line. I repeat that Buckhaven is on a branch line. Even although it is only a question of a few miles, it is not the mileage that is the drawback, it is the delay that matters. Thornton is certainly on the main line, but Thornton is not Buckhaven. Mr. Foster says they intend keeping their date. That is entirely their own responsibility. I know Kirkcaldy will keep the date they have a right to claim. Re my advice, I have no time to address you any more than my duty calls me to, as secretary.

THOMAS ARNOTT.

Helping the Novice.

Sir,—In the first place M. Rainford has not answered my question. I asked "How can secretaries of local societies help the novice?" If M. R. means he (the secretary) has to approve of a bird for a man he does not know, and from a distance, he, in my opinion, has got "something on." He must not forget what suits one man does not suit another. Then again, the secretary may be a far more raw novice than M. R.; then the fat will be in the fire, and no mistake! How on earth can I go and see M. R. when I don't know his address, and if he knew my name it would make him none the better; at present I want no free advertisements, and am content to sign.

JOHN O'GAUNT.

Prize Money at Bristol C.B.S. Show.

Sir,—I notice in last week's CAGE BIRDS a letter from Mr. H. W. Carrier asking other exhibitors at Bristol C.B.S. Show if prize money has been paid. I was a winner, but have not yet received any prize money, although I have written the secretary on two different occasions, with no reply.

H. J. DAVIS

Sir,—In answer to Mr. Carrier's letter in your paper of last week, Mr. Carrier was only awarded the 4s. at our show held in November last. I am enclosing a catalogue for you to see. Class 26, No. 1.

R. L. POOL, HON. SEC.

The Clashing of Kelty and Markinch Shows.

Sir,—Re the clashing of Kelty and Markinch Show, as mentioned by "Well Wisher" in last week's CAGE BIRDS, it is not the case as Kelty Show is on 14th Nov., and Markinch, as far as I know, on the 7th Nov.

A. DICKSON, SEC.

Misnomers and Misrepresentations.

Sir,—These are a couple of spinsters, who I fear only too frequently appear in bird advertisements. "Misses," who, like militant suffragettes, should be seen and heard no more. Hill Tits, as they should be called, otherwise Liothrix, are euphonised as "glorious singing Nightingales." Innocent bird fanciers think that such a thing, with a cage included, for something like 8s. 6d., is worth having; and only too often the bird is not even a male "Japanese Nightingale" or "Pekin Robin," and is worth one shilling, or less! Then again, the untutored mind of the public, untutored, I mean, in the matter of birds, naturally connects a Grey Parrot with talking; so, instead of advertising Rose-breasted Cockatoos, as they really are—birds which are most poverty-stricken in enunciating words—some dealers call them "Australian Grey Parrots," knowing full well that such a name will catch on. Then too, all that balderdash and nonsense of "Skylarks as big as Thrushes," and the rest of it! Why not say Pheasants whilst they are about it? It would be just as true.

Again, there are individuals who have been dealers in only the commonest birds, and who advertise and puff themselves up as having won hundreds, even thousands, of prizes; and call themselves "expert judges." Some sellers of birds sell the public also; if the latter really believe that certain "hand-reared" British birds can be continuously advertised; and I presume sold, for two shillings. The individual who sells them must have been uncommonly energetic in the rearing of this numerous family, and uncommonly generous after all that trouble in parting with the birds for 2s. apiece. Either a great many were sold, or a great pecuniary loss in advertising must have accrued! Another trade trick is the advertising of birds which have never arrived on the premises, and probably never will! I have known Ducks, Swans, etc., advertised as "all on water," when I have also known that the water, which was most filthy, was contained in a shallow depression of cement measuring at the most about five feet square. All this kind of thing reacts hardly on honest dealers who have good birds, and who shrink from having intercourse with those two disreputable females—Miss Nomer and Miss Representation!

AN EXPERIENCED AVICULTURIST.

"A Wail from Aintree."

Sir,—As a member of the committee of the Aintree and Fazakerley Society, I claim the indulgence of the readers of your esteemed paper in answer to your correspondent, Mr. G. A. Skilling. I and a very big majority of the members consider Mr. Anderson, one of the ablest secretaries in this district, and one who has done all that lay in his power to make the society a success. Myself a bird man, I certainly consider these fanciers are to blame for the society having to wind up. I should have thought Mr. Skilling would be the last to write to the Fancy Press condemning the secretary. I should like to ask Mr. Skilling why he has not given up the silver cup (the property of the club) after application by the secretary, by order of the committee. Has Mr. Skilling ever been known to give anything to the above society? He has promised medals galore. Mr. Anderson I know is at a big loss over this club, and he is not the only secretary who has had this kind of sportsman to contend with in this district. The club now owes to different tradesmen, close on £5, and that money has to be found. Perhaps, as Mr. G. A. Skilling is a committeeman, he will have the pleasure of finding his share. Talking won't pay it. The Fur, Feather, and Cavie members of the club have been very generous, according to the club's books, but Mr. Skilling has never given a penny piece of his prize money towards the club funds. Mr. Skilling says that the Aintree Society owes him seven pence. We will make a collection at the next meeting for him, if he will only turn up and return the club's property, namely, the silver cup. We have an offer for it, and the money can go towards clearing off the debts of the club. It will make his share less, when payment is enforced in another place, and promote the harmony he so desires. As this letter represents the views of two-thirds of the members of the Aintree Society it is desired that it also should go through your valuable paper in justice to the loyal members of the society.

YORKSHIREMAN.

YORKSHIRE C.C.

Nomination of officers, 1914-15. All nominations must be sent to the Sec. on or before March 31. Copies of nomination papers will be found in the Club's Handbook. Please fill in and send on at once.—J. Greaves, 279, Hollings rd., Bradford.

HALIFAX C.B.S.

Meeting Mar. 19, headquarters, Trafalgar Inn, King Cross, Halifax. Mr. E. Stobart presided over a splendid attendance. All officers appointed. The Soc. has now been accepted as member of the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S. decided to hold open show under Yorkshire Union rules, the date not yet decided upon. Fanciers desirous of being Union members can now join and participate in the benefits. A portion of the syllabus was gone through, but left over for the sub-committee to draw up and bring before the members at the next general meeting, April 2, 8. Also decided to have a supper on April 16, 7.30, headquarters. Fanciers or friends interested kindly give in name early. Several new members enrolled.—A. Sutcliffe, Sec., 46, Hammond Street, Hopwood Lane, Halifax.

CLYDEBANK C.B.C.

Meeting Mar. 9, 81, Kilbowie Road. Mr. McGown presided over a good attendance. Sec. read letters received from the gentlemen nominated to judge our annual show, and after discussion it was agreed to engage the following:—Can. Sec., Mr. A. H. McLean, Baltoch; Brit. Sec., Mr. J. McWatt, Bonny Bridge. Sec. then disposed of 200 closed rings, as the members mean to give them a trial this year. This being all the business, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.—Wm. Kane, Sec.

LEICESTER C.B.S.

Meeting, Mar. 18, Headquarters, Mr. Heighton, chair. Presentation of the pair of Canaries provided by the subscribing members took place. Mr. Heighton said a few suitable words in handing them to Mr. Hardy, who in reply said that although the birds came as a great surprise to him, he received them gratefully, and would do his utmost to be a useful member of the society. There was a small balance in hand from the fund, and it was decided to spend it in seed. Decided that we have a moss-gathering expedition, Mar. 28. Train, L. and N.W. to Glen-Parva, 1.40, cycles meet Old Horse Hotel 1.45. Table show:—GOLD., F.M.: 1, Crane; 2, Yates. BULLF.: 1, West; 2, 3, Heighton. BRAMBLEF., ETC.: 1, 3, Brooks; 2, Ross; vhc, West; hc, Heighton. LINNET: 1, Hester; 2, Heighton; 3, Brooks. A.V. NOR. CK.: 1, Brooks; 2, 3, Cook. HEN: 1, Brooks. Vote of thanks to the judges concluded the business.—J. Hardbattle.

EAST HAM C.B.S.

Whist drive, Warren's Social and Recreation Club, Mar. 18. The attendance did not come up to expectations, only about 100 people attending. Mrs. Rougier obtained the first prize ladies, which was a Canary and cage, with 178 points. Miss Fisher, 2nd prize of Canary and cage, 175; and Mrs. Lammas 3rd prize, 169 points. Mrs. Amor, highest interval, 97 points; and 1st prize gent.'s, 176; and Mr. Earle, with 174 points, obtained 2nd prize, both prizes being lovely Canaries and cages; 3rd prize, Mr. Warren; highest interval, Mrs. Adams (played as gent.). The prizes were presented by vice-pres. Mr. Fox, who expressed his pleasure in presenting these prizes, and hoped he would have the pleasure of seeing the winners become fanciers and members of the East Ham C.B.S. Mr. W. Tarring acted as M.C.—F. Onslow, Sec.

BURNLEY O.S.

Meeting Mar. 4, Star Inn, Church Street, Burnley. Mr. T. Chadwick presiding over a good turnout of members. Besides the usual business, there was election of sub-committee for the ensuing year:—Messrs. Baker, Callow, West, Hargreaves, and Spencer. Following classes were fixed for F.F. show, June 27:—Nor. Champ.; Cl. or Invis. Tkd. Yell. (2); Buff Varieg. Yelt.; Buff Nor. Nov.; Cl. or Invis. Tkd. Yell.; Buff Tkd. Variegated. Yell.; Buff Yorks Champ; Clear Tkd. Variegated. Yell.; Buffs Yorks Nov.; Cl. Tkd. Variegated. Yell.; Buffs; A.O.V. Can., Mules and Hyb.; Brit. Hardbills; Softbills. Next meeting April 1. Our host, Mr. T. Edwards, has kindly promised to give us a lecture on pairing up and rearing of young ones. This should be of great interest to all. Fanciers are cordially invited to join this rising society. Novices specially invited. Subs. 1s. quarter.—G. Whittaker, Hon. Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting March 9, Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, Mr. W. A. Shepherd chair, and 37 members present. Mr. R. Jenks elected member. The Hon. Sec. presented balance sheet for pair show, and also reported decision of Council regarding Mrs. G. E. Weston's claim to Mayfair cup. Resolved to abandon the next meeting, which falls on Easter Monday. Our generous "anonymous" donor again presented a very nice cake, beautifully iced and ornamented, for competition amongst members for estimating the number of members and visitors present at meeting. The count was taken at 9.15. Messrs. Chard, Lye and Sayer had the lucky number, 37, and rather than disappoint their expectant families, they agreed to divide into thirds. Mr. F. J. Martin then gave his lecture on "Canary Breeding," with special reference to Norwich Plainheads, and dealt very fully from a novice's start in the Fancy, illustrating how easy it is by injudicious pairing to have many disappointments. He also gave results within his own experience of double buffing, and the introduction of cinnamon blood. In the discussion which followed, many valuable hints were gained by members as to feeding both the old and young birds, and how to treat them for various ailments. Members all agreed that they had thoroughly enjoyed the very interesting and instructive lecture, and heartily thanked Mr. Martin for his kind attendance. Vote of thanks to chairman closed the meeting.—F. Thynne, Assist. Hon. Sec.

AVICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Those who are interested in British and foreign birds in freedom and captivity are invited to send in their names, with references, to be proposed as members of this society, whose monthly magazine has been published since 1894, with articles by all the best known and leading aviculturists, beautiful coloured plates and black and white illustrations, portraying birds of many species. Dr. Butler, the Marquis of Tavistock, Mr. St. Quintin, Mr. A. Trevor-Battye, Miss R. Alderson, Mr. Teschemaker, Mr. Seth-Smith, and others are constant contributors. Nearly 120 members, including aviculturists in the United States, Australia, and Africa, etc. Editor, Hubert D. Astley, Esq., Brinsop Court, Hereford, to whom communications should be addressed.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

LOANHEAD C.B.S.

Meeting, Mason's Arms, Mar. 21, Mr. A. Jardine presided over a good attendance. Members present booked their hens, and absent members were allowed to the end of month. Election of judges resulted in the secretary being left with the names of very prominent fanciers, whose names will be published on accepting. Among correspondence, the question of closed rings led to a great deal of discussion, the finding of the meeting being to leave it an open question. Mr. James Johnstone was admitted a member. Anyone wishing to join can do so before the end of the month. A hearty vote of thanks to the chair brought the meeting to a close.—W. B. Smart, Sec., 13, High-st.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Committee meeting, Mar. 19. Mr. M. C. Potts (chair. Classification for open show was considered. Committee's recommendations will be brought forward at next general meeting, April 2. As this is important, will everyone who has the interests of the society at heart make an effort to attend? There will also be a discussion on breeding; novices please note. Everyone welcome, members or not. Mr. Tindale outlined a scheme for N.F. show, July 4, whereby we could ask for the patronage of the Northern specialist societies. More particulars later. Subs. now due.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

CODNOR PK. & EASTWOOD C.B.S

General meeting Mar. 21, Portland Arms, Codnor Park, when a good number attended, the business being selection of judges and other items for next feather shows. Two new members proposed, and a pleasant evening was spent. Next meeting April 25, Three Tuns, Eastwood.—Smith and Lees, Joint Secs.

SHETTLESTON C.B.C.

Meeting Mar. 11, Johnstou's Hall, Mr. Wood presiding over a good turnout. Mr. McClure (Shettleston) is presenting the club with a handsome silver cup, this making five cups to be competed for annually. Six members enrolled and four proposed for next meeting. Club is giving a handsome silver medal to the member who brings most new members. Next meeting April 8, when a lecture will be given on pairing and management in Canary breeding.—A. Berry, Sec.

BURNHOPE C.B.S.

Meeting Mar. 21, Colliery Inn, with a good turnout of members. Election of officers:—Chair, Mr. Wm. Rushton; treas., Mr. J. Dixon; committee, Messrs. Dawson, Bates, Mitchell, Barron, Davison, Burnip, Robson, Clark, Hogg. The following made members:—W. Elliott, C. Piper, J. Armin, F. Brown, A. Redhead, A. Dawson, J. Ridley, J. Mortimer. Decided to make subs. 1s. to join and 4s. 3d. per year. We are holding our annual open show on Oct. 24 and N.F. show July 4. Secs. please note to avoid clashing.—J. W. Robson, Sec.

MANCHESTER & N. COUNTIES O.S

Meeting Mar. 16, Deansgate Hotel. Chairman presided over a very large muster. Two new members elected. The following judges were elected for open show in Oct.: Messrs. J. Garner, C. A. House, W. Booth, J. Johnston, and C. Honlton. Decided to hold same at the Hulme Town Hall if not engaged for dates. Also decided not to conduct any of the society's business next meeting, April 6, but to devote this night solely to Mr. Cutmore's lantern lecture on "British Birds." Ladies are invited to this lecture, which is to be held in the St. Paul's Schoolroom, Bennett Street. Next item was a lecture on "Canary Breeding and Management," by Mr. Barker Clegg, a report of which I have forwarded to "Cage Birds" for publication, to appear in due course. The lecture was listened to with keen interest, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Clegg. This brought a very successful meeting to a close.—F. Hayward, Hon. Sec

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Meeting Oddfellows' Hall, Feb. 28. Business was nominating judges for the annual shows, and a few popular gentlemen have been put forward. One new member was admitted. Mr. J. C. Davidson has granted the association a valuable cup also medal, to be competed for annually for points; members to nominate four birds specials to count. Agreed to appoint Mr. Davidson hon. pres. Next meeting Mar. 28, when a large meeting is requested; very important business, confirming judges for first and annual shows.—Walter Clarkson.

NORTH LONDON C.B.A.

Brit. and For. show, Mar. 13, Library Hall, Church Street, Stoke Newington. Judge, Mr. J. Robson. Although entries totalled only 53, some really good specimens were included. Special thanks are due to Mr. E. Stephens, who made a splendid entry, although a few were damaged, being minus tail feathers. He hereby sacrificed points to the benefit of the assoc.—the true sporting spirit. I also offer my sincere thanks to the other exhibitors for their support.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

Meeting Mar. 4, Crown Hotel, Hill Street, Mr. Broadhurst chair. Messrs. Bayliss and Cawley elected members and three nominations received. Balance sheet held over for discussion until next meeting owing to pair show. Whilst Mr. G. Baker judged the exhibits, Mr. Weaver, chairman of the Wolverhampton Soc., gave an address on the Norwich P.C., telling us what to do and what not to do in pairing up if we wanted to obtain the right type of bird. A splendid gathering of over 40 members and friends heartily applauded Mr. Weaver's interesting and instructive lecture. Many of us who were absent have been told we missed one of the best addresses ever given at our meetings, and it is a pity a full report was not taken for the benefit of the Fancy. The sec., in sending me his notes, disposes of the pair show in the following few words: "It was a poor show, only 20 entries all told," and members can guess his feelings at such a feeble response after asking him to arrange the table show. Next meeting April 1, 8 p., in the large "Society Room." Mr. Jacquemin, the Roller judge, of Wolverhampton, will deliver a lecture on Rollers, and we heartily invite all fanciers to join us that evening. A gratuity of three guineas was voted to Mr. J. H. Jones, Hon. Sec., as an acknowledgment of his valued services during the past year.—J. H. de Maillet

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Annual general meeting Mar. 21, at the Market Tavern. Mr. H. W. Walsh presided over a good attendance of delegates. Minutes of previous meeting, of special sub-committee meeting, and last annual general meeting were confirmed. The result of the annual ballot was announced to the Council, the following officials being duly appointed for the ensuing year:—Pres., Mr. Wm. Ornise; vice-pres., Mr. J. Butter; trustees, Messrs. Towers and Brown; auditors, Messrs. Halliday and White. The Council then elected treas., Mr. F. Hammond being duly appointed to that position with a unanimous vote. Mr. Hammond, in response to the vote, heartily thanked the delegates for their renewed confidence. Balance sheet for the past year's work was presented to the Council, and showed a satisfactory increase, both in membership and finance. This also was unanimously adopted. The auditors, Messrs. Halliday and Armstrong, gave their report as to finding the Union books and accounts in perfect order. Bankfoot C.B.S. tendered their resignation owing to lack of support, and this was accepted with regret. Halifax C.B.S. made application for membership, which was granted unanimously. They also signified their intention of running an open show, and asked permission of the Council to have the same date and same judge as previously allotted to the Halifax Soc. before the split. The Pres. retired until this point was discussed, and after due consideration the majority of delegates favoured the idea of taking this question back to their respective societies and getting the opinion of their members in order that they can come to the next meeting fully prepared to settle it satisfactorily. A vote of thanks to retiring officers was passed with enthusiasm, and Mr. F. Armstrong, retiring auditor, who has held office in the Union for a good number of years, replied, as did Mr. H. W. Walsh, the retiring pres. An honorarium of £10 was unanimously granted to the sec. for his past year's work, and Mr. Hill, in reply, thanked them for the kind things which had been said about his work, which he hoped to improve during the ensuing year of office. A grant of £1 was also made towards defraying the expense attached to the annual prize distribution. The delegates travelling expenses were paid at this meeting; those of delegates who did not attend will be paid at next meeting. Will secretaries of all affiliated societies who have not already notified me of any change in representative delegates kindly send on the names and addresses of same at the earliest opportunity, so that they can be postcarded to attend the next Council meeting?—H. Hill, Sec.

GLASGOW (West End) C.B.C.

Meeting and table show of Brit. birds (hardbills), Mar. 13, Co-op. Hall, St. George's Cross, Mr. A. Hendry presiding over a good attendance. The services of the following well-known judges have been secured for the annual members' shows, Nov. 21, viz., Mr. J. F. Dewar, Edinburgh, and Mr. P. McQuisten, Ayr. Four new members enrolled, viz. Messrs. Fleming, W. McKenzie, Wm. Morrison, and J. Scott. Entries for table show were well up on last year, quality being exceptionally good. Mr. R. V. Raine judged, and gave full satisfaction. Many thanks are due to him for his kindness. Specials for show were given by Mr. G. G. Henderson. Mr. J. Campbell, and Mr. G. McClown. GOLDF. OR BULLF.: 1, 2, sp, Henderson; 3, Gillespie. LINNET: 1, sp, Henderson; 2, Allan; 3, Mitchell; 4, Gillespie. GREENF.: 1, Henderson; 2, 6, Allan; 3, Gillespie; 4, McGarry; 5, Campbell. SISKIN, ETC.: 1, Henderson. LESSER OR MEALY REDPOLL: 1, Allan; 2, Henderson; 3, sp, McGarry. CHAFF. OR BRAMBLEF.: 1, Henderson. HENS FOR HYB. BREEDING: 1, Henderson. Members please note next meeting and table show of Brit. and For Mules and Hybrids, Co-operative Hall, April 10, 8 p.m., when we hope to see a large turn-out.—W. S. Proudfoot, Sec. and Treas.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

Annual meeting Mar. 18, Mr. Crawhall presided. Following members elected: J. H. Hutchins, R. Thompson, W. Smith, W. Frost, H. O. Pyman. Sec. presented balance sheet, a credit balance of £3 4s 7d. being considered highly satisfactory. The thanks of the members were accorded to our pres. Mr. Crawhall, for his generosity in returning the value of championship trophy, which he won, to the club's fund. The following were the officials elected for the ensuing year:—Pres., T. C. Crawhall; vice-pres., W. J. Taylor, G. S. Ellwood, J. Curry, Dr. Duncan, O'Neal, Shepherd, T. B. Tomlinson, G. W. Cuthbertson; chairman, C. Cattell; vice chair, S. C. Dix; committee, Messrs. Hutler, Stewart, Tweedie, Potts, Wigglesworth, Hedley, Mirley, Smith, Witherley; auditor, W. Mather; hon. sec. and treas., R. Tindale. Decided that in future we hold our table shows in conjunction with Newcastle C.B.S. Will members using closed rings kindly place their orders for same with sec. as soon as possible? I should like to make again a strong appeal to fanciers interested in our variety, and residing within the four northern counties, to join our ranks. In the past year we have given in trophies and specials something like £3 more than our total income derived from members' subs., and with an increased membership we shall be able to still further increase the value of our specials. We especially appeal to the novice, as we give to this section (apart from the trophy, gold and silver medals, and other valuable specials), the right to compete for the challenge and Crawhall cups, the latter being won by a member of this section in the season just closed. Annual subs. 2s. 6d., any anyone desirous of becoming a member can do so by sending in name and address to the sec.—R. Tindale, 6, Gill Street, Benwell, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Meeting Mar. 9, Kelvedon Hall, Walham Green, Mr. George Harrison chair. It was pleasing to see such a good number of members present. Business was proceeded with very quickly, although there was some lively discussion over last year's affairs. Three members nominated for membership. Decided to open a cup fund, and a very good response was made to the appeal for subs., 32s. being quickly handed to treas., which shows the business spirit of those present. Everything appears to be going along in first-class style. A number of special prizes have been received for the coming shows. Subs. are now due, and members who have not paid will greatly help by remitting same as quickly as possible. Decided that Mr. J. E. Shepherd should judge the young bird and annual shows. Mr. Shepherd was then requested to proceed with his lecture on "Breeding and Rearing," which proved very interesting even to the oldest members. His preliminary remarks on how he was brought into the Fancy, the experiences of thirty years in the principal towns of England and Scotland, were most amusing and well received. Numerous questions were asked and ably replied to. Hearty vote of thanks closed a very pleasant evening.—H. F. Bowring, Hon Sec.

JARROW HEBBURN C.B.S.

Meeting and table show, Victoria Hotel, Mr. R. Sanderson judged. PAIR CLASSES: 1, vhc, he, Hutler; 2, c, Harrison; 3, Baxter; 4, Fullerton. BRIT.: 1, 2, Smith; 3, Walker; 4, James; vhc, he, Best; c, Douglass. After judging, meeting was held, when a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Sanderson. Decided to hold table show Mar. 31. Classes, Nor. ck., Yorks ck., Bord. ck., Brit. A.V.—W. Ayers, Sec.

FORFAR C.B.S.

Meeting Mar. 19. Unanimously agreed to alter our annual open show date from Nov. 14, as advertised, to Oct. 31. Our committee was informed that Perth were not running a show this season, so we thought it advisable to take their date, Oct. 31, as there are four shows on Nov. 14, two in the West of Scotland and two in Fife. Will other secs. please note to avoid clashing?—D. Kerr and J. Robertson, Joint Secs.

WALKLEY C.B.S.

Meeting Mar. 10, headquarters, Mr. T. Ridal chair. Sec. read balance sheet and gave a short retrospect of soc. We have five cups and a balance in the bank of £13 13s. 9d., the year's income being £36 15s. 3d. and expenses £30 8s. 3d., leaving a balance this year of £6 7s. after paying fixed prize money on two shows. In an egg-food making competition four competitors took part. Result: 1, Woolhouse; 2, Lawton; 3, Everard. The various methods employed proved very interesting. Mr. Woolhouse used one egg, four Osborne biscuits, and a mill, taking 2½ minutes; Mr. Lawton an egg press and four Osborne biscuits, time 1m. 50secs., his method being very clean and quick; Mr. Everard, using one egg and a slice of stale bread, made a very light mixture, but took five minutes. It proved very interesting to the small number present. Next meeting April 9. Lecture by Mr. P. Walsh on Brit. Two new members made.—C. Tomlinson, Sec.

HASTINGS & ST. LEONARDS C.B.S

On Mar. 18, at Royal Oak Hotel, there was a crowded attendance, nearly 60 being present, for the lecture by Mr. T. Wraight, of Tunbridge Wells. Subject, "My Thirty-five Years' Experience of Bird-Keeping." All sincerely regretted the absence of Mrs. Wraight through illness, and wished her a speedy recovery. Many others were prevented from attending through the same cause. The President (Rev. J. M. Paterson) was unable to occupy the chair, having two confirmation classes, and Mr. F. Slack kindly presided. Many thanks to Mr. F. Wraight for his splendid lecture, which was greatly enjoyed by all present, and resulted in four new members being enrolled. Among those present were Mesdames Frank Shaw, Kirk-Bullock, Greengrass, A. W. Swaffer, Ellis, Crofts, H. Morris, J. Stevens, Barrow, M. Wilson, A. M. Elliott, Misses Vale, Reeks, Hill, and Hon. Sec., Messrs. Ellis, W. Elliott, A. M. Elliott, Pennells, Godden, A. W. Swaffer, Veness, Douch, Cragg, H. Morris, M. Wilson, Stevens, Turner, Barham, J. Stoakes, etc. After the lecture, which everyone appreciated, many questions were asked, and then a musical programme was gone through. Warm votes of thanks were unanimously carried to the lecturer, vocalists, and chairman. The vocalists were:—Madame Elise Davenport, of the Berlin Conservatoire; Mrs. Swaffer, Miss Hill, Miss Reeks (violin), Mr. P. H. Goldberg, A.R.C.M., Mus.B. (piano), Mr. A. M. Elliott, and Master A. Johnson ('cello). Members please note that on April 15, 8.30, "Question Night" will be held. It is an experiment, and I hope to see a good attendance. Later, an informal musical evening and smoke amongst members only. No professionals will be invited. So musical members please practice and bring along your songs, music etc.—I. Kirk-Bullock, hon. sec.

W. STANLEY (Empire Workmen's Club) F.S.

Meeting Mar. 22, in Club Room, for election of officers and nomination of judges. The following were elected officers: Mr. R. Peart, chair; Mr. J. Smith re-elected treas.; Wm. Robinson, re-elected sec.; and the following nominated of judges:—Mr. Wm. Reed, Mr. J. Hands, Mr. J. Stanger, Mr. A. Brown, and Mr. J. Riseborough. Decided to keep our old date for our annual show, Nov. 21 and 22.—Wm. Robinson, Sec.

TREDEGAR C.B.S.

Annual meeting Mar. 19, Silver Grill, Tredegar, Mr. J. Griffiths chair. Sec. submitted annual report and balance sheet, which showed a cash balance of 17s. 3d., and was adopted. On recommendation of sec., night of meeting was changed from Thursday to Saturday to enable night workmen to attend. Messrs. Griffiths and Watkins introduced prize schemes for our young bird shows. After discussion, both schemes were adopted and decided that three young bird shows be held during season; that points gained with three highest birds at each show count for specials; that two cups be purchased one for each section. Members wishing to compete for same will be asked to contribute 2s. each towards cost. All birds competing for above competitions must be rung, and must be bred by exhibitor. Rings to be obtained through sec.—W. B. Watkins.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.A.

Meeting Mar. 17, headquarters, Reindeer Hotel, Rye Lane, Peckham. Mr. H. W. Tomsett chair, supported by Mr. F. Cole. Attendance was good. Meeting opened with a discussion on British birds. Several questions were asked and answered. On the table were a very nice Goldfinch and Siskin. The question of sexing was answered by Mr. Wyatt. The following questions were asked and answered:—The best time to leave off egg food for the young birds; temperature of bird room when breeding; should eggs always be removed until third is laid; best cure for asthma; how to increase size in the Nor.; how long may a nest of eggs be left uncovered in ordinary warm weather without harm to the unhatched. Vote of thanks passed to Mr. Tomsett for occupying the chair closed a very pleasant and interesting meeting. Next meeting April 7. Lecture by Mr. J. Hazell on "Rearing of Young Birds."—A. G. Cant, Hon. Sec.

EAST LOTHIAN C.B.S.

Third annual general meeting, Plough Inn, Haddington, Mar. 20, Mr. Geo. Scott presiding over a moderate attendance. Balance sheet was adopted, showing a credit balance of £8 7s., which was considered very satisfactory. Office-bearers elected: Geo. Scott, pres.; T. Paterson, vice; W. Fraser, treas.; J. Fairgrieve, 10, Hope Park, Haddington, sec. Decided to hold annual open show on the old date, Oct. 17. Also decided that three judges be appointed instead of two, so that judging would be over sooner. Several judges were put up, and the sec. instructed to write for terms. Classification to come up at next meeting, April 3.—J. Fairgrieve, Sec.

'PARROTS for pleasure and profit, 7d., by C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these Birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THERE is no more lovely Seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2½d. From agents (see list frequently published)

BUDGERIGAR breeders must not forget that the best hatching and rearing results are obtained by using my "Improved Secure" coconut breeding husks, which have withstood all competition for about 25 years. 4/6 dozen; smaller quantities, 5d. each: Harper, Husk Importer, Norton, Stourbridge. (1487)

BUDGERIGARS and Cockatiels are among the most popular foreign birds, and C. P. Arthur has had a lifetime's experience with them. His book, "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," will show you how to keep them, feed them for health, how to breed them, and how to teach them to talk. The price of this valuable handbook is only 6½d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

AVOID UNNECESSARY TROUBLE and EXPENSE

by rearing your birds on

Spratt's COD LIVER OIL CAGE BIRD FOOD.

There is every reason why you should use this Food in preference to the old-fashioned Egg and Biscuit preparation.

It is much more efficacious.
It is more easily prepared and keeps sweet much longer.
It is far less expensive.
It improves the size of birds fed upon it, assists them to feather quickly, and greatly increases their stamina.

For many years the most up-to-date Canary Breeders have regularly used Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Cage Bird Food, not only as a food for fledglings, but for a number of other purposes.

IT IS INVALUABLE (a) For feeding during the Moult.
(b) As a medium for giving Colour Food.
(c) For feather producing.
(d) For weakly birds requiring a Tonic.
(e) For Winter-feeding of Adult Birds.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the safe delivery of OUR CANARIES from you.

I should like also to say that I am very satisfied with it. I think that all lovers of Canaries should be in possession of a copy. The information it contains I consider to be most valuable and practical to all bird fanciers, as a guide and help in keeping their birds in a healthy condition. I am going in for Norwich Greens, and feel quite safe while I am acting according to the advice in the book, especially when I see the names of all the leading judges and fanciers in the country.

Thanking you, I beg to remain,

Yours faithfully,

ED. JONES.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.
Headlines or Footlines, 1/-, 1/6 2/-, 2/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bonafide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale is effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

BANANA.

This well-known fruit, now being strongly recommended by physicians as the healthful and nutritious food, has now, after years of good trials by the leading German fanciers, ended in good results of rearing strong, healthy, and vigorous birds. This banana is now baked into the form of a biscuit and ready ground for use by a scientific principle, and if mixed with our forms the most natural food for rearing young birds from the nest, or, if preferred, the banana biscuit meal can be mixed with hard-boiled egg.

SOFT MOULT

Special notice to all bird lovers. We are anxious that every fancier should know the value of our bird medicines. Ditchfield's Medicines have been used by most leading fanciers for over six years, and are supplied to the London Zoo. They are genuine remedies, which can be given with confidence, to all classes of cage birds. Fanciers, we want a trial. We guarantee to return you every penny paid if our medicines fail to give you satisfaction. Special offer: If you have any birds you are relying upon for the breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, try Ditchfield's Tonic Drops. We guarantee you a perfect cure. This medicine is without doubt the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing birds into breeding condition. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are an absolute cure for Not Singing, Soft Moult, Going Light, Egg Binding, Feather Plucking, and Inflammation of the Bowels. In 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For Bronchitis, Wheezing, and Hoarseness, get Ditchfield's Special Lung Tonic. It is the grandest Medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For cases of Constitutional Weakness and Debility get Ditchfield's Famous Revivo. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick-me-up for birds before and after showing, Revivo is absolutely unequalled. In 7d., and t/t bottles. In cases of severe Diarrhoea use Ditchfield's Famous Diarrhoea Powder, in 7d. and t/1 bottles. It is perfectly safe, and can be relied upon. When ordering Medicine, kindly mention for what complaint, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free. Avoid Unnecessary Trouble & Expense

BY REARING YOUR BIRDS ON

Spratt's COD LIVER OIL CAGE BIRD FOOD.

THERE IS EVERY REASON WHY YOU SHOULD USE THIS FOOD IN PREFERENCE TO THE OLD-FASHIONED EGG AND BISCUIT PREPARATION.

It is much more efficacious.
It is more easily prepared and keeps sweet much longer.
It is far less expensive.
It improves the size of birds fed upon it, assists them to feather quickly, and greatly increases their stamina.

For many years the most up-to-date Canary Breeders have regularly used Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Cage Bird Food, not only as a food for fledglings, but for a number of other purposes.

Remember! I Invite You

to come on any day but Sunday and inspect my stock. You need not announce your visit. Come at any time. You will be sure of a hearty Yorkshire welcome, and whether desiring to purchase or not, will be shown round my rooms and stock.

I have 14 large rooms full of grand stock and exhibition birds, also First-class Songsters, in every variety; all in the pink of health and condition.

As regards the quality of my stock, I need only say that during the show season just ended they have secured 76 Specials, 89 Firsts, 74 Seconds, and 60 Thirds, and have been shown in open champion classes only, in hottest competition at all the leading shows. They have also won the N.P.C. Champion Trophy, the O.N.P.C. Champion Trophy, 3rd in Y.C.C. Competition, also several Silver Cups and Bowls, Gold and Silver Medals, Diplomas, and numerous other trophies, finishing at the Crystal Palace Show with 4 Firsts, Silver Cup, and other honours.

I have also supplied birds that have won highest honours for my clients, including winners of this year's Palace show, in very strong classes. I have letters filed here for anyone to see in proof of this; also a large number of letters from fanciers who have bred winners from stock bred and sold by me.

These are FACTS, needing no comment. They speak for themselves, and they cannot be disputed. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- to 100/- per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain ofwinners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand cobby hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, with good position and in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each. Erect raey hens, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched breeding pairs, personally selected and ready for immediate breeding, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- per pair. Also a few special pairs bred from open winners and personally matched by me for breeding winners, at 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. I am in a special position to give amateurs a good start with the best blood in the Fancy ,or to supply the old hand with good stock birds, either Cocks or Hens, at a reasonable price.

CRESTS AND CREST-BRED.

Crested Cocks:—10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Crested Hens, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Crest-bred Cocks:—8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Crest-bred Hens: 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Matched Pairs:—15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- per pair.

MULING HENS, FEEDING HENS, ETC. ETC.

Grand, healthy, Sib. hens, for muling, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each.

FEEDING HENS.—Good sound healthy feeding hens, 3/-, 3/6 each. No breeder should be without. Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases.

I have also a splendid selection of Border Fancies, Scotch Fancies, etc., etc.

KINDLY REMEMBER that any fancier requiring stock is invited to come and make his own selection. To those unable to come. I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the kingdom at my sole risk. I will send on 7 or 10 days' approval anywhere, and will guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer, or cash returned in full.

EASY PAYMENTS can be arranged to suit the convenience of genuine fanciers who are not in a position to pay cash. Send a postcard for my free illustrated catalogue, containing much useful information concerning the cage bird hobby.

EDINBURGH C.B.S.

Meeting Mar. 21, Cairns Memorial Hall, Gorgie Road. Mr. A. W. Watson chair. There was a large turnout of members. Replies from judges were read, the same meeting with approval. The following gentlemen admitted to membership:—Messrs. G. R. Smith, Wm. Gunn, J. Clark, Wm. Ritchie, John Steel, A. McIntosh, R. Atkinson, Mr. Stenhouse, Thos. McGinty, A. Bowie, A. Craig, Robt. Williame, Wm. Murray, and J. Ferguson. A suggestion by Mr. George Brown, of Leith, that all members pay the nominal sum of 1d. or 2d. per bird at annual show, instead of ten free entries and 3d. per bird afterwards, was allowed to stand over to general meeting. Pres then intimated the death of our lady member, in the person of Mrs. Hall, who was esteemed by all. Sec. was instructed to write a letter of condolence to Mr. Hall, also to record same in the minutes. There being no other business, the meeting closed, and members repaired to the table show. Mr. John Sykes (Musselburgh) judged, and Mr. J. Napier (Juniper Green) acted as steward. There was a good turnout of Brit., also muling and hybridising pairs. GOLDF. BRIT. ABERDEEN SOCIETIES (Amalg.).

There was a large attendance of fanciers, representative of the Aberdeen, the Bon-Accord, the Granite City, and the Wood-side Ornithological Societies, at a meeting held in the Trades Hall, Feb. 10. The meeting, which was called for the purpose of considering the question of amalgamation of the four societies, was presided over by Mr. John Hector. Statements were made by representatives of the four societies, who stated the result of their various meetings, which were in favour of amalgamation. Mr. John Hector was appointed president of the new society, and Messrs. James Sandison, William Rae, and Matthew Rae, vice-presidents. Mr. William Allison, 3, Burnett Place, was appointed secretary and treasurer, with Mr. John Bryson as assistant sec. and treas. A representative committee as follows: James Balfour, W. Clubb, P. M. Craighead, Alex. Cruickshank, Jas. Dick, J. Ewen, George Fleming, John Forsyth, A. Johnstone, Alex. MacDonald, George Mackie, John Main, J. G. Milne, Alex. R. Morrison, R. J. Robertson, Frank Scott, P. Stewart, J. Strachan, Alex. Thomson, Lewis Will, was appointed to decide upon the name of the new society, and to arrange when exhibitions are to be held, also the area for amateurs, membership fee, and rules and classification for shows.

At a meeting held Mar. 18, a circular which had been drawn up was approved, and has been posted to all known fanciers around Aberdeen. In this is an address by Mr. John Hector, president, which puts the whole matter before Aberdeen bird lovers, a code of rules for the management of the club and for the governing of its shows, and the classification for the members' young bird show, Nov. 28, 12 classes, and the open show, Dec. 18-19, with 63 open and 34 amateur classes. Those desiring a copy of this circular should apply to Mr. W. Allison, Sec., 3, Burnett Place, Aberdeen.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.S.

Annual dinner March 28, Old Boar's Head Hotel, Corporation-street, Manchester. Forty-one partook of the splendid repast provided by the host and hostess, and did ample justice to the good things on the table. After the tables were cleared a splendid concert was provided. Our old friends from Bolton, Mr. and Mrs. Partington and Mr. T. Pilkington gave of their best, Mr. and Mrs. Partington with duets, and Mr. Partington also with some good songs on his own, all of which were much enjoyed, whilst Mr. Pilkington was in great demand, being a general favourite with his descriptive songs. Then came Mr. Butterworth, a fine baritone with some good rollicking songs, "The Admiral's Broom" being especially good. Then we had Mr. Jas. Leach, a tenor singer of ability, who gave us, amongst other songs, the well-known "Veteran's Song," and who also sang "Excelsior" along with Mr. Partington, it being heartily applauded. Towards the close Mrs. Massey, wife of the well-known member of that name, gave us two old favourites in "Flight of Ages" and "Killarney," making altogether a feast of music worthy of the best traditions of the Provincial. Mr. Waring, the genial president, occupied the chair, and welcomed all present in the name of the society. We had also Mr. and Mrs. Ives and a couple more friends from Grimsby, whilst Mr. Lester was expected to come, but sent a telegram to say he was very ill with an attack of bronchitis. During the interval the cups and medals won by members were presented. The winner of the cup in the points competition champion section was Mr. Ives, who took also about half-a-dozen medals. Mr. Ives, in response to calls for a speech, said a few words in his bluff, hearty style, in the course of which he said he was surprised that the Lancashire members let him run away with so many trophies, and it was up to them to see that he did not do it again. Mr. Albert Percival won the novice cup and the Provincial challenge cup, to be held for twelve months. Other medals were presented to the winners. At the close "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King" were sung with great gusto, which brought to an end one of the most successful gatherings ever held. Mr. Joseph Kilshaw officiated at the piano in a very able manner. A. Percival, Hon. Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

First evening show, "Eagle," Clobham Road, Stratford, March 25th. It speaks well for the enthusiasm of the members that 41 specimens were staged. Mr. A. Skinner, who judged, afterwards congratulated the members on the high quality of the exhibits, remarking that it was one of the finest exhibitions he had ever assisted at in East London.

BIRKENHEAD C.F.A.

British Bird show, March 17th, at Ablett's Cafe. Entries came up well, and in good variety. All the birds shown were in the pink of condition, and many winners during the season again did battle. Mr. Barker had on view a pure self Cinnamon Skylark, a very fine bird of good size, with pink eyes; none of the members had ever seen anything like it here; it is to be hoped he will be successful in moulting the bird, as it will make a fine show specimen. Mr. Mallinson, Liscard, judged, and his awards gave satisfaction to all. After the judging it was decided to draw up the syllabus for 1914. Messrs. Cutmore, Barker and Mallinson all promising to give lectures. Mr. Hodgkins was made a member. A hearty vote of thanks to the judge ended the meeting.

BULLF.: 1, Walton, fine Bullie, its fourth win this season; 2, Barker, 3, Walton; 4, Cave. Twitterings.

We have arranged to hold Lowestoft F.S. 26th Show on Nov. 4 and 5, Mr. Jacob Mackley to judge the cage bird section, writes Mr. E. L. A. Crow, the hon. sec.

It is with pleasure I inform you that our chairman, Mr. J. Hands, has been selected as judge for Bedlington Show, writes Mr. G. Havver, hon. sec., Blaydon C.B.S.

Owing to the Easter holidays the next meeting of the South London Col. and F.A. has been postponed from April 9 to April 16, writes Mr. Geo. Burton, the hon. sec.

I have resigned my position as secretary and treas. of Arbroath C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Gray, and all further correspondence must be sent my successor, Mr. G. M'Ardle, 38, Sydney Street.

We hear from Mr. A. W. Douglas, sec., that at the show of the Elgin C.B.A., Dec 25, Mr. J. Winter, Edinburgh, will judge the Canary section, and Mr. F. A. Watt, Banff, the remainder.

Societies wanting the patronage of the Northern British, Mule, and Foreign Bird Club should apply early, stating number of classes and judge.—W. Curry, secretary, 6, Roxburgh Place, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

For the May meeting of the Preston O.S. Mr. J. W. Cleminson, of Ashton-on-Ribble, has kindly promised to give a lecture on "Birds I have seen in a Day's Ramble," writes Mr. W. H. Cottam, the secretary.

We have changed our headquarters to The Victoria Hotel, corner of Charterhouse Street and Farringdon Road, E.C., where we have a much better hall and show room, writes Mr. G. Stubbs, hon. sec., London and Counties A.C.B.

Will members of the Yorks and Lancs. Brit. B. and M.C., and all intending members, come to the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, at 7.30 on April 4. All are welcome. We should like to see one of the best meetings we have had yet.—T. H. Inman, hon. sec.

At our last meeting it was mentioned that we might insert notice in Cage Birds when our meeting was to be held. It was the general opinion all round that every member took in Cage Birds. One member said it was the first thing he looked for when he returned from work. Another that he generally kept Cage Birds to read first thing on Sunday mornings, etc., etc. It must then be of value to fanciers for information and interesting items relative to the Fancy.—J. R. Chestney (Cramlington C.B.S.).

The catalogue issued by Mr. Jeffrey Walsh, of The Pheasant Aviaries, Blackburn, is a compendium which should be in the hands of every bird-keeper. Every possible requirement seems to be offered in its pages—cages, cage furniture, paints and enamels, woods for cage-making, seeds, seed hoppers, and bins, nest boxes of every kind, foods for softbills, colour food—in fact, nothing of consequence seems to be beyond the power of Mr. Walsh to supply. Readers should send to the address named for a copy of this encyclopædia for the bird-keeper.

The coloured plate issued with the Avicultural Magazine for March, the organ of the Avicultural Society, is a finely executed picture of the Australian Green winged Dove, by Mr H. Goodchild. This is accompanied by an article on the species by Miss Rosie Alderson. The Hon. Walter Rothschild gives "Notes on some Conures," and Mr. E. C. Stuart Baker "Some Notes on Tame Serpent Eagles," which are very entertaining. An article on the Golden-eye Duck is from the pen of the hon. editor, Mr. H. D. Astley, and Dr. Lovell Keays gives some hints on the sexing of Black cheeked Love birds. Mr. P. F. M. Galloway contributes a most interesting article on the Grasshopper Warbler. Mr. Graham Renshaw, M.B., writes on recent improvements at the Amsterdam Zoo. Miss Lilian M. Medland relates an amusing incident between a Nutcracker and a Chough at our own London Zoo, and Miss Alderson gives some notes on birds in her own aviaries during 1913.

A Mile and a half of Birds or the Wing.

Naturalists on the east coast are greatly exercised at present over an immense flight of birds which passed over Gorleston by Yarmouth, the other day. Those who saw them say they were not Starlings but smaller birds, resembling Larks or Linnets, but none were obtained for identification. So numerous were the birds that the flock extended for nearly a mile and a half, and part was of sufficient breadth to cause an appreciable darkening of the sky as it passed over. It would be interesting to know the variety. This is the season when birds will be on the wing in great numbers. The great migration has already begun. Although it is a month before the time we should generally look for arrivals in Lancashire, leaders of the mighty host are already reported, the Wheatear and the Ring Ouzel having both been sighted.—"Northern Daily Telegraph," March 24.

Mr. W. Lilley has removed from 3, Elmfield Road, to 62, Ramsden Road, Balham.

We hear that W. N. Turner, Manchester, is engaged to judge the Norwich section at the Scottish National, Dec. 31.

Falmouth F.A. are this year adding a cage bird section to their show, on Oct. 8; secs. are Burton and Lenderyon, 19, Berkeley Vale, Falmouth.

Owing to business reasons, I have resigned the secretaryship of Rochdale O.C., writes Mr. R. Blincoe, and Mr. J. Butterworth, 70, Entwisle Road, my predecessor, will again take up the office.

EASTER HOLIDAYS.

In consequence of the Easter Holidays next week's issue of CAGE BIRDS will be published one day earlier, and be on sale Thursday Morning, April 9th.

All "copy" must reach us on Monday, or by Tuesday (April 7) first post at latest.

ADVERTISERS:

Remember to send your advertisements NEXT WEEK to reach us TUESDAY FIRST POST CERTAIN.

FURTHER: Kindly send along your advertisements for The following week's issue (April 18th) at the same time.

The offices of CAGE BIRDS will be closed from Thursday evening, April 9th, to Tuesday morning, April 14th.

Mr. F. Joiner, of Portsmouth, has received a postcard (post-marked Chatteris) offering to exchange Norwich for Yorkshires, but the writer gives neither name nor address. Will he kindly send these necessary particulars to Mr. Joiner?

Please alter fixed date for open show from Nov. 14 to Nov. 28, writes Mr. W. A. Broadley, hon. sec. Alnwick C.B.S., to avoid clashing with another show to be held in the North. Will other societies please note, and prevent a repetition of this.

We hear from Mr. J. W. Ramsden that all prize money won at the Crystal Palace Show has been paid, and that all specials, both in money and kind, have been sent. If anyone has by accident been overlooked, Mr. Ramsden will rectify the matter immediately upon application.

Norwich Plainhead Club Patronage.

Societies desiring the patronage of the Norwich P.C. should make application at once to F. Cunliffe, 19, Lark Street, Burnley.

Early Goldfinch Canaries.

On March 23, writes Mr. B. R. Williams, Port Dinorwic, my hen Canary hatched three Goldfinch Mule youngsters, which I consider very early, and entirely does away with the idea that Goldies will not breed till May. I have them in an ordinary cage and in my shop, quite a public place.

A Revival at Derby.

I and my committee intend to revive the Derby C.B.S. in earnest, writes Mr. Jordan, the hon. sec. I trust to let you know all business, etc., that we shall transact and keep in touch with others in the Fancy. All our members (57) are readers of Cage Birds. I wish you every success with the paper, to which I have been a subscriber for nine years.

Roller Society for Audley, Staffs.

A meeting of Roller fanciers was held March 21 at Mr. Aldridge's club room, Audley, North Staffs, with the object of forming a Roller Canary Society. Seventeen fanciers expressed their desire to become members, it was decided that club be named The Audley Roller Canary Society, subs. be the same as the North Staffs. R.C.C., 2s. per year. No further business was done, as all respectfully declined to hold office, pleading inexperience. A suggestion was made that Mr. J. Tomlinson, Newcastle, be approached, with the view of putting the club in working order. The writer interviewed Mr. Tomlinson, who kindly promised the benefit of his wide experience. The second meeting was held on March 28, Mr. Tomlinson in the chair. Mr. Tomlinson was elected president, Mr Geo. Cross sec., and Mr. Thompson treas. Meetings will be held first Saturday in each month, next meeting April 4 at 6.30. Decided that permission be asked to use B.R.C.C. rings, and if granted, a supply to be obtained. Other matters of a minor character were discussed, and a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman concluded a pleasant and enjoyable meeting. Fanciers desirous of further information kindly apply to Geo. Cross, sec., 106, Heathcote Road, Miles Green, near Newcastle, Staffs.

"The small sixpenny advt. I inserted in CAGE BIRDS last week has elicited replies so numerous as to prevent my replying to each individually. I effected a ready and satisfactory sale, and could easily have disposed of many more birds if I had them. I must say, from this instance and previous similar ones, that CAGE BIRDS is a most effective advertising medium, yielding as it does maximum results at a merely minimum cost."—B. BALL (Penrhyn).

"Kindly thank all who answered my advt. in CAGE BIRDS, dated March 21st. I have answered letters with stamps enclosed and have made satisfactory exchanges."—B. HATTON (Charlton).

"Please thank all those who answered my advt. in CAGE BIRDS. I disposed of all my surplus stock through the medium of your valuable paper."—J. SHRIMPTON (Tooting).

"Kindly inform all those who answered my advert. re pair of Yellow Norwich that I am suited, thanks to CAGE BIRDS."—W. COOK (Pembridge).

"Kindly thank, through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, all those who replied to my advt. re Greenfinch Mule. I had offers from all parts and could only answer those that sent stamp."—A. MOORMAN (Carisbrooke).

"Please thank all who replied to my advert. re Yorkshire Hen. I had so many letters that I could not reply to all."—J. GUNNING.

"I have had several good deals through CAGE BIRDS, including an exchange of two pairs of my Canaries, value £5 per pair, for two champion bred wire fox terriers."—F. TEMBLIN (Uppingham).

The syllabus of Leeds C.B.S. is to hand, and contains an attractive table of fixtures for the year, together with particulars of cups and specials, classification for the various club shows, and a list of members' names and addresses.

I feel I should like to thank you (writes Capt. B. Evans) for the very flattering remarks you published in "C.B." of my birds in the late Palace Show. The success I met with is extremely gratifying to me, as until last year I had never thought of cage birds. I got very smitten with the hobby, and have spent a lot of time with my birds. I should like to add that I have received the greatest assistance from tips out of your paper, and also from the various books I have bought through your columns. A win at the Palace is, or ought to be, the ambition of every fancier, and when this is coupled with the very fine report, such as you published, it is every inducement for a novice to try and be among the cracks next season.

Note our Front Page this Week. You May Win Five Shillings.

Prize-money at Bristol C.B.S. Show.

Mr. H. Elston writes:—Seeing letters from Messrs. Carrier and Davis, I beg to say that I was a winner, but have received no prize-money, or reply to my letters.

Cinnamon C.C. Specials.

Mr J. W. Metcalfe writes to say that in the aggregate points the Rev. B. Nume scored 118, not 128, as sent; and Mr. T. Proctor 122 not 118. This, of course, reverses the positions of 1st and 2nd.

Early Mules.

I see in last week's Cage Birds Mr. James Winstanley writes that Mr. R. Ellis, who has bred some early Mules, would like to know if anyone else has bred them earlier than himself. I might say that I have three Goldfinch-Canary Mules, three weeks old last Friday, March 27. They are out of a second clutch of eggs from the same birds. The first lot died at three days old. I hope you will insert this in Cage Birds, which I might add gives me every help I require, and I wish it every success, also Mr. Ellis.

British and Chinese Siskins Meet in London.

An interlude in the business of the National British Bird and Mule Club at the committee meeting held March 26 was interestingly filled by the production by Mr. Frostick, of two Siskins he had just imported from China (Tien Tsin). Mr. Allen Silver brought a hen British Siskin for comparison with the two arrivals from the far east, these being both hens. Great astonishment was expressed at the exceeding similarity between the foreign ladies and their English relation. It would seem that after a cage moult there will be so little difference as to make the birds difficult of identification. Considerable merriment was caused by the readiness of the Chinese visitors in answering the calls of the British bird, it being remarked that the language differed no more than the appearance. Messrs. Frostick and Silver were accorded a hearty vote of thanks for their kindness in providing members with such an instructive experience.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column, a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager. Please note that we only insert those that guarantee, so our list is a bona-fide one.

DRY HEAT FOR AILING BIRDS.

By WESLEY T. PAGE F.Z.S.

NOW as to Dr. L. Lovell-Keay's article, referred to in my opening remarks, I refer to this, and quote from it (by permission), as it is the first describing its use under the conditions of a specially constructed dry-heat chamber, as part of the provision of one of his aviaries. The temperature of this aviary is maintained at 50 degrees to 60 degrees F. during the winter months; it also has a large natural flight attached for summer use. The significance of his article is that although he only quotes two actual instances, he has used the chamber for every case that has turned up, and these have been many, irrespective of the character of the ailment. While Dr. Lovell-Keay actually became an aviculturist only in April, 1913, he has acquired indirect experience through a resident patient, and is a lifelong student of all branches of natural history. During the past summer and autumn he has been actively getting together a choice series of birds of many orders, and now has quite a large and comprehensive collection. It is in the acquisition of these (some have been in his possession since May) that he has been gaining experience, as he has had an abnormal number of cases for treatment. He states:

"Lately I have had more than an ordinary dose of ailing birds. In every case I have applied heat (dry heat—I don't mean warmth but real heat), and the result has been nothing short of miraculous. I have been carrying out a series of experiments with the heat treatment. Let me quote a case or two: One day, about a month ago, I picked up my Columbian Siskin very ill; I kept her in a very warm place and she revived at once. Unfortunately, I had no means then of continuing the heat throughout the night, with the result that she died in the night. Kitchen cupboards and the like get much cooler about 4 a.m. when the bird most requires the heat.

A Bird "Literally Baked."

"Two or three days afterwards I picked up my hen Hooded Siskin. I put her into a travelling cage and literally baked her for about three days. She completely recovered, and is now as fit as ever; and yet her case seemed very bad. But the most wonderful cure of all was that of a hen (why is it they are all hens?) Pectoral Finch. My wife, who often lends me considerable assistance, became quite impatient. The bird was apparently 'as dead as a door nail.' I held it in front of a bright kitchen fire for ten to fifteen minutes, and then popped the bird in a cage into the oven. In ten hours time it had opened its eyes and was on its own keel. By bed-time it was on its feet. That night I kept it in a box, underneath which a powerful duplex lamp burned all night. To make a long story short, the bird made a complete recovery, and yet was apparently quite dead.

"I could multiply successful cures ad lib, but I don't think any good purpose would be served by doing so.

"Have you ever failed, you ask? Yes, I have, and in all cases it has been because I have not persevered with the treatment which I find takes about two or three days, during which time the temperature must never fall below 60. I will roughly describe my recovery hot-air chamber. It is in reality part of my new aviary, and was not really designed as a 'sick bay.' The floor is covered externally with a square of zinc sheeting to prevent it catching fire, and the front is half-inch mesh wire netting. The sides are wood. The lamp is fixed well below the floor and immediately underneath. The whole forms a kind of propagator, so beloved of gardeners. It is then heated uncomfortably warm, and yet birds revel in it."

I will only add that the above is advocated merely as the treatment for ailing birds, birds picked up in a state of collapse, or for newly-acquired or arrived birds in a more or less prostrate condition.

The Apparatus Described.

Now as to the apparatus to be used. These remarks need be very brief, as the oven, or radiator, and the best quick method of using them, have been already described. It remains only to deal with some, not too bulky, yet simple contrivance, which can easily be put into working order, at very short notice, to meet urgent cases. Such a hot-air apparatus can be easily constructed out of a box with close joints, by putting in a sheet of zinc, dividing it into two chambers, the lower one to receive a lamp, the top of the chimney of which will all but touch the zinc dividing plate. The zinc plate must fit sufficiently well to prevent the products of combustion leaking through to the upper chamber. The lower chamber can be fitted with a door, leaving air space at bottom, so as to avoid needless waste of heat. The front, or door, of the top chamber should be of glass, the necessary ventilation being provided for in the back or side of chamber.

If it is desired to use the top chamber as a cage there must be a wooden floor above the zinc plate, and a wire front, the latter quite independent of the glass door, i.e., the glass door would shut over the wire front after one had put in or attended to the birds. Any handy man could, at very small cost, prepare such an apparatus; it would soon be heated up, and the cost of fuel (oil) to keep it going is almost infinitesimal, as only a small lamp would be required.

The Master Singer of the Canary Tribe ☘

By J. TOMLINSON

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

YET the regulations say that in the event of a claim through loss or death, which must be clearly proved to have been caused through the company's negligence, the maximum sum of five shillings only will be paid for one bird unless a special insurance is paid. This is not at all encouraging, and the better plan with birds valued above five shillings each is to insure them. The fee is 3d. for each £1 (or part) value; the 50 per cent. extra is also charged were sent carriage paid, but I am informed that the five shillings is withheld in the event of their paying a claim on the insuranee. Further, should an insured bird die from natural causes en route, where no delay or damage had been sustained, they reserve the right to withhold the amount of insurance.

The company's servants will require to see the bird before they will insure it, so the package should not be finally made up until it has been inspected. Each recipient en route is required by the regulations to sign for the parcel; this makes each one anxious to get it off his hands, and at the station of destination they will often send the consignment by special messenger. If you treat these special messengers well, your birds will not be retained long at the station.

Examine before Signing.

Open the package and see if the bird is all right before signing; should this be inconvenient, add the words "not examined" after the signature. It is usual for the purchaser to pay the carriage, but the seller should insure, to safeguard his own interests, for until the term of approval is expired the bird is the sender's property.

Should the bird arrive ill or out of sorts, give it a piece of bread that has been soaked in boiling milk, and a drink of warm milk instead of water. Keep it warm and out of draughts, and cover the cage before retiring at night. If the bird is too ill to eat or drink, give three or four drops of weak whisky, or weak brandy and water; or three small drops of best brandy and glycerine direct into the beak. If no improvement is noticed in an hour afterwards, repeat the dose, and again at the same interval, until the bird is able to partake of the bread and milk. In any case chilled and not cold water should be given to a bird arriving from a railway journey.

Newly-purchased stock should be kept in quarantine for at least a week before being put amongst your own stock, unless it can be ascertained that they are perfectly healthy, or have come from a room that is kept under sanitary and hygienic principles.

Treat Birds Wisely and Well.

Treat your stock wisely and well during the period they are not required in the breeding cages; it is an error to neglect them during the autumn and winter months, especially so as far as the hens are concerned. At this time the fancier's attention is concentrated on the young cocks, expectantly waiting and watching the development of the song tours. But if hens are expected to be fruitful in the breeding cages, they must have a little attention each day, and be supplied with a wholesome and nourishing diet, not the scraps and leavings from the cages of the cocks.

The nature of the food that will be required for the hens should be determined by the conditions under which they are kept. Those kept in a room that is not artificially heated can be given a more liberal diet, as the cool atmosphere and the exercise in the flights will counterbalance the nutriment obtained from the extra food. The staple diet, i.e., the diet that must be supplied daily to hens kept under the above conditions, should be good Spanish canary seed, and the best German rape seed. These should be put into separate hoppers to prevent waste, for birds will pick out the variety they like best, and often scatter the other to waste.

After the moult is completed, that will be approximately about October (a treatise on moulting youngsters will be given when dealing with the young birds); from then and to the end of January, in addition to the staple diet of canary and rape seed, allow each hen one small teaspoonful of egg-food once per week, and the same amount twice per week of good mixed seeds, consisting of hemp, inga, maw, gold of pleasure, groats, and lettuce seeds. Where only a few birds are kept it is better to purchase these seeds ready mixed, and a good sample of condition seed, containing amongst others the above varieties is now being advertised in CAGE BIRDS.

The Use of Extras.

A small piece of sweet apple two or three times a week, a regular supply of clean gritty sand, clean drinking water from a clean fountain, and a bath when the weather is suitable, should bring hens through to the end of January in the pink of condition. Rather than give these extras on the same days, it would be better to vary them, somewhat after the following manner (by a small teaspoonful, I intend a level and not a heaped spoonful):—Sunday, egg-food; Monday, apple; Tuesday, mixed seed; Wednesday, apple, or a piece of bread that has been soaked in boiling milk would be a good substitute for one day; Friday, mixed seed; and Saturday, apple.

During February the egg-food may be increased to twice per week, and from the commencement of March until the hens begin to incubate their eggs, it should be given on alternate days. The apple is recommended during the winter to prevent constipation, and no other medicine need be given except in cases of illness.

In the spring the apple can be discontinued, and the young tender leaves of the dandelion substituted. One small leaf per day to each hen may be allowed up to the time when incubation begins; it must not be given to the birds in a wet or frosted condition. It may be allowed to dry in a warm room, or be wiped dry on a clean cloth. Neither should green-food be given that has been allowed to lie submerged in water for any length of time; this is especially so where there are young birds in the nest, as it would quickly set up diarrhoea.

The order of dieting will be reversed where hens are kept in a warm room, as the object will often be not so much to keep them in good condition and to prevent them coming into a breeding condition before it is desirable or necessary. The staple diet should be canary and rape seed given separately as previously advised; egg-food and mixed seed will not be necessary. A small piece of sweet apple two or three times a week to each bird can be allowed, with fresh clean drinking water, and a bath twice or three times a week, and a regular supply of grit is all that is necessary for hens kept in warm rooms right up to the end of January. If it is desired, a small piece of bread and milk can be given occasionally, but it is not absolutely necessary.

Items all may have.

A piece of cuttlefish bone should be given to both cocks and hens, at all times, whether in heated or cold rooms. The same will apply to a piece of fat, raw bacon, mutton, or beef suet, also small pieces of boiled carrot or parsnip. The apple could be varied, and as a change a piece of banana, orange, or grapes, could be given.

During the first two weeks in February give each hen one small teaspoonful of egg-food once a week, and twice a week during the last two weeks of the month. In the first week in March again increase the quantity to alternate days, and substitute tender young dandelion for the fruit, as soon as it can be obtained, allowing the same quantity as recommended for hens kept in cold rooms.

Timely Tips for Tyros.

By J. Lyon (Aberdeen).

IN the first nest of the season it is not unusual for the eggs to be a day late in hatching. If the eggs are moistened the day previously, either by dipping them in luke-warm water, or by giving the hen a bath, the young can more easily break their shells, and free themselves.

Care should be taken that no egg-food is thrown on the cage floor and allowed to become stale, for if given by the parents to the young it may mean the loss of the whole nest.

If the cock takes a share in the feeding, and does not molest the hen, he is better left with her. The removal of the cock, I may say, is often a cure for a sweating hen, as it compels her to leave the nest to get food.

At the age of three weeks to a month the young may show signs of leaving the nest, but it is best not to force them, as they are better off in the nest. In a short time they should begin to feed a little themselves.

If stale food is allowed to lie about, the young are almost sure to eat it, and may be lost before the cause is discovered. Young birds often drink more water than is good for them, so watch that too much is not consumed.

When the hen shows signs of building again, it is better to remove the young to the other compartment (if a double-breeder is used) and place the wire slide between, so that the young may be fed through the wires. It prevents plucking, and the hen will sit better than if her young were left with her. If a single breeder is used, a nursery cage should be hung on to the front. The cock should be allowed to feed the young as long as any continue to ask for food.

As soon as it is seen that the young can feed themselves they may be removed to a flight cage. Do not drop the egg food too suddenly, but gradually reduce it in quantity and strength. A little cracked seed helps them to get more quickly on to hard seed.

Young Canaries are very often inclined to pluck each other. It is thus better to place birds of the same age together. If a bird is once plucked by one of its fellows it may very likely happen every bird in the flight will start doing it, until the poor youngster will be almost bare. Not only is this an objectionable habit, but it puts a great strain on the youngsters to grow the new feathers.

A Championship of Twenty-one Years Ago.

"Cage Birds" Coupon Competition Prompts Reminiscences

By C. A. HOUSE.

All the Crystal Palace Show of 1914 was held the grand finale of Cage Birds Championship (Coupon) Competition. Thinking of this, my mind flew back to a championship of twenty one years since.

At the time, Mr. J. Filmont was secretary of the London Cage Birds Association. He was a man of progressive ideas, and in 1892 he conceived and announced to the Fancy a grand championship competition. The reception accorded to the idea was rather mixed, but nothing daunted, Mr. Filmont persevered. His colleagues of the L.C.B.A. backed him up, and in 1893 they announced a competition, which excited great interest from one end of the country to the other. The scheme was as bold as it was original. The central idea was to bring together in competition the birds of the different societies scattered about the kingdom, and thus secure for one the honour of having the strongest team in the country, and of being the champion society.

About a dozen societies promised to support the scheme, but when the entries closed, half of them were defaulters. In the preliminary discussion it was argued with much force that the North stood little chance, and that victory would rest with the Southern teams, because of their ability to send mixed teams, whereas the North could have to rely upon one variety. But the prophets were wrong. The North won.

The competition was held on Nov. 3, 4 and 6, 1893, and the judges, who had been elected by ballot by the members of the competing societies, were Messrs. J. Benson, J. Mackley and T. A. Hamer. The judging was conjointly. It says much for these three that only once during the ten hours in which they were judging did they disagree. Then Messrs. Mackley and House favoured a Silver Lizard of Mr. Ben Bardsley's, whilst Mr. Benson wanted the award to go to one of Mr. A. Hamer's birds. Although the judges blended so well, neither of them relished being tied up, and a few days after friend Benson, writing to me, said, "It was a mistake judging together. As the late Mr. Hewitt once said to me: 'I'll do it this time, but I'll never do it again.'"

The birds were not judged as teams, but separately in their respective classes, and in their individual ownership, in the open classes provided for the championship tournament, and then their points totalled. The prize-money offered amounted to £77. The entry fees totalled £20 16s. Thus the L.C.B.A. sustained a big financial loss in its effort to give the Fancy a competition such as it had not seen before. I am sorry to say it—nor since.

Each team contained twelve birds. This was one of the weaknesses of the scheme; the number should have been twenty. It would then have yielded a better test of the relative strength of the societies.

Seven of the ten teams came from the North, two from the South, and one from the Midlands. When the final count was made, this was how they stood: 1st, Oldham, 82 points; 2nd, L.C.B.A., 81; 3rd, Dalton, Ulverston, etc., 80; 4th, Portsmouth, 68; 5th, Northampton, 65; 6th, Accrington, 61; 7th, Preston, 46; 8th, Bradford, 43; 9th, Liverpool, 42. The tenth team, that of the Rochdale O.S., did not turn up.

Varied was the composition of the teams. Oldham trusted entirely to its strength in Lancashires and Lizards; Ulverston sent nothing but Belgians and Scots. Fanciers: Northampton relied chiefly on its strength in Norwich; London, Portsmouth, Accrington, and Preston sent mixed teams; Bradford relied upon Yorkshires, Norwich and Cinnamons, four of each from the studs of three fanciers only—Messrs. Ambler and Son, John Haigh, and Naylor and Son. The latter noted Cinnamons did not put in an appearance, and Messrs. Ambler had two Yorkshires short, so that Bradford did remarkably well in scoring 43 points, with only half a team; Liverpool depended chiefly on the famous Mules of Messrs. Houlton and Chenall, but the team was weakened by three absentees.

The competition was a most interesting one, and it was hoped by many that it would become an annual institution; but their hopes did not fructify.

Three Months for Birdy Swindler.

A remarkable story was told to the Ellesmere Port magistrate recently when Bill Allcock, a man stated to have many aliases, was charged on remand with obtaining 6s. by false pretences from Henry A. Bedwell, insurance agent, on November 18.

Police-constable Furniss said the prisoner went under the following names: Bill Allcock, John Hindes, Thomas Johnson, Williams, Monks, and Isaac Henry Wighton, and gave the following addresses: White Street, Pomfret St., Sussex St., and Euston St.

Superintendent Farnworth said the worst feature of the case was that the men who were swindled were poor, hard-working men, and it appeared that the prisoner had had a successful trade. He had received a communication from the Nottingham police, in which they stated that Allcock's real name was Highton, and he resided in Euston Square, the lower part of Nottingham. Prisoner received three months' hard labour.

A Sketch of Mr. Crisp and his Blackbird that whistles tunes.

JOEY, THE WHISTLING BLACKBIRD

And Some Other Pet Birds.

By E. CRISP (Walthamstow).

My whistling Blackbird has caused quite a stir all over the country, and I would like, through the medium of Cage Birds, to answer numerous enquiries. First and foremost, I attribute all my success with birds to the regular reading of your valuable paper—not to buying an occasional copy now and then, but a regular perusal during my spare time each week. With all my knowledge gained in theory and practice, I am always eager to learn more, and there is always something fresh to further the well-being of one's hobby to be found in the columns of your valuable journal. My advice to all is: Study nature and treat all birds as near nature as possible. Disease, and birds not singing, will then be practically unknown. The old proverb, "Prevention is better than cure" can well be applied to cage birds with happy results for birds and their keepers, and, in fact, all animals. My first bird ever kept was a Goldfinch in 1904; this I tamed so it would follow me from room to room, share my meals on the table, and pipe away on my finger, etc., etc., hop on to the bowl as my wife washed the children, and dip his little head in the water and bathe himself.

A Tame Linnet.

Next I had was a Linnet. This I tamed just the same, and more so; he would fly on my shoulder while at work (boot repairs), hop on the boot while I was nailing, and twitter to me the whole while in his friendly way. People would call my attention to the bird, and say: "Look at that bird, you will hit him with the hammer," but that never happened — we understood each other too well. This same bird, when the cage hung against the window, would fly backwards and forwards, about four feet from the cage, singing the whole time while flying; this was witnessed by several Linnet fanciers, and the remarks were: "What about small cages now? Here's a bird singing while he flies outside one." The next bird I had was a Thrush. I knew no more about feeding than I know about flying, but I set to work and read all I could find in back numbers of Cage Birds, and purchased a book on Softbills, and, following the advice I had obtained, the bird turned out a beauty. He would fly round the room, after business hours, and settle first on my shoulder and then on Mrs. Crisp's, and to and fro, sharing our supper with us; he, like the other birds, was the talk of the district. People say I have influence over them; that I don't know. All I know is that I am fond of birds and my birds are fond of me. Now I come to the Blackbird now notorious. I brought him up from the nest, fed as advised in "The British Bird Manual," Vol. 2, by H. Norman (whose advice I have followed with great success when hand-rearing). Joey never had a chance to hear his natural note, so I whistled to him different little bits, and he began to mimic; I persevered, and gradually he reproduced the well-known tune, "If you want to know the time, ask a policeman." This he did absolutely perfectly and clearly. Then I gradually taught him, first, "Old Folks at Home," and other little dancing ditties, all of which he whistles perfectly. He will answer me at any time of the day or night, light or no light, and is as tame as all the other birds previously mentioned.

A Result of Kindness.

This has been brought about by proper feeding and unbounded kindness in every way. Give your birds a fly round the room; that will not throw them off song, but will increase their health, and good health means more song. Let any sceptic try the experiment, and I guarantee his bird will sing more than ever; don't try it once or twice, but for a month. Two or three times last week I damped my birds all over, and washed their legs and feet, and let them fly to dry themselves in my workshop or kitchen. Anyone is welcome to come and see them; they are all pictures of health and plumage and song. My advice to all is keep your birds scrupulously clean, give fresh food and water daily, wash water vessels daily, feed as near nature as possible, and vary the diet often. My staple food for adult Softbills is a mixture advertised in Cage Birds, moistened with fresh milk and chopped salad, fresh daily. I throw away any left from day to day, give fruit daily, and all live insects obtainable. I whitewash the inside of the cages every month, and enamel the outside every six months. Hoping the above will benefit all bird lovers is the wish of Joey's trainer.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2) The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6) If an answer in the same week's issue is desired queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems), will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9) All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

IN-BREEDING, ETC. (E.C.).—(1) Provided your birds are strong and healthy, and are not the progeny of closely related birds you may safely mate them for this season only as closely as mother and son, or even brother and sister. But you must not continue mating the young from these birds in future seasons to their near relations. It is also most advisable that your birds have plenty of size and substance to mate as closely as this, particularly the brother and sister, as these matings are very apt to result in a material reduction in size, and this you do not want in the Norwich. If you could manage it, the mating of father and daughter would be much preferable to the brother and sister union. (2) If the birds you propose mating in this way, and also their parents, are in good, sound, robust health, there is no reason why the young from these matings should not be quite strong and healthy. But, even so, you should not mate their progeny as closely as this next season. (3) Yes, you can mate a Roller cock with a Norwich hen, but the young would, of course, be only cross-breds, and only of value as songsters. They would be useless to introduce into your pure Norwich stock.

YOUNG DYING (G. E. W.).—There must be something wrong with your feeding when young are being reared, I fancy, but you give me no detailed particulars which help me to discover what is at fault. Do the hens cease feeding, are the cocks left with them, or do you make any alterations or additions to the dietary about the fifth or sixth day? On the whole I think you had better send me full particulars how you treat them from the time the hens begin to sit until the young die, when I will endeavour to put you on a more successful track. Meantime, if you have any more young hatched, give egg food only in small quantities, fresh two or three times a day, until the young are three days old, then give a tiny scrap of green food, watercress for preference, and continue this, giving a little fresh twice a day from the fourth day. If the hen seems to flag about the sixth day offer a bath in which you have dissolved a little common salt, add a pinch of sulphate of soda to the drinking water, and give a little soaked rape seed. If you can get it, a little crisp lettuce or groundsel will go far to keep her going. Slowly increase the supply of egg food and also green food as the young get older, and about the eighth or tenth day add a little cracked hemp each day.

AN EARLY NEST (E. M. T.). The incidence of of the gale was undoubtedly the cause of the hen having a little trouble with the first egg. You did quite the right thing to prevent it becoming serious. There is no reason why the eggs should prove unfertile in these circumstances, but if they should do so take them away after the hen has sat her full time, add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn to the water for two days, and then feed the birds again as advised in "Canary Breeding for Beginners" for preparing birds for breeding, and leave them to start again in due course. There will be no necessity to separate the birds

AN IDIOSYNCRASY (P. H. P.) One does occasionally meet with a bird that is a shy singer, so to speak, and will only sing in some particular place, and not at all in the company of others, and, maybe, your bird was such an one. As you say the purchaser heard it sing before buying, and you have already had one exchange, I do not quite see how you can reasonably be held to blame for what is, after all, probably a mere idiosyncrasy of the bird. It is not very likely that the second bird will behave in the same way, but if it should do so I think the most that could be expected of you would be to allow the buyer to re-exchange for the first bird which she heard sing, and advise her friend to give it a trial in the breeding cage, where it may prove all right. If the bird was taken to its new home and placed at once in a cage with a hen without any introduction this might possibly account for its silence. But it is impossible in all cases to account for these peculiarities.

SLOW TO BEGIN (Italia).—There is no fixed time in which hens begin to lay after mating. It depends wholly upon the condition of the birds when put together. If mated at the beginning of April, and both birds are in good condition, the hen will frequently lay within eight or ten days. On the other hand, when mated at the beginning of March, and not in such forward condition, it is no unusual thing for them to dally about three or four weeks, or even longer, before settling down to business. Probably your birds were not quite so forward as you thought them to be. You can only exercise patience now, and things will come right in the end. They will doubtless soon begin to look more favourable. Give a teaspoonful of egg food with about half the quantity of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and sesame, mixed in it every second day, and on the alternate days give a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts of hemp, niger, millet, linseed and broken groats. Give three crisp young leaves of dandelion daily. This should suffice to hurry them up a little.

EGG-EATING COCK (N. E. C.).—It is unfortunate that you did not have the pair in a double-breeding cage, as you could then have dealt with the failing of the cock with practically no trouble at all. Could not you cut a cardboard partition to size, with notches to fit over the cross-wires, introduce it underneath the front after removing the sand-drawer for the purpose, and fix it in position for a few days by means of paper clips. You would need to cut a hole in the cardboard to run the cock through from one part of the cage to the other, which, of course, you would cover with a temporary cover for the few hours the cock was required to be kept separate. If so, all you need do further is to run the cock the other side of the partition each evening whilst the hen is laying and keep them there until you have secured the egg next morning. On the evening of the third day remove him and cage him alone, leaving the hen to hatch and rear the young by herself. Otherwise there is nothing for it but to catch him each evening after roost time and place him in a temporary cage until the hen has laid her egg next morning. Next time you might try one of the special nests for egg-eating birds which you may have seen described in this column from time to time. Glad the other bird is better. Only too pleased to be of assistance.

TWO IN TROUBLE (H. H. Melsom) (1) This bird has doubtless been kept in a draught and become bronchially affected. Keep it in a comfortable place, free from draughts, or extreme fluctuations, and treat it for three weeks or so the same as advised to "Mr. Cruse" in this issue. There is not the least likelihood that the bird is tuberculous. (2) Moving the bird from the warm kitchen to the cold room was the cause of the moult. You should have waited until the spring was more advanced before making the change. Give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it every second day, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, teazle, and broken groats. Give two dandelion leaves daily. In the water add six drops of tincture of gentian, and three of tincture of steel every second day. Continue this treatment until the feathers cease dropping.

WHICH IS BEST? (Novice, Lincolnshire). — I should say it would be decidedly best to keep the birds in cages in the usual way after moving them to the place outdoors, as by this means you retain control over the breeding to a much greater extent than you can possibly do by allowing them to fly at liberty and breed much as they like. In the latter circumstances your control over the breeding is necessarily limited.

COCK NOT GOOD SINGER (Potched) Certainly as there appears no doubt about the sex of the bird, and it is in good sound health, and you are not particular as to the class of birds you breed, there can be no objection to breeding with a cock which has never sang much, owing, as you say, to lack of opportunities of tuition.

MAKES FUNNY NOISE (Mr. Cruse).—It is useless giving the bird medicine without first taking the necessary steps to remove the existing causes of the trouble. Possibly this is where you have failed. See that the bird is quite free from cold draughts, damp, or rapid and extreme changes of temperature. Do not hang it high up near the ceiling, nor near or over a burning light in the evenings. Keep it in a comfortable but not overheated place. Having attended to these points, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days add five drops each of oxymel of squills, syrup of tolu, and ipecacuanha wine to the drinking water. If not well in this time write again and I will advise you further.

MOVING BIRDS (Nor-West). You may safely remove the birds to the other room if you take advantage of a mild spell of weather somewhere about the second or third week in April. I would not advise you to move them earlier, especially if they have been kept hitherto in a warm part of the kitchen, nor during cold, chilly weather, or you will run a considerable risk of throwing them into moult. The two hens that now have eggs, which may be feeding young when the time comes to move them, should be quietly moved in the evening. Throw a light cover over the cages after the birds have settled down to roost, and quietly take them to their appointed place in the other room; remove the cover an hour or two later, and next morning all should proceed as usual.

A DRY SORE (J. H.).—Thanks for further information. Keep the cage and perches as clean as possible. Continue to slightly smear the sore spot three times a week for a time, but use Lanocyllin for the purpose. In addition to the staple diet, give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and during the first week add a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a small pea, to the water every second day, and on the alternate days give instead 20 drops of Chemical Food, continuing the latter for a fortnight.

GETTING THIN (Jock).—You have probably moved the bird from the window, now its health is irreparably ruined. You ought never to have put it there. Keep it now in a cosy, but not overheated, place, where the temperature is fairly equable, and it will be quite free from cold draughts. Give, in addition to the staple seed diet, a little sponge cake, as advised to "Mr. Cruse," in this issue every second day, and also a morsel of banana, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats. Give a young growing stool of dandelion daily instead of other green food. In the water give the same medicine as advised to "Mr. Cruse" in the reply referred to, for two or three weeks.

BREEDING FROM SINGING HEN (Beckenham). —(1) There are exceptions to the general rule in this matter, as in all others. A great many singing hens are certainly of little use as breeders, but there are also many such which leave nothing to be desired as regards the performance of their maternal duties. Unfortunately, only the actual test can show to which class your hen belongs, but I certainly would not reject her for breeding simply because she sang without giving her a trial. (2) Owing to the very great number of entries received in the Pairing Competition, it has not been possible to publish the result yet. It will appear in due course.

LOSS OF FEATHERS AND SCURFINESS (W. M).—Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape, and in addition give separately a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and lightly dusted with flour of sulphur, and finally sprinkled with maw seed every second day for three or four weeks. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts niger, millet, teazle, linseed, and black rape. Give a small stool of growing dandelion daily. In the water add ten drops of lemon juice, and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence every second day for a fortnight. Allow frequent opportunities for bathing in favourable weather, and add to the bathing water sufficient permanganate of potash to tinge the water a light pink colour. It would benefit your future stock most if you totally rejected this bird for breeding.

WEAKLY NORWICH (P. C. P.). The bird seems to be affected with excessive weakness, but you give no clue as to the cause of this, or whether it is congenital. Try the following treatment for a few weeks, and if not better, write again and report result. Give a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed, and also two crisp young leaves of dandelion every second day, and on the alternate days give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats, and a morsel of banana. In the water add a pinch of Epsom salts for two consecutive days, and afterwards 20 drops of Chemical Food two days in every three for, say, three weeks. By the way, see if the claws are overgrown, and if so trim them back to a proper length. Also see that the perches are of a proper size and shape.

ALWAYS SITTING IN NEST (L. A. B.).—It is due to some abnormality of the reproductive organs, resulting in a broken cycle of reproduction. In your case the best thing you can do is to give the hen a clutch of fertile eggs to hatch and rear. This she will do all right, at least, so far as the hatching is concerned, and it is not unlikely that she will rear any young that are hatched. After this she may possibly go on and breed in a normal manner herself. If this should be the case, well and good; but if not, and she proves a good foster parent, you may utilise her as a feeder for other hens' young that may be deserted. If you have no such use for her, discard her altogether, as she will be of no use for breeding.

HENS VERY PUFFY (Ploughboy).—I am strongly inclined to think that the cause of the hen's illness is simply the result of a chill. The theory that this sort of thing happens to very forward hens if they are not mated is mere twaddle. If a hen is too forward, and is not mated, she will lay a clutch of eggs, which will be unfertile, and there the matter will end. Should you wish for more convincing proof in case one of these birds die, I would advise you to send it to our Mr. Yates for a post-mortem, when you will also have the satisfaction of knowing whether there is anything of a contagious nature about it. Keep the birds rather on the warm side, but quite free from cold draughts. Give a little bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar daily, and a third of a teaspoonful of maw seed every second day until a decided improvement has taken place, and add to the water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

WHAT SEEDS? (H. S.).—The sample of seed sent is mostly composed of corn marigold, a daisy-like plant growing in the open fields, and very abundant upon some chalky soils. All the Finches will eat it, the Bullfinch being particularly fond of it. Among this sample was also a little of the common field poppy, and some wild mustard. All these might be thrown on the floor of the aviary or flight, so that the birds can select what they fancy.

MATING MATTERS (Thirsting for Knowledge). I would advise you to pair the Linnet cock with the Bullfinch hen, the Twite with the Goldfinch hen, and the Goldfinch and Siskin with the Redpolls. Of course, the Goldfinch-Bullfinch and the Siskin-Goldfinch would make good matings, but I would leave you with the two Redpoll hens with undesirable partners for them, so under the circumstances I think you would do well to try the pairings as advised. I wish you better luck than last season.

LINNET AND CANARY (Anxious).—Your Linnet and Canary will do all right presently. The fact of the Canary pair being in the same room will not make any difference. If she is fit—that is, flying from perch to perch, flapping her wings, and calling, and if the beak of the Linnet is dark and bluish-grey in colour, they will not be long. Your feeding appears to be correct, but you make no mention of green-food. Let them have a leaf of dandelion daily or a little seeding chickweed, and when you think they are both fit, give a nest pan and plenty of moss and cow-hair. Tie a piece of rough string on the front bars of the cage, then when the hen is getting ready she will begin to pull this about. When she builds and lays take each egg out and put a dummy one in its place until she has laid three, when replace them. If the cock is troublesome shut him off from the hen, but place him where he can see her, or he may sulk.

BIRDS FOR AVIARY (F. Shore).—About four or five cock Finches would do nicely for your big flight. You could put in a Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Linnet, Redpoll, and Siskin, or a Reed Bunting, if you could procure one. Your staple food had better be equal quantities of canary and teazle seed, and half of German rape. Give a few sunflower seeds daily. Make a mixture of three part hemp, two of linseed and niger, and one of maw. Give a heaped-up spoonful between them every day. Buy a packet of good wild seed mixture, and give three times a week. Let them have plenty of green food and wild seeds, such as dandelion, shepherd's purse, ground-ivel, chickweed, etc., and the seeding tops of other plants as they come in season. Let them bathe two or three times a week, giving them the bath early in the morning. Some of our books on Finches would be useful to you.

HYBRID PAIR (Bert Murray). Give your birds as a staple food, canary and one-third of rape seed. Buy a packet of good Finch mixture and let them have a spoonful every other day, also a leaf of dandelion or a spray of chickweed daily. Read the advice given to "Anxious" in this issue, respecting which the birds are in condition. When the hen has laid her clutch of eggs she will incubate for fourteen days, although many of them hatch off on the thirteenth. You will then have to give her some special food to rear the young ones on, this consists usually of hard-boiled egg and biscuit, four Osborne biscuits to one egg, beaten up and thoroughly mixed, but fanciers who have only the one pair, sometimes purchase and use one of the preparations advertised in our columns for the purpose. This food is easily prepared, and there is no waste, as ever so little can be mixed just for the day. When the young ones are out of the nest you will still continue to give them this, together with cracked seeds, until they are old enough and strong enough to crack them for themselves. If you are in any doubt about anything during the season, please write for advice.

TROUBLE WITH THRUSH (Anxious).—Undoubtedly the trouble with your bird is caused by improper feeding. You appear to have been giving him the same food for a year, without a change. As you have sent for our booklet on the Thrush you will see in that directions for feeding which you must follow out if you wish your bird to do well. Let him have an aperient, as much glauber salts as will cover a shilling in his drinking water, for one day, repeat two days after, and again the following week. Then give him a course of chemical food, a small teaspoonful in his drinker daily, boil the water first or it will not mix properly. Anoint the bare places with a little fresh lard or vaseline. Mix his food with scraped raw carrot, boiled potatoes, or chopped green-food; be rather liberal with this, also give him fruit.

GREENFINCHES NESTING (H. M. Pratt). If you want your pair of Greenfinches to rear the young you must supply them with some soft food, in addition to seeds, etc. You must not mind the other birds eating their share. Greenies are very hardy, and it is just possible the old birds would rear on seeds and green-food, but they would be much more likely to do so if you gave them hard-boiled egg and biscuit. You need not make it particularly strong, one egg to four Osborne biscuits would do, or you could give them some of the soft food advertised in our columns by the different makers for rearing young Canaries. In addition to this give them some soaked rape seed, or you could let some simmer in an old saucepan or tin until it swells, and, after draining, dry it off with a little powdered biscuit; also be liberal with green-food, such as chickweed, groundsel, sow thistle, etc. When the young are four or five days old give a good supply of sunflowers and some hemp; you will have to feed liberally if you want them reared.

BULLFINCH WITH DIARRHŒA (Mrs. Monteithy. —Unfortunately you do not say in your letter in what way you are feeding your bird; you may be giving it something that is the cause of the trouble, or possibly the water does not suit it, so in future boil it first, or give distilled water. For treatment give two drops of best olive oil direct into the beak. Procure a little tincture of catechu from the chemist, and add 15 drops to his drinking water; discontinue as soon as the looseness ceases, and give him a course of chemical food, a small teaspoonful in the drinking water. I do not know if you are giving him any green-food, but, if so, you had better discontinue it for a time. If no better, or you wish for any other advice, you had better write again giving full particulars of feeding, etc.

HYBRID PAIRS (Bulldog).—Do not part the Goldfinch and Bullfinch; if they agree I t well alone. Given them a nest box or some other nesting arrangement, and encourage them to go to nest by giving plenty of moss, cow hair, short length of grass, etc. Also supply them liberally with dandelion leaves and seed pods when procurable. Your flights will do splendidly, and are large enough to contain a rough bundle of furze and heather, and if you can get an old nest and place in it, it will encourage them. Let the Canary and the other Bullfinch then be in a position to see each other constantly—a cage with a wire partition would be best—and as soon as you see any signs of familiarity you could run them together. You must be a bit careful about this, because if the hen takes a dislike to the Canary, your chance of success are very remote; so you had better go gently, there is plenty of time. In selecting the hen to pair with the Goldfinch cock, watch them carefully and see if one of them shows any desire for his company; if so, that is the one to select, because if she is enamoured of the Goldie she will not take to the Canary. It would have been better had you let only one hen fly with him during the winter months.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

GREEN SINGING FINCHES (Mrs. C. E. B.).—You are quite right in keeping this bird warm. Get from your chemist a mixture of ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine, in equal parts. Put one teaspoonful of this mixture to each ounce of the drinking water while the trouble lasts. If there should be any further developments, write again at once. Give three drops of Dinneford's Magnesia direct to the beak, daily, till the bowels have been cleared, but once this has occurred then only as required to keep the bowels moving freely. If the bird will take a little sponge cake, give it a little daily, first dropping on to it five drops of cod liver oil. Give the bird, if it cares for them, two or three mealworms per diem and the usual seeds, grit, cuttlebone, and green food. As regards the aviary, yes, there should be some nest receptacles outside. If round the top of the flight two six-inch boards are nailed at right angles, rush nests, etc., can be suspended beneath these, and the birds will mostly roost there during the summer and be benefited therefrom.

SUGAR BIRD, &c. (Tobacco).—It is a Purple Sugar Bird and your diet is about right; but it will appreciate any small fly, spider, greenfly, etc., you can capture for it. It is not easy to give a sketchy description of Pretre's Tanager. The head is marked with white streaks above the eye, extending to the nape, also ditto below the eye running on to the neck, and another white streak covering the bib and centre of upper throat; the mantle and upper back olive green, with the lower back, upper tail coverts, a broad collar round the back of the neck, lower throat, breast and centre of abdomen, rich guinea-gold; remainder of under-surface dull brown; wings and tail variegated black, white and brown; beak, legs, and feet plumbeous. Two or more years ago quite a few of them were on offer, and a few again last year; but they have never been other than quite uncommon.

ACQUIRING A YOUNG GREY PARROT (A.W.A.).—Whatever care you take, you can only minimise the risk of acquiring a young newly-imported bird, and there is no use in dissembling the fact, that mortality rules very high among each lot brought over. It would be impossible for me to go into the treatment in full length in this column. I am not allowed sufficient space; moreover, the proprietor of "C.B." has published a Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d., post free from our Manager, which will give you the fullest details and help you greatly towards success. Neither am I allowed, for obvious reasons, to recommend individual traders. If you care to repeat your query and tell me just how much you are prepared to spend, perhaps I can give you a hint or two more as to acquirement, or you can have a reply per post as per rules.

CHILIAN SPARROWS (H.E.S.).—A mixture of canary, white and Indian millet, will suit them well. Also offer a second mixture hemp, crushed oats, rape and paddy rice, permitting the birds to help themselves according to taste. They will also require green food and an occasional mealworm, while any stray fly, spider, small caterpillar you can capture for them will form a dainty tit-bit. Yes, two cock Gouldian Finches will agree well should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Cresswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." enough together so long as there are no females of their own kind introduced. Gouldians have practically no song, but they have a gorgeous piquant sort of beauty, which many admire. The same applies to most specie of Finches.

BREEDING ZEBRA FINCHES (Forth View).—Many young Zebra Finches are reared annually on seed alone, combined with plentiful supplies of seeding and flowering grass, lettuce, and garden weeds as green food, but for another month at least you must exercise care that you do not offer green food tainted with frost. I should supply a little soft food just about the time eggs are due to hatch. A mixture of crushed arrowroot biscuit, crumbled sponge cake, and dried ants' eggs, in equal parts, will meet the case, and the mixture in a dry state will keep indefinitely. It must be mixed for use fresh daily by taking the required portion and making it crumbly moist with boiling water. If wetted into a soddened, sticky mass, the birds will not look at it. Only a little will be required. Probably too small a cage might be the cause of past failure, but you give no details.

WHAT BIRD? (R. L. P.).—It is a Golden-crowned Cotinre (Conurus aureus). A seed mixture of canary seed, white millet, oats, hemp, and a few sunflower seeds. Canary and millet to form half the bulk of the mixture. Supply green food, any kind of fruit it will take, also pieces of biscuit if it cares for it. Grit, cuttlebone, water, and a piece of natural branch for it to exercise its beak upon, must be regularly supplied. About 15/- to 20/-, they come to hand not very regularly, but are not at all rare, and have been offered on occasion quite cheaply.

BUDGERIGARS (F. L. Howell).—How can I account for it with no details other than you have a small aviary out-of-doors, with four birds, and one bird has dropped ten eggs from the perch and not used the husks at all? I can only suggest a possible cause by a few suggestive queries. What is the demeanour of the birds together? Does not this give you a clue? Are the husks clean, or, having been in use last year, are they infested with insects? Have mice gained access to the aviary and usurped occupation of the husks to the discomfiture of the Budgerigars? It may possibly be that you have a forward hen and the cock not yet in breeding condition; if such be the case, matters will level up a little later. I suppose you know you have true pairs. When in breeding condition the cere surrounding the nostrils is bright blue in the male and ruddy brown in the female. I hope the above may be a help to you. As soon as you can get it free from frost, supply seeding and flowering grass ad lib.

Bengalese and Ribbon Finches Breeding in Same Aviary.

Sir,—In view of the letter from Mr. H. E. Lallen, junr., in your issue of March 28, my experience with a pair of Ribbon Finches and a pair of Bengalese may be of interest to some readers of CAGE BIRDS. I obtained one pair of each of these birds in February last (both of which had hatched young last year, but had not reared them). I turned them into my garden aviary, and the Bengalese immediately built an elaborate domed nest, in a bush at the back of the open flight, but no eggs resulted. In the meantime the Ribbon Finches had taken up their abode in a cocker-nut husk, and the hen laid four eggs, at intervals of a day or two; she, however, made no attempt to hatch them, and to my surprise the Bengalese took charge of the husk and eggs, sitting closely and not being disturbed, even when the aviary was being cleaned out. After several days had elapsed, the cock Ribbon Finch appeared to resent the appropriation of the eggs, and several battles ensued; probably as a result of this all the eggs got broken, which was very regrettable, as it would have been interesting to see whether the Bengalese would have succeeded in rearing the young of the Ribbon Finches. I may say that my birds, which are all foreigners, and kept in a garden aviary, are in the best of health, and do not seem to be at all affected by the very changeable weather we have been having recently.

How to Distinguish Roller Tours.

Sir,—To produce in writing the various sounds that go to form the song tours would entail no small amount of time and labour. Especially was it so in my own case, as I endeavoured to produce them in as simple a manner as possible, avoiding any description which to my mind would have a tendency to set up a confusion of ideas, or leave the reader in doubt. Those of your readers who understand the song, or only a portion of it, and who have so kindly followed me through my articles, will readily understand the difficulty to which I refer. Anyhow, Mr. Gill's letter shows that there is at least, to one mind something lacking which has not occurred to me. I thank Mr. Gill for his letter, and welcome his criticism, and shall be pleased to accede to his request if he will let me know exactly what it is he desires. I do not anticipate much difficulty if he will set his description on one of the easily expressed tours, such as the Flutes, or Hollow-Glucke. The "Cluck-Cluck" of a broody fowl is a fairly good representation of the Hollow-Glucke tour, as by changing the consonant C to G or its omission, we get the "Gluck-Gluck," or "Luk-Luk" which comprises the Hollow-Glucke tour. A resemblance of the Water-Glucke is sometimes given off by emptying water from a bottle. The strike, or stroke of a bell, not the tinkling of a bell, is heard in a good Bell tour. The jingle, as of a number of small bells—not the clapper, or tongue type, but rather the small sized bell which adorns children's playthings, I have in an old stock bird. This bird "plays" with it previous to commencing his song, that is, it is not sung in connection with the other tours; there is not much beauty in it, neither is it named, nor recognised. To the sewing machine tour, I must plead ignorance, although I have heard in a thin toned Bell tour something that is not very admirable. As Mr. Gill is willing to travel I could, if he desires, make arrangements with a fancier friend in Yorkshire to give him a practical lesson, but more than one will be required because of the various ways and tone in which the birds sing. Should there be in my own district any fanciers or non-fanciers of the Roller, club members or otherwise, who would like these "practical lessons" I shall be pleased to make the necessary arrangments for such, and in the event of there being more than I can accommodate at my own home I would hire a room in non-licensed premises and defray the expense of same. To have the tours explained as the bird is singing would be very beneficial, and they would be thereby more readily understood than by reading a description as to the sounds they resemble. A gramophone record would have been very valuable could such be produced, but attempts up to now have only resulted in failure.

The Making of Nets.

Sir,—Having been a Canary breeder for many years, and a reader of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, which I have every week, I want to make some netting to catch British birds with, and I want one of your readers to tell me how to net and make the under-hand knot, which some people call the fisherman's knot. I can net with the over-hand knot, and used to be able to make the other, but not having made any nets for a number of years (only rabbits' nets) I have quite forgotten how to do it. If any of your readers will give me a hint or two, shall be greatly obliged.

Large Clutches of Eggs.

Sir.—One occasionally hears of birds laying abnormally large clutches of eggs. It is not confined to Ribbon Finches. Last year a correspondent sent an account of a Canary which laid ten eggs. The cause of the death of Mr. Lallen's Ribbon Finch could only be satisfactorily ascertained by a post mortem. I should think probably it would be due to exhaustion; or it might be inability to lay the sixteenth egg. I should have been pleased to have purchased the eggs if Mr. Lallen had no use for them, as I am keeping some Canaries this season for the purpose of hatching eggs of foreign birds as an experiment.

The Classification of Green and Cinnamon Borders.

Sir,—Kindly allow me to draw the attention of show committees to the above. I consider these are varieties that have made great leaps and bounds during the last few years, though in most of the schedules I find separate classes for other varieties, but one for Borders, "Green, or Cinn. cock or hen, yellow or buff," which embraces eight different varieties. Now I consider that the green and cinnamons are the working man's varieties, for he can keep a green or cinnamon in show condition, when he cannot keep a clear or mark for want of time to do them justice, and I think if there was better classification there would be more entries, and the variety would be encouraged. At the annual meeting of the Border Fancy Club at Edinburgh, it was passed that the show giving four classes for greens and cinnamons should have a medal for same, that is if a show gives six classes for clears and marks, and four for greens and cinnamons; that show gets two medals. I hope this note will find consideration next season.

Prize-money at Bristol C.B.S. Show.

Sir,—Thanks to the aid of CAGE BIRDS, the sec. of the Bristol C.B.S. has at last woke up, and I also notice in last week's issue that I am not the only one looking for prize-money from this show. I see in the secretary's reply that I was awarded vhe only, and she forwards you a catalogue in support of her statement. Might I ask her why she did not give me this information, seeing that I had written her three times on the matter; and on the last occasion, which was about seven weeks ago, I enclosed a stamped addressed envelope for reply? However, I should like to give your readers my version of the matter: I made an entry in class 26 (Bullfinch) and duly received my label, which was marked class 26, No. 1. I sent bird to the show, and inside the lid of my box I tacked a paper, on which was my name and address; also number of class and cage number. This plan I always adopt when sending exhibits out. On the return from the show I found written in pencil across this paper, the following: "Sorry a mistake was made in No. on ticket. Thanks for support." Taking the cage from the case I found the number on cage label had been altered from 1 to 2, and a third prize card and a special prize card were affixed in the wires. These were also made out for No. 2, Class 26. Under these circumstances I naturally awaited my prize-money, 2s. 6d. for the third (no first or second being awarded) and 2s. 6d. spl. offered by a Mr. Manley. This not arriving, in due course I wrote the sec., as mentioned above, and after waiting just over three months and being unable to get any reply, I wrote you. I enclose herewith the prize cards (the spl. card is evidently one left over from their previous show, as the date will show) and also the paper referred to above, taken from the inside of the lid of case. Now I should like to ask Mrs. Pool how she reconciles her statement with the above facts, which, Mr. Editor, you can verify by cards, etc., enclosed. Personally I think there is no doubt whatever but that it was my bird which won, more especially so as the following week he was 1st at Cardiff under the same judge in a class of, I believe, seventeen exhibits, following this up by taking 2nd at the L.C.B.A. The secretary's reply will be awaited with great interest by A Few Notes on the Dipper, or Water Ouzel.

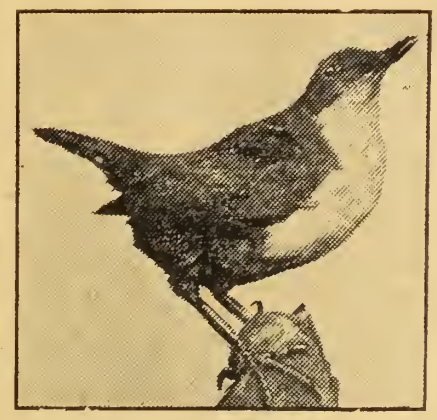
Sir, As little seems to be known about this somewhat rare bird, perhaps these few notes will be of interest to readers. The Dipper (Cinclus aquaticus) is a sprightly little bird. The plumage of the throat and breast is pure white; on the abdomen chestnut, merging into dark grey towards the tail; back, dark grey, almost black.

Like its near relative, the Thrush, it has a sweet song. It possesses a rather rapid flight, and has a habit of returning to the same stone with its spoil after diving. The accompanying photograph shows the Dipper in a favourite attitude.



The Dipper's favourite nesting sites are underneath overhanging river banks, in small caves under waterfalls, etc.; it is nearly always situated near its home—the water. The nest is not unlike a muff in shape, and composed of moss, which is often kept green owing to the damp atmosphere. It is usually lined with soft grasses, leaves, etc., upon which (generally during April or May) are laid the five or six white eggs. The latter, it is pleasing to note, are seldom plundered, as the nest is difficult to locate, and is therefore a safe refuge for forthcoming brood.

New Society for Port Talbot, Aberavon and Dist.

Sir,—At a special meeting held March 28, at 11, Clarence Street, Aberavon, a society was formed, to be called Aberavon and Port Talbot Dis. C.B.S. The officers elected were: Chairman, Mr. W. J. A Wail from Aintree.

Sir,—As the so-called "Yorkshireman" has had the indulgence he asked for, I should like to ask that individual as a true sport why he did not sign his name? If this member will make himself known to me at the next meeting I will prove to him and the secretary that I have given generously to our society. I presume, Mr. Yorkshireman, you are not a bird man as you class yourself. I maintain the cage bird members are not to blame for the winding-up. Perhaps, Mr. Yorkshireman, you think the cage bird members are slow, but you will hear straight words at the next meeting. As you accuse me of condemning the secretary, I may tell you that I condemn no man. I merely asked; did Mr. Anderson blame the bird section for the winding-up? The answer I got was what I may call ignorance, pure and simple. If you would like to know why I am still in possession of the so-called silver cup, I may tell you that when the society gives me two medals I am entitled to they can have this valuable trophy, which was bought for fifteen shillings, out of which I contributed seven shillings. You could not have attended many meetings or you would not ask, have I given the society anything? Moreover, I say that but for the generosity of the bird members the society would have had a short existence. I have also got the gold medal which I promised to our section still in my possession. If a capable secretary allows members to exhibit without paying subscriptions, also owing money to the society, how does he expect a society to pay? As I am on the committee I will, as a sport, fall in with my share and pay, not talk.

The Border Fancy C.C. and the Use of Closed Rings.

Sir,—In answer to "Anxious" if the writer had signed his name he would have had an answer before now. The ring rule was not made at the last general meeting; the old rule was only altered. The old rule read as follows: "Birds with rings on their legs are not allowed to compete at any show, either open or confined, if held under Club rules." The members at the last general meeting considered that the wording of this rule interfered with fanciers outside the club. I feel safe in saying it was one of the largest meetings ever held by the club, close on eighty members being present, and out of that number not one present spoke in favour of closed rings. A very prominent Green breeder said he believed in the open ring for stock purposes only and he had no difficulty in taking them off when sending to shows. The new rule was then agreed upon, as follows: "That any member of the club competing with rung birds at any show with club patronage, be disqualified." The answer to "Anxious'" question is quite clear. He can only be a member of one or the other, and I should be sorry to lose a member who has done so much for the Wee Gem. Should "Anxious" wish for further information he can either write me direct or sign his name to his letter in your valuable paper, as I have neither the time nor the desire to enter into a paper controversy with anyone using a nom-de-plume.

WALTER B. SMART, HON. SEC.

Sir,—In reply to your correspondent "Anxious," in regard to his position as a member of the above club, in the event of him exhibiting his birds wearing rings on their legs at shows where the B.F.C.C. patronage is given he is liable to have all his birds disqualified. (That is, if rung, and in the Border section.). Of course, this rule of the B.F.C.C. does not apply to non-members, who are quite at liberty to exhibit rung birds. This rule was the outcome of a very lengthy discussion at the last annual meeting, the majority of the members present considering rings a distinguishing mark. Personally, I can't see where rings are any more a distinguishing mark than the many different styles of show cages and perches. I have never used the closed rings and never exhibit birds wearing rings (one exception, when I forgot to take the open ring from a young bird before I sent it out for the first time), but for all that I fought hard to get the above rule abolished at the last meeting. Undoubtedly the majority of the members present at that meeting considered that in the interests of the Wee Gems they ought to prohibit birds wearing rings from competing if shown by a member of the B.F.C.C. I would just like to ask them to think it carefully over, and perhaps by the time our next meeting comes round they might alter their opinions. Although, as I have said before, I have never used the closed ring, I am inclined to the opinion that if they were made compulsory by specialist clubs it would do more good than otherwise; it would stop the borrowing business and also give the actual breeder of a good bird the credit. The number on the ring would settle all disputes as the secretaries would have them registered. I have approached several Border breeders, trying to get them to join the B.F.C.C., but they say, "What is the use? I am going to use rings."—Not as a distinguishing mark to win prizes but to distinguish the true breeder, and as a guide to pedigree breeding. I am, like your correspondent "Anxious," a member of the Green Canary Association (which all Green Border breeders ought to be), and would like to advise him to refrain from using closed rings for another season, and perhaps if he could attend the next annual meeting and give his his views on the ring question it might alter the present rule. I can assure him that he will certainly get a patient hearing. I would also like to advise "Anxious" to keep his membership of the good old mother club, the B.R.C.C., which is the strongest specialist club in existence, and we Border Fancy fanciers have to thank it for the high pinnacle that the Wee Gems rest on at the present time. Now, "Anxious," be sure and send your annual subscription along to Mr. Smart, our new secretary, and I would also specially remind you not to forget to enclose your mite towards the testimonial of the two very highly respected old veterans, Messrs. M. Jamieson and J. B. Richardson, who have just retired from office as secretary and president after faithfully and well serving the long term of twenty one years. Well done, thou good and faithful servants.

Who is Liable for Special Prizes at Shows?

The Position made clear.

Sir,—Please accept my best thanks for your answer in your editorial note to my query under the above heading. This no doubt has come as a big surprise to most fanciers. As there was another letter on the same subject, may I, in the best interests of the Fancy, ask you to be good enough to go a step further with your advice, and say what the position of the promoters of shows is as regards donors who promise specials, and who do not carry out their promises. Are the donors liable? And can they be sued for same?

J. W. Norris,
Hon. Sec. British Roller C.C.

[The position is as follows:—(1) Societies are responsible to exhibitors for all special prizes offered in show schedules, and can be successfully sued for them or their value. Societies, of course, can evade this responsibility by embodying a rule in their schedules making it quite clear that they accept no responsibility for donated special prizes unless these have been delivered into their hands. (2) Donors of special prizes can be successfully sued for the promised prizes or their value only if some "legal consideration" can be established. For instance, if the wording ran: "Bag of canary seed presented by Mr. Allripe, dealer in bird seeds and foods, 13, Paradise Alley, Kentish Town"; or "Leg of pork, presented by Mr. Goode, family butcher, 42, Cheapside, London," this could be argued to be a "legal consideration," inasmuch as the donors of the specials obtain an advertisement. The private (so to speak) donor who practically never receives any "legal consideration," can decline to carry out his promise, and the society has no legal redress; of the moral liability of the private donor there is, of course, no question. Evidence of the promise would in any case have to be produced to the court. It would always be a wise proceeding for a show secretary to post a copy of his schedule to every donor of a special prize, making some mark against the said prize to draw attention to it.—Editor, Cage Birds.]

Sunderland's Next Open Show.

Sir,—I should be obliged if you would mention, through your valuable paper, that our open show is to be held on Jan. 15 and 16, 1915. In a previous issue of Cage Birds, it was reported that Brandon Colliery (a near neighbour of ours) had also fixed up for Jan. 16. A few days ago I received word from Mr. Reed, secretary of Brandon, that they were not aware that they had fixed on our date, and that they had decided to alter it, so as not to clash with our open show. There is no doubt that both societies would have suffered, and we give them the credit for being good sports by changing the date, and trust their show will be none the less successful for it.

John Peacock.

Has a Bird a Conscience?

Sir,—May I ask Mr. W. Teschemaker—quite in a friendly spirit—what evidence has come before him which causes him to make the, to my mind, extraordinary statement that "birds have consciences and a definite sense of right and wrong." The possession of such a sense would imply a reasoning intelligence which is not possessed by birds (i.e., caged-birds), and man, the only creature who is answerable to a higher power for his actions, is the only animal who has a conscience or free will to violate it or not.

The Clashing of Show Dates in Fife.

Sir,—I was a little surprised on seeing Mr. T. Arnott's letter. I told him to address any further communications to my house. He seems to be very much hurt at Buckhaven-taking the 31st Oct. I do not think there is any need for Mr. A. to say any more about it, as I told him it has to go on now. Mr. Arnott pretends not to understand me about being lenient with dates; we will let that go for what it is worth. I will only take this one instance, and that the year 1910, when he was the judge of the Borders. We were first in the field for that date in Fife. Now, Mr. A., did not Lochgelly step in against us, and did you not advise us, even although this also was a Fife show, to fight the date? But, then, we made you a full-fledged judge on that date; that may have influenced you. Mr. A. must admit there are no open dates now in Fife. He appeals to fanciers about being "on the main line," but that does not keep Buckhaven from getting a fair share of entries, and he must admit that we have a first-class set of fanciers, men that exhibitors should have no hesitation in trusting. Mr. Arnott says there were shows in Kirkcaldy before I was born, but he forgets to state they were poultry, etc., shows. Referring to his duties as secretary; did he not think that he was overdoing his duties when he wrote our president asking leave to nominate him as judge of the Borders at Kirkcaldy, when he knew our show was to be held on the same date? But our president proved himself a true fancier when he refused. Mr. A. would make fanciers believe Buckhaven is a new society; this will be their seventh annual show and Kirkcaldy's eighth. Referring to Dysart, I never said such a thing as it would be proper to fight Kirkcaldy. He might read my letter over again. Mr. A. can repeat as often as he thinks fit about us being "on the branch line." That is just like him; could he not fight fair? He also talks about delay; I can assure all fanciers there is no delay whatever. I have no intention of answering any more of Mr. Arnott's letters.

Have We Forgotten what Freedom Really Means?

Sir,—Writing under the above heading in a daily paper, the Rev. S. Tickell says that it is the refinement of cruelty to keep wild birds in confinement. After over 35 years' practical experience with birds, caged and uncaged, I assert, without hesitation, that there is no cruelty whatever in caging wild birds, unless accompanied with ignorance. One thing I will admit, and that is fear, on the part of the bird—fear of man, beast, and reptile. But remove fear, and you have a tame bird, a willing captive, and charming pet. You cannot remove fear with cruelty; kindness and patience are the necessary qualifications, for which you are amply repaid. I have at the present time wild caught birds, which leave their cages for a bath, a fly round, and to take their sugar or fruit from the lips or fingers of self or children, and return of their own free will to their cages, to please us with their captivating ways and song. No birds at liberty come up to the standard of those seen at our shows, they having to compete against the inclement weather, birds and beasts of prey, shortage of water, food, etc. How many of our British Finches at liberty live ten, fifteen, and twenty years, as they do caged? Not one in a thousand. I am afraid the rev. gentleman has done those things he ought to have left undone, and left undone those things he ought to have done. Why not leave the birds to the care of those who love them; where love is, cruelty is absent.

Burst Oil Lamp Burns Bird-house and Birds.

Sir,—The many friends of Mr. Hugh Moreland, Main Street, Bainsford, Falkirk, and of his son, Mr. J. Moreland (who latterly owned the birds) will learn with regret that their bird-house and whole stock, consisting of about fifty Crests, Plainheads and British birds, and show cages, and carrying cases, were destroyed by fire on the morning of the 24th March; nothing being saved, with the exception of a few full-moulted Britishers which happened to be in another outhouse at the time. The fire was caused, it is supposed, by the bursting of an oil-lamp used for heating purposes. Mr. Hugh Moreland was among the first to keep Norwich Canaries in this district, and was the founder of the society now known as the Falkirk and Dis. C.B.S. May I appeal to your readers for a little practical support to enable these fanciers to make a fresh start in the Fancy. I have no doubt that any birds, or anything which any fanciers care to send them, will be very much appreciated.

A Waxwing Crowd in the Isle-of-Man.

Sir,—Mr. Gale seems rather sceptical re flock of Waxwings seen in the I.O.M. by a Mr. Dipper. I don't doubt the statement, as I see by Cage Birds, and several newspapers, that a good number have been seen in England. Why not here, Mr. Gale? I, too, am watching for their return, although I do not claim to have so good a pair of eyes as Mr. Dipper. We might be able to pick one or two eye-openers out of the bunch. I may say that I have witnessed some grand sights in the way of migration of birds, as I keep a keen look-out. I expect to see the House and Sand Martins any day now, as the wind keeps steady south. The warmth and sunlight of spring will bring them bofere their time.

The British Goldfinches at Bathgate Show.

Sir,—In reply to "Steelyard," while admitting I misquoted the number of the bird as six instead of nine, the other remarks could scarcely leave room for doubt as to which I meant. Surely a pertinent question, civilly put, to a judge, asking his reason for shelving a specimen which has been acknowledged by so many experts to be outstanding in excellence, might have been considered, as his reply has no bearing on that point, and I trust he will answer it, otherwise his burking will leave the inference that he cannot justify his action. My reason for quoting the sequence of honours gained by the bird was only to indicate that it was an excellent specimen, and in fairness to its owner (who is an utter stranger to me, I never having met him) and as a matter of interest to British bird fanciers, my question was not out of place. I don't expect judges to follow each other like sheep through a gap; everyone has his own opinions as to the value or otherwise of features in a specimen. But this decision was so extreme a departure as to make it a matter of interest, apart from its reflecting adversely on either the bird, its owner, or the many judges who have been so blind as fail to detect its inferiority. That it has faults, I am aware, but "Steelyard's" saving clause in the last line of his letter prevents me taking up his challenge. If he cares to deal in futures, however, I am willing to wager that it will again beat any Goldfinch which was at Bathgate. His quoting instances of a recognised topper going down, and omitting to mention that it was soft when judged, and of another bird which deteriorated in value from £10 to 15s., have no bearing on the question. To me it reads like an attempt to make out that judge to be like himself. That everything, even a good bird, must deteriorate, every child knows; but this bird in question was not soft, and has not deteriorated to the 15s. level yet, hence my quoting offer of £9 9s. refused for it. Now "Steelyard," you can tell, but I dare not tell (though I could) why the best Goldfinch was shelved at Bathgate.

An Appeal to Members and Committee of the N. Wales C.B.S.

Sir,—I beg to draw the attention of the Committee to the fact that I have called a meeting twice, when only four of the Committee attended. I am calling a final meeting at the Assembly Rooms on April 6th, at 7.30 p.m. prompt, to elect officials for the coming year, as Mr. Jones, the chairman, and myself are resigning from our posts. This meeting is open to any member, the more the better. I hope that these lines will draw the Committee and members to come and do their duty, when I shall feel greatly obliged, as I am retiring from the Fancy, and reducing my stock.

R. E. Griffith, Hon. Sec. N.W.C.B.S.

SOUTH MOOR AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting March 28, South Moor Hotel, Mr. G. F. Bates chair, and a good turn-out of members. N.F. show date fixed June 20, annual show Dec. 26. Table show held, in which there was a very good entry. MULES: 1, 2, R. Peart; 3, Roxborough. LINNET (F.M. or H.M.): 1, Bentick; 2, Dawson; 3, Robson. REDPOLL: 1, Davison; 2, Cresswell; 3, Robson. BULLIE OR GOLDIE: 1, Mitchell; 2, Davison; 3, Laxson. GREENIE: 1, 2, Peart; 3, Clark. A.O.V. HARDBILL: 1, Robson; 2, Davison. PAIRS: 1, Cresswell; 2, Davison. Mr. W. Elliott judged and gave every satisfaction. Next meeting April 25.—Charles Davison, Sec.

WEST STANLEY C.B.S.

Adjourned annual meeting, March 21, Mr. J. Emmerson chair. Following officials elected for 1914:—Pres., Messrs. Butler, Pailey and Bossey. The old vice-presidents were all re-elected, and we nominated two more, Messrs. T. Barron and J. Sanderson; chair, C. Davidson; vice-chair, W. Cresswell; sec., W. Elliott. Decided to keep our old date for show, Nov. 7. Last year we had not the support we should have had owing to another society taking our date. We are this year having a members' show only, and are trying for the Town Hall, and, failing that, the Victoria Hall. We are giving extra large prize money for an open Linnet show. Subs. reduced this year from 6s. to 4s. Decided to have two judges, and the following were nominated:—Messrs. A. Brown, J. Riseborough, T. Dixon, W. Reid, H. Seely, A. Holden, P. Bewicke, J. Stanger, and J. Hands, the sec. to write same for terms. As West Stanley C.B.S. is the oldest in the district and well supported by our townspeople, we ask everyone who keeps a bird to become a member, as every member gets a special, if no more.—W. Elliott, Sec.

SOUTHERN BORDER F.C.

Meeting headquarters, Wandsworth-road, March 26. Mr. Norman chair. Present: Messrs. Newley, Snook, Claydon, Humphries, W. G. Martin, and the hon. sec. Letter read from sec. of Swansea C.B.S. in answer to an enquiry for particulars of the disqualification of an S.B.F.C. member's bird at their last annual show. The committee found that the officials had acted in all good faith, but at the same time expressed the opinion that the bird should have been more thoroughly examined. Chairman submitted a drawing of a typical Border Fancy to the meeting, and it was unanimously decided to adopt same as the club's model, and to have same reproduced in the club's year book; the chairman kindly offered to have a block made, and to present same to the society. Mr. Newley then offered to give four 10s. prizes for sealed handicaps throughout the coming season. He will hand the sealed conditions to one of the club officials, and same will be opened at the end of the season. It is hoped by means of these handicaps to keep up the interest in the patronage shows until the last. The members nominated last meeting, Messrs. Ellis, Humphries, Lagden, Robson, and Gosling, were unanimously elected, and the following were nominated for membership: Messrs. Green, Owen, Preece, Elston. Decided to leave the final selection of patronage shows until next meeting, but all applications must be sent in by April 25. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman.—F. W. Burton, Hon. Sec.

WALKDEN ROLLER C.S.

First contest, Mar. 14, Stocks Hotel. The Society is the first of its kind in the district, and though only formed a few months, has about 30 members. Entries turned up well, and some very good birds were staged. After the birds were judged members and friends, about 35, sat down to a very good tea provided by Mr. G. Holcroft. A very nice social evening followed, songs being rendered by Taylor Berry, Wm Nuttall, Jas. Marshall, and M. Tovey. Mr. Holcroft gave a special of a gold-centre medal, this being won by Walt. Walker for most points. Next meeting April 7th, when all fanciers are invited to join, as we have every prospect of a good strong society. Mr. Massey, Bolton, gave us a few remarks on the value of the song tours, and Mr. J. Kilshaw a few words on breeding. Mr. J. Kilshaw judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

1, sp, Walker, 20; 2, Aylett, 19; 3, Ridyard, 17; 4, Edge, vhc, Smith, 16 each; Bowden, Howard, Nuttall, Lightbrown, 15 each; Jackson, 13; Holcroft 12; Fletcher, Brookes, Yates, Farnworth, 11 each; Ivers 10; Vickers, Whittaker, 9 each; Hill 6.—Hy. Howard, Hon. Sec.

PORTH & RHONDDA VALLEY C.B.S.

General meeting Mar. 28, chairman Mr. A. H. C. Legg. Decided to hold meetings on the second Thursday in each month instead of the third, as before. Mr. W. C. Baker was elected a member. Decided that all moneys shall be placed in society's name. Arranged that a meeting shall be called to agree as to the requirements of secretary during his office. Decided to purchase 100 rule cards and to make a small charge of 3d. per card. Mr. A. H. C. Legg will give a silver medal as 1st prize, Mr. Bob Hillman 2nd prize, and Mr. Tom James 3rd prize for an egg food making competition at headquarters next monthly meeting. Thursday fanciers will compete for these prizes on the 9th inst.; other fanciers on the last Saturday in April, at 7 both evenings. Conditions: Each member can use any method or machine, and is to bring his own egg, boiled hard, with shell complete. Time limit, ten minutes. Judge, Mr. Legg. Decided to hold a members' young bird show in July; date will be fixed later. British bird classes will be provided. After egg competition has finished, a Linnet singing contest will take place between Mr. Shephard's "Itchy Coo," Mr. Williams' "Stammering Sam," and Mr. Mainwaring's "Ragtime Billy." Come in crowds. If anyone has a ragtime singer, trot him up to 66, Pontypridd Road, Porth, for the championship.—John Shephard, Sec.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Annual general meeting held in Y.M.C.A. halls, Mar. 21, president in the chair. There was a good turn-out. Report and balance sheet submitted and accepted as being very satisfactory. The association has had a very successful year, and begins new season with a cash balance of £5 6s. 8d. The following officials appointed:—Pres., Mr. J. Rundell; vice-pres., Mr. J. Kennedy; sec., Mr. Allan Thomson, 1, Croft Place; treas., Mr. R. McEwan: auditors, Mr. D. Marby and Mr. J. Pollock; charge of staging was again entrusted to Mr. McEwan; com., Messrs. McLue, McLean, Alexander, Craig, Kerr, Pollock, Graham, Haston, Campbell. First fixture for year will be held in Y.M. Halls April 4, at 7. Singing contest (any cage bird); judge and timekeeper, Mr. McLue. President gave special for winner; entry money and prize money same as table shows. New members invited.—Allan Thomson, Sec.

SCOTTISH NATIONAL C.B.S.

The second annual smoking concert takes place April 11, 7 to 10 p.m., in "The Crown," 52, Lothian-street, Edinburgh. Mr. James Winter, president, will officiate as chairman, and be accompanied on the platform by well-known supporters of the "National" and others. The talent rendered will as usual be of a high standard. Tickets are 6d. each, which can be purchased from any member of committee or at concert hall on the Saturday evening. We sincerely hope to be favoured with a good turn-out of fanciers and friends, to whom we extend a very cordial welcome, feeling certain that all present will have a grand night's treat.—J. R. Meikle, Secretary.

REDCAR C.B.S.

Meeting Crown and Anchor, March 14, Mr. Metcalf chair. The proposed alteration in novice rule was amended to read as follows: A novice shall be one who has not won three 1st prizes at one show, or five 1sts in all, or one 1st in open competition. Proposition at last meeting re competition in members' classes was amended to read: "Unless there are four entries in any class, only half points will be counted in same." Decided that meeting night be changed to every third Wednesday, at 7.30 instead of 8, and that sub. be 3d. every meeting night. Mr. F. Dixon was elected delegate to Fed. meetings, and Mr. R. Grainger elected a member. Will members please note change of meeting night? We hope by this change to get a better attendance at our meetings.—C. L. Mallory, Hon. Sec.

NEWCASTLE (East End) C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, March 25, at the Leighton School, Heaton Road, Mr. McPartling chair. New members elected, Messrs. Lomax, Newcastle; Milne, Newcastle; Marshal, Blyth; and Wake, Walker. Mr. Battye and Mr. Dewar were elected judges for our show, Nov. 27, 28. Mr. Robson then gave his promised lecture on the feeding and keeping of Canaries, which was listened to with great attention by the members, and, judging by the hearty applause, greatly appreciated. Mr. Milne, one of our new members, has promised to give a few remarks on the Norwich Plainhead for the next meeting, so members turn up in good force. A hearty vote of thangs to Mr. T. Robson and Mr. McPartling for presiding, brought the meeting to a close. —J. W. Coutts.

LEYTON C.B.A.

A very successful dramatic performance took place under the auspices of the above society, in Grange Park Hall, Mar. 23, when a large audience witnessed the renowned comedy, "Caste." The hall was filled to overflowing, and the event proved so popular that it has been decided to make it an annual affair. The various roles were excellently sustained by the Misses H. and L. Rundell and E. Grant, and Messrs. P. Curd, P. Rundell, L. Grant, and B. and H. Smith. Mr. P. Smith was responsible for the arrangements, and thanks are also due to Messrs. Forse, sen. and jun., for their valuable help in contributing to the success of the evening. The St. Barnabas play-actors are to be congratulated upon having provided a most enjoyable evening's entertainment.

CREWE O.S.

At a general meeting held at the Angel Hotel, March 18, the president, Mr. P. V. Williams, presented the cup, kindly given by him, to Mr. W. Lawton, whom he congratulated on winning the trophy outright, this being the third year in succession in which he had gained the honour. Mr. Williams delighted the members by offering a further cup for competition, and concluded his remarks with wishing the members a record breeding season. Mr. Lawton feelingly responded, and thanked Mr. Williams for his past favours, and for the promise of a further cup. Several songs, etc., were rendered by the members in good style, and a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by a hearty vote of thanks to the president for his presence that evening. Will local fanciers please note our radius for membership is ten miles.—N. L. Croft, Hon. Sec..

GLASGOW AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

Meeting March 24, Nelson Temperance Hotel, Mr. J. F. Park (president) in the chair. Sec. gave detailed report re case Noble v. Griffiths, re bird which went astray at show, and stated that the association, which had worked up the case for plaintiff, had been successful in gaining sheriff's decision with expenses against W. Griffiths. The question of proceeding further in the matter was considered, and it was ultimately decided to drop the matter, the committee taking into consideration Mr. Griffiths' long illness. Arrangements for annual general were then made, and treasurer was instructed to call up guarantee still unpaid. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—Wm. Hutchison, Sec.

BONNYRIGG C.B.S.

Meeting Forcsters' Arms, March 28, Mr. A. Jardine presided over a good attendance. Members present booking their hens, and the rest of the members were allowed another week to book theirs. Election of judges resulted in the secretary being left with the names of very prominent fanciers, whose names will be published on their accepting. Classification gone on with. Decided to add two variegated classes to Norwich, two to Borders, and one green hen class. New members admitted: Mr. J. C. Johnstone, Mr. Rae, Mr. Dunn, Mr. Curson, Mr. Amoss, Mr. Fox, Mr. Dalgleish. Anyone wishing to join can do so within the next week. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.—Jas. Stirling, Sec., 20, Camp View.

GATESHEAD C.B.S.

Meeting March 11, chairman, Mr. Holden, presided over a fair attendance. Officials elected:—President, Ald. Gillies, J.P.; vice-presidents, T. C. Crawhall, J. L. Martin, Dr. Robinson, Dr. Leech, F. F. Hawkins, J. Ford Maling, T. Almond, W. J. Taylor, J. Joicey, W. Clark; chairman, Alf. Holden; vice-chair, C. C. Petterson; show manager, F. F. Hawkins; auditors, T. C. Crawhall and T. Almond; committee, Messrs. Mackenzie, Moor, Reed, Hodson, Kent, Wellsbury, Peirson, Maddison, Davison, Lawson, Lord, Laidlow, Liddle, Bertram, Mather, Greason, Tindle, Topping, Smith, Rowan, Hooper, McGuire, Butler; sec. and treas., W. Curry, 6, Roxburgh-place, Newcastle; sub-committee of the following was appointed to decide whether the Whitehall-road Store Hall would be suitable for annual show: Messrs. Tindle, Holden, Hawkins, Petterson, Almond, and sec. The following judges were selected for annual show, with another to be elected at a future date: J. C. Barnes, J. Maddison, J. Johnson. A well-known Crest fancier has promised to guarantee the Crest classes. Classification decided. Norwich nine classes, Crests left over, Yorks. 9, Scotch 2, Bords. 9, Greens 4 if we get the Club patronage, Mules, etc. 4, Brit. 13, For. 3, Sell. 5. Following elected members: Messrs. J. Craig (Newcastle), Renoldson and Askew (Gateshead), Kennerson (Sunderland), and Hutchins (Dudley). I will be pleased to send particulars to any fancier who wishes to join us.—W. Curry, Sec.

ARDWICK & MANCHESTER C.B.S.

Meeting and lecture St. Thomas's Schools, Ardwick, March 17, Mr. Robinson presiding over a large attendance. Mr. A. G. Davis, Manchester, elected judge of F.F. show. Mr. Boothman gave a paper on "Norwich, Pairing Up, etc." He said he was about to tell us what he did himself, and also some of his own experiences coupled with other large fanciers. He did not intend to give a long paper, but his idea was to try and teach the novices something, and also to open up a discussion, as he thought the discussion was the most instructive and interesting part of lectures. He believed in cleaning down and distempering the room about January, taking the birds out of the room so that he could go over everything—walls, racks, etc.—using a good disinfectant, such as carbolic acid. Next he believed in giving the cages a good wash, and also painting if needed, so that all would be spick and span for the birds when ready. After the moult he only gave the birds plain Spanish seed with a little summer rape, unless the weather was very cold, when he gave them a little hemp, this being his treatment up to January, when he commenced to give them some mixed seed composed of the following: rape, maw, inga, hemp, teazle, gold of pleasure, and a little linseed, also a piece of mutton suet, until the middle of February, then he commenced to give them a little egg food. In March he added dandelion to their diet. Having got his birds about ready he again gave his nest pans, cages, and racks another painting with carbolic to make sure there were no mites about. Here the lecturer mentioned that a good illustration was given on the front page of CAGE BIRDS the previous week which showed what wanted doing. In pairing up he advised us to give the hen a run in the cage previous to pairing, so that she would be used to the cage. He also believed in running two hens to one cock, pairing them in his mind's eye, as he believed a fancier ought to know which bird would suit another. He would especially advise the novices to pair the best birds together; unless both birds were defective in the same points then he would try to counterbalance them. He always liked type and quality in the hens, and size and colour in the cocks, but he liked also to have shape in the cocks. Here the lecturer showed a pair of birds to illustrate what he had said previously that a fancier ought to know which bird would suit another. Nobody but himself would care to pair them together, yet he stated he would be disappointed if he did not get something good from them, as he knew how they were bred; this, he said, would apply to all varieties. Before concluding his lecture he wished to impress on our mind that one good point in a bird was not everything; it takes more than a good head to make a Norwich, more than length to make a good Yorkshire, and so on in other varieties. In conclusion, he stated he had left plenty of time for discussion, and he hoped the members present would not be afraid of asking questions. Several took advantage of his offer and asked knotty questions, and Mr. Boothman answered them all to their complete satisfaction. Mr. Thorpe proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and was ably seconded by Mr. Holland, and so ended a very instructive lecture.—R. Booth, Press Correspondent.

KING'S LYNN C.C.

Meeting, Mar. 10. After the usual business, Mr. W. Breeze was called upon to give his lecture on "Keeping Canaries Through the Winter Season." Mr. Breeze, in rising, said he had not made any notes, or written a paper on the question, but would make a few remarks as to method of keeping his birds through the winter. This was his ninth season as a breeder, and, of course, at first he followed the usual methods, which from time to time appear in the Fancy Press. During the last three years, however, he had found the following a very good method, which was justified by the results:—1912, first round, 8 hens, set 36 eggs, 4 were clear and 6 dead in shell; 1913, first round, 7 hens, 26 eggs set down, 1 clear, 2 dead in shell, and second round 7 hens, 30 eggs set down, 4 clears, 1 dead in shell; 1914, he is anticipating will be another good year. He chooses his stock for breeding early in the winter season, puts cocks in separate compartments, and hens in flights. Every Sunday morning he mixes up a little boiled rape seed with half a round of bread, adds a little sugar, and gives one teaspoonful per bird. During the season he gives pieces of apple or boiled carrot—i.e., until the end of January, when he commences to give a small quantity of hemp seed once a week, and small quantities of niger twice a week until ready for breeding, and the birds are usually ready for him by the time he is ready for them, about the middle of March. He had that day got his first egg. He always cleaned cages out once a week, using sawdust for the trays or drawboards, and also gave sand in a small tin. By keeping birds clean and in good condition by the foregoing method, he was able to get fertile eggs in the middle of March, and he believes in doing what can be done to-day, not leaving it until some other time. As regards medicine, he found a teaspoonful of Epsom salts in a quart of water, given once during the week, kept the birds healthy. He also obtained a dandelion root, when no frost was about, which he washed, and gave to each bird, a tit-bit which they appeared to relish. He did not wish to suggest that his method was better than any other; neither did he want any fancier present to alter his method if the results were good. He was satisfied with his and anyone was at liberty to try it. The chairman, in thanking Mr. Breeze, said from results mentioned, his method was worth trying, and any fancier who found things not going well might do worse than give it a turn. Several questions were put to the lecturer, and an enjoyable evening was brought to a close.—A. R. Kent, Chairman.

SOUTH WALES AND MON. FED.

The second annual meeting will be held at the Bush Hotel, High Street, Swansea, on Easter Monday, at 2, when representatives are earnestly asked to attend and take part in the selection of dates so as to avoid clashing. Last year the good feeling which prevailed when the dates were decided nearly abolished clashing, there being only one or two cases which could not be settled. The valuable cups put up for competition last season have caused keen enthusiasm, and considerably increased entries, the number of entries being very high. The election of officers and executive will take place, and the names of the winners of the cups in the different sections will be given. A cordial invitation is given societies who have not yet been affiliated (and I am pleased to say there are now very few outside) to send representatives. A decent balance is in hand, and the success of year's working is very gratifying. Any information will be readily given by the secretary, A. A. Gordon McLucas, 48, Rosser-street, Maesycoed, Pontypridd.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

HORNSEY, WOOD GREEN, C.B.S.

The supper will be held at the "Nightingale Hotel," High Road, Wood Green, April 8, at 8.30, not on April 2 as reported in "Cage Birds," of March 21. Tickets 2s. each; fanciers and friends welcome.—P. Brooks, Hon. Sec.

BURNHOPE C.B.S.

The announcement of the annual open show made in the club report published in CAGE BIRDS of March 28 should read annual members' show. The annual subscription is 4s., not 4s. 3d. as printed.—J. W. Robson, Sec.

BARRY F. AND F.S.

Meeting March 11, Bosser's Restaurant, Holton Road, Barry Dock, Mr. W. P. Grecham chair. An excellent lecture by Mr. W. J. Windsor was listened to with great interest. Next meeting, headquarters, Ap. 8, at 7.30.—H. P. Thomas, Sec. (Please note that copy must be sent in duplicate if it is wished that it be published both in "Cage Birds" and "The Poultry World."—Ed.)

USHAW MOOR (Workmen's) CB.S.

Meeting held Mar. 28, Mr. Thos. Hanson chair, with not so large an attendance as might have been, although we went through business in grand style. Judge selected. Decided to leave N.F. show over for awhile, also young bird competition, until we have a larger muster at our meetings. I hope members will turn up in good style next monthly meeting and not leave all to a few willing workers. —A. Teasdale, Sec.

DERBY C.B.S.

Meeting March 28th, Normanton Hotel, Mr. J. Sharman presiding over a large number of members. Decided to revise the rules at the April meeting. Steps are to be taken to increase the membership, which is open to all fanciers within a 10-miles radius of the Market Place. The resignation of Mr. Warham, Sec., was accepted, and his place is taken by Mr. F. W. Jordan, 127, Dairyhouse Road, Derby to whom all communications should be sent.

ACCRINGTON & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Pair show, March 26, at Crown Hotel. Mr. W. Dormer, Rishton, judged, and gave entire satisfaction. CHAMP. NOR.: 1, vhc, A. Hirst; 2, 3, hc, c, W. Crawshaw. CINN.: 1, 2, J. E. Hartup. YORKS: 1, 2, 3, hc, A. Hirst; vhc, W. Crawshaw. NOV. NOR.: 1, hc, A. Whewell; 2, 3, J. Stuttard; vhc, c, D. Harwood. YORKS: 1, 2, 3, vhc, Harwood. PAIRS for MULE BREEDING: 1, 2, 3, W. Patterson.—D. Harwood, Sec.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Meeting Mar. 28, at Flying Dutchman, with a good attendance. The members' show competition for 1914 resulted in the society again offering some valuable specials for each section in addition to the cups, which must be won three times before becoming the property of any member. All those desirous of joining should do so at once, so as to be in time for competition which starts on June 6. Will any member having changed his address and not yet notified me please do so?—W. Helliwell, Sec.

LONDON FEDERATION OF C.B.S.

Meeting at "El Vino," March 7, Mr. Mugford in chair, and representatives from seven affiliated societies present. Mr. Crutcher opened discussion re issuing and keeping the register of closed rings, and endeavoured to show that it should not be entirely in the hands of anyone outside the Fancy. Several members took part in the discussion. It was resolved to further discuss this matter at meeting May 22, and also a scheme for National Federation.—J. C. Birch, Hon. Sec.

ABERSYCHAN C.B.S.

Smoking concert held headquarters March 28, when the room was packed, and many disappointed on account of not being able to get inside. The concert was conducted by Mr. J. Weeks, and carried through in excellent style, as the best local artists in the valley sang, and all gave their services free, so we are sure of a substantial amount in hand for next annual show. One member has sold over £1 worth of tickets, and others sold well up. We also were promised a few half-guineas towards buying a cup for open competition.

SUNDERLAND C.B.S.

Meeting March 28, Mr. Farrer presiding. Decided to hold open show Jan. 15 and 16, 1915, the corresponding date of previous years. Secretary instructed to make arrangements for Miner's Hall, as last year. Mr. J. Johnston (Wallsend) was unanimously elected one of our judges; election of the other judges stands over. Mr. Train was elected a member. Moved that classification for members' portion of open show be gone into at next meeting, as also question of nest feather shows.—J. Peacock, Hon. Sec.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Meeting March 21, Masonic Arms, Mr. J. Sneddon chair. Agreed to drop Grizzle class from Crest section, and introduce hen mule in Brit. sec., coupling the two softbill classes. Sec. instructed to write judges nominated. Next table show, April 1, Burgh Arms Inn, classes, Bramblef. or Chaff. Also agreed to hold annual smoker in Raith Arms Inn, April 11, 7. All members desirous of attending, please notify secretary week previously.—Alex. Robertson.

STANLEY (Victoria) F.F. & C.B.S.

Monthly meeting Mar. 15, Mr. G. Bates chair. Decided that all arrangements for char-a-banc trip be left in hands of sec. and chairman, and that our route be by Hexham, Allendale Town, Alston, Middleton-in-Teasdale, High Farse, Barnard Castle, Bishop Auckland, and back home. Everyone going must have 12s. paid two weeks before date of trip and pay 2s. 6d. on April 19, next meeting night. Moved that Messrs. W. Reed, T. Dixon, J. Riseborough, H. Seely, A. Brown, and H. Johnstone be asked for terms for judging cage birds.—W. Elliott, Sec.

ALTRINCHAM (Open) C.B.S.

Meeting, March 25, Station Cafe, Altrincham. Mr. T. Harrison presided over a splendid attendance. A code of rules, prepared by the committee, was submitted to the members for approval, and was accepted en bloc. Then followed a discussion relating to arrangements for a very interesting run of lectures and debates on birds and bird management, etc., which should encourage and interest all bird lovers, both members and intending members. At next meeting, April 8, a discussion on the feeding of young birds is to take place, which is being looked forward to, and should be very instructive to all, and especially the novice members. New members continue to join. The society has arranged for a country ramble on May 9 in a very interesting part of Cheshire, between Ashley and Mere, and permission has been granted to pass through Mere Park. If favoured with a fine day, the party should spend an enjoyable and interesting time. An invitation has been extended to the Sale and Manchester C.B. Societies.—Chas. Bailey, Hon. Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Successful Annual Gathering.

The annual dinner and distribution of prizes was held at St. George's Restaurant, Mar. 18. An innovation this year was the distribution of the specials of the Liverpool B.B.A., who fell in with the invitation from the Green Club. Over ninety sat down to a good repast. Many noted fanciers and their wives were present. A few old fanciers were absent through illness and pressure of business, and were missed. Dinner over Mr. House mentioned that the Yorkshire fanciers were done at moving "T'hot Pot." "Eh lad, tha shud see Lancic lads packing away, they served 'prentice at job." Some were that full up they could not laugh. After the toast of "The King" had been honoured we set about a rattling good musical programme provided by the Giant Comedian Percy O'Reilly, the celebrated Welshman, and his concert party. Mr. E. Bunner proposed the health of the G.C.A. in a brief speech. He gave a little of its history, and said it was in a more flourishing state than it had ever been before. Responding to this toast Mr. Fred Handley, our esteemed sec., gave a short account of the season's working, which had been very successful, over 40 new members had joined. Mrs. Fred Handley gave out the G.C.A. specials, and Mrs. J. W. Metcalfe the Bird Breeders' specials, both ladies wished the winners every success next year. The principal cup (Yorkshire Green Champion) was won by Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, who mentioned he had been connected with the club for about seventeen years, and this was his first special at the annual dinner, so it had not come out of its turn. Mr. Handley, the runner-up, and medal winner, told Mr. Metcalfe he would have to look to his laurels next year. Messrs. Beason and Young who came in third and fourth, spoke of their success this year, and said they would be heard of next year. The champion Norwich cup was won outright by Mr. Hardy, Wellinghoro; Mr. John Walker took the gold medal for runner-up, this makes his sixth medal, and he would have won the cup but for his bird being claimed by the actual winner. The Novice Cup which has caused such a fight was won by Mr. Bob Brotherton; look out ye champions next year; the runner-up was Mr. Sam Woods, from St. Helens, who was more than pleased as this was his first year in the club; he said this should be a great inducement to make novices take up the Greens; the gold medal was something worth looking at. Mr. Bill Jones, of Birkenhead, came in for the third position, and won the gold medal for most points at open shows for novices. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe proposed "Kindred Societies." Speaking of the good feeling in the Liverpool and Dist. Societies, he asked those present to try and make a distribution like the Bradford men did; it would be a great day for Liverpool when they achieved the scheme. In reply, Mr. Geoff Benson endorsed all Mr. Metcalfe said, and he for one would bring it up at his (Wallasey) society. Mr John Walker toasted the Liverpool B.B.A. He spoke of the good work that had been done in Liverpool by this old and well managed society. The society had hatched practically every successful exhibition in greens and clears in Liverpool. Mr. John Lloyd (sec. L.B.B.A.) thanked Mr. Walker for his kind remarks. Their object was always to bring the novice to the front, the champion could look after himself. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. George Green, who presided in the absence of the president, Mr. V. H. Deacon. Great credit is due to Mr. Fred Handley for the arrangements, which were carried out in first class style.

FOREIGN BIRD EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE.

First annual meeting, Mar. 20, at Royal Mail Restaurant, Noble Street, E.C., and in spite of continuous rain, the following ladies and gentlemen attended: Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Thynne, Messrs. C. Cooper, J. Dewhurst, J. Frostick, F. Knight, C. Newmarch, J. Robson, J. C. Schluter, W. A. Shepherd, A. J. Shipton, Allen Silver, F. Thynne, L. M. Wade, R. J. Watts, and T. R. Trower, the latter gentleman being voted to the chair pending election of officers. Mr. Chas. Cooper, one of the auditors, gave full details of the voting (55 papers), which he handed over for purposes of reference. London officials elected:—Miss Lydia Clare and Mrs. L. M. Thynne, Messrs. C. Cooper, J. Dewhurst, J. Frostick, Rosslyn, Mannering, C. T. Maxwell, J. Montgomery, J. C. Schluter, W. A. Shepherd, A. J. Shipton, Allen Silver, S. W. Townsend, T. R. Trower, and R. J. Watts. Country representatives: Col. Routh, Miss Bousfield, Messrs. J. Goodchild, F. Howe, J. C. W. Meadows, W. T. Rogers, C. H. Row, and W. Swaysland. Officers for 1914-15: Mr. Trower, chair; Mr. J. C. Schluter, treas.; Messrs. C. Cooper and Rosslyn Mannering, auditors; and Mr. Allen Silver, hon. sec. Members of the provincial committee will receive a notice of all meetings and brief details of business, so that they can either attend meetings or confer with the executive. Letters read from Miss R. Alderson, Rev. G. H. Raynor (who kindly sent a donation of 10s. 6d.), Mr. C. Pelham, Sutton, Mr. A. Ezra, Dr. D'Evelyn (San Francisco), Mr. Fletcher (Sheffield), Mr. Treasure (Cheltenham), Rosslyn Mannering (Lurgen, Switzerland), Mr. J. Weir (New Milton), and the sec. of the L.C.B.A. Suggestions embodied in these letters were discussed, and such points as were practicable made note of. Annual report and balance-sheet was presented and duly passed. The balance-sheet shows the substantial amount of £35 4s. 4d. as cash in hand at the end of the first financial year, Feb. 28. The income for the year was £48 3s. 6d., and the expenditure only £12 19s. 2d. It is particularly satisfactory to learn from the report that although the league guaranteed the L.C.B.A. against loss upon the very extensive classification given at the Horticultural Hall show, yet no call was made upon its funds, the entries received in response to this most enterprising venture being sufficient to pay full prize money as guaranteed. Votes of thanks were conveyed to all donors of special prizes, and donations, and to Messrs. Lott, Montgomery, Schluter, Silver, and Thynne, Among the new members were Dr. D'Evelyn, San Francisco, and Mr. J. Robson, the membership now being well over a hundred. The hon. sec., Mr. Allen Silver, started a foundation for four cups, to be competed for at shows held under League's patronage, by giving four half-guineas. On a motion by Mr. Frostick, a cup fund was started, and was quickly responded to, Mr. Trower giving one guinea, Mr. Schluter 10s. 6d., Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Thynne, Mr. Frostick, Mr. Shepherd, Mr. Shipton, and Mr. Watts 5s. each, other amounts being promised. These cups will be won outright during the year—one for most points in Parrotlike birds, one in Seedeaters (otherwise) one for most points in insectivorous birds, and one in honey and nectar-feeding species, the groups to be clearly defined at an early date. A short scheme for probable year's work was outlined, and this together with the slight revision of rules, was left over for discussion at next meeting of the executive.

SIXPENCE

Only will purchase this handy reference guide. Just glance down the list of contents, and you will find there is something there that will interest you. Every article is written by an expert, and in their experiences of failures and successes you will find the way to the top of the ladder. With "Cage Birds" Annual to help you, you will be able to tell what chance your exhibits stand on the show bench, or whether they are worth sending at all. Remember, "Cage Birds" Annual contains the only full list of Cage Bird judges published, and therefore should be in the hands of all Show Officials. No matter what variety of birds you keep, novice or old hand, there is information in this bird-keeper's encyclopaedia of greatest use to you. Send for your copy now or you will be disappointed, as the edition is rapidly being sold out.

N.B.—Some Fanciers had o the disappointed last year, as the entire Edition was sold out within 3 months of date of publication.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the safe delivery of OUR CANARIES from you.

I should like also to say that I am very satisfied with it. I think that all lovers of Canaries should be in possession of a copy. The information it contains I consider to be most valuable and practical to all bird fanciers, as a guide and help in keeping their birds in a healthy condition. I am going in for Norwich Greens, and feel quite safe while I am acting according to the advice in the book, especially when I see the names of all the leading judges and fanciers in the country.

Thanking you, I beg to remain,

Yours faithfully,

ED. JONES.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 1/-, 1/6 2/-, 2/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona-fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

SOFT MOULT

Special notice to all bird lovers. We are anxious that every fancier should know the value of our bird medicines. Ditchfield's Medicines have been used by most leading fanciers for over six years, and are supplied to the London Zoo. They are genuine remedies, which can be given with confidence to all classes of cage birds. Fanciers, we want a trial. We guarantee to return you every penny paid if our medicines fail to give you satisfaction. Special offer: If you have any birds you are relying upon for the breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, try Ditchfield's Tonic Drops. We guarantee you a perfect cure. This medicine is without doubt the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing birds into breeding condition. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are an absolute cure for Not Singing, Soft Moult, Going Light, Egg Binding, Feather Plucking, and Inflammation of the Bowels. In 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For Bronchitis, Wheezing, and Hoarseness, get Ditchfield's special Lung Tonic. It is the grandest Medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For cases of Constitutional Weakness and Debility get Ditchfield's Famous Revivo. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick-me-up for birds before and after showing, Revivo is absolutely unequalled. In 7d., and 1/1 bottles. In cases of severe Diarrhoea use Ditchfield's Famous Diarrhoea Powder, in 7d. and 1/1 bottles. It is perfectly safe, and can be relied upon. When ordering Medicine, kindly mention for what complaint, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free. As an advertisement, we will send two 7d. bottles of any of the above medicines for 1/-, three for 1/6, or two 1/1 bottles any kind for 1/9, three for 2/6. The 1/1 bottles are treble the size of the 7d. bottles. All medicines are sent, post free, per return. All bottles broken in transit replaced. Also two valuable Seed Recipes: How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for Song, given free to all Purchasers of our Medicines. SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of Insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

W. Silk, Glenross, Emsworth. (1527)

THE most up-to-date manual on this popular breed is "Norwich Canaries: How to Breed, Manage, and Exhibit," by C. A. House. It contains a beautiful coloured plate, and many black and white illustrations. In it will be found fullest hints and instructions on all the various points which go to make up a champion Norwich. It deals in a most practical manner with all the various stages of the life of a Norwich from the egg to the show bench, explains fully how to pair up the stock birds, how to feed the young, the art of colour feeding, and the way to wash and prepare birds for show. Do not be without it, post free 1/1½, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

A TRIBUTE FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

FOR SIXPENCE YOU OBTAIN

information that is practical and most valuable, in the 192 pages of this wonderful bird-keeper's encyclopaedia. No matter what variety of birds you keep, whether novice or old hand, just glance down the list of contents and you will find there something of interest to you. Each article is written by an expert, and in their experiences of failures and successes, you will find the way to the top of the ladder. What chance do your exhibits stand on the show bench? Are they worth sending at all? "Cage Birds" Annual will tell you. Another fact of note is that "Cage Birds" Annual contains the only full list of judges of cage birds, and should therefore be in the hands of all Show Officials. Remember, we had to disappoint many fanciers last year, as the entire Edition was sold out in 3 months of date of publication.

Get your copy NOW from your Newsagent or Local Nutshell Agent, or fill up the Coupon, enclose 8d., and send direct to these Offices, and your copy will be sent by return.

ATKINSON & FIRTH

have a few clinking hens to dispose of, will also sacrifice a few pairs; state wants; inspection invited; approval willingly: 403, Rooley Lane, Bradford (1529)

Remember! I Invite You

to come on any day but Sunday and inspect my stock. You need not announce your visit. Come at any time. You will be sure of a hearty Yorkshire welcome, and whether desiring to purchase or not, will be shown round my rooms and stock.

I have 14 large rooms full of grand stock and exhibition birds, also First class Songsters, in every variety; all in the pink of health and condition.

As regards the quality of my stock, I need only say that during the show season just ended they have secured 75 Specials, 89 Firsts, 74 Seconds, and 60 Thirds, and have been shown in open champion classes only, in hottest competition at all the leading shows. They have also won the N.P.C. Champion Trophy, the O.N.P.C. Champion Trophy, 3rd in Y.C.C. Competition, also several Silver Cups and Bowls, Gold and Silver Medals, Diplomas, and numerous other trophies, finishing at the Crystal Palace Show with 4 Firsts, Silver Cup, and other honours.

I have also supplied birds that have won highest honours for my clients, including winners of this year's Palace show, in very strong classes. I have letters filed here for anyone to see in proof of this; also a large number of letters from fanciers who have bred winners from stock bred and sold by me.

These are FACTS, needing no comment. They speak for themselves, and they cannot be disputed. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- to 100/- per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain of winners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand cobby hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, with good position and in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each. Erect racy hens, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched breeding pairs, personally selected and ready for immediate breeding, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- per pair. Also a few special pairs bred from open winners and personally matched by me for breeding winners, at 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. I am in a special position to give amateurs a good start with the best blood in the Fancy, or to supply the old hand with good stock birds, either Cocks or Hens, at a reasonable price.

CRESTS AND CREST-BRED.

Crested Cocks:—10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Crested Hens, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Crest-bred Cocks:—8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Crest-bred Hens: 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/5, 15/-, 20/-. Matched Pairs:—15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- per pair.

PURE SEIFERT ROLLERS.—See my Special Announcement under Rollers in last week's issue.

MULING HENS, FEEDING HENS, ETC. ETC.

Grand, healthy, Sib. hens, for muling, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each.

FEEDING HENS.—Good sound healthy feeding hens, 3/-, 3/6 each. No breeder should be without. Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases.

I have also a splendid selection of Border Fancies, Scotch Fancies, etc., etc.

KINDLY REMEMBER that any fancier requiring stock is invited to come and make his own selection. To those unable to come, I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the kingdom at my sole risk. I will send on 7 or 10 days' approval anywhere, and will guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer, or cash returned in full.

EASY PAYMENTS can be arranged to suit the convenience of genuine fanciers who are not in a position to pay cash. Send a postcard for my free illustrated catalogue, containing much useful information concerning the cage bird hobby.

BUDGERIGAR breeders. Don't forget that best hatching results are only obtained when using my "Improved Secure" coconut husk nests, which have withstood all competition for over 25 years, and still remain unequalled. I originated and imported husk nests years before some dealers started business. Don't be misled by paper puff. Cheap, clumsily made substitutes, which fall to pieces in use are dear at any price, causing disappointments, losses, and failures. Having bred thousands of Budgerigars, I know their requirements. Am not a bird dealer, and don't keep a bird shop. Parks, zoos and dealers supplied, 4s. 6d. dozen; smaller quantities, 5d. each. No second quality. Note changed address, larger premises: Harper, 26, New-st., Dudley. (1524)

TALKING GLUE

ROTHERHAM C.B.S.

Meeting, Mar. 28, Mail Coach Inn; Mr. W. Brotherton, chair. Business was speedily got through, so that members could hear the lecture by Mr. Bagnell. Upon rising, Mr. Bagnell started by saying he always liked as big a cage as possible, the size of his cages being 24ins. long, 18 high, and 12 deep. He also said that he believed in cleaning cages out as often as possible. He also believes in giving mixed seeds when getting birds in condition for breeding. He generally put his birds up about Mar. 21, and when getting his birds up he mixed 2lbs. of ground rice wth 2lbs. of soft sugar, and mixes it with his egg food. He found it soon brought his birds in good condition. When breeding, he liked to put two buffs together if he had a suitable pair, as he had had some very good results from this mating. He liked both birds to be marked, the cock a good size, and the hen medium size, but full of quality. He gave some good advice to the novices, telling them to be sure to get as good a pair as possible to start with, as they only cost the same as bad ones to keep. When he started he bought one pair and bred five young ones; the next year he bred 24, and sold all of them as they did not suit him. He had seen some good ones. He then bought two pairs and bred a vhc bird at the Palace show the first year; he had kept improving ever since. Speaking on colour-feeding, he said he mixed the colour-feed with the same food he fed his young ones on. He put 2lb. of hot with 4lb. of cold pepper, as he believed in using plenty of hot, as it made them a better colour, and they kept the colour better. After the lecture, questions were asked, which were very ably answered. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Bagnell. We should like more members and friends to come to meetings; we shall have another good lecture in due course.—Taylor and Bailey.

A few hens may be kept on quite a small piece of ground, yet, if carefully fed, will supply the household with eggs right throughout the year.

"THE POULTRY WORLD"

SOWERBY BRIDGE C.B.S.

Adjourned annual meeting, Mar. 26, Wharfe Hotel, Mr. E. Sutcliffe presiding over a good attendance. Balance sheet, showing a balance on the right side was adopted. Officers elected: Pres., E. Sutcliffe; Vice-pres., F. Walker; Treas., E. Crossley; Sec., G. Mitchell. Hearty thanks were given to the retiring officers. Syllabus for 1914, and 1915 was drawn up, and will soon be in the hands of the printer, and it shonld prove attractive to the fanciers in the district. The prizes offered for competition should draw some good entries at the members' shows. Any fancier wishing to join should send in their names to the Sec., or any member, who will give any information required.—G. Mitchell, Sec., 19, Charlotte Street, Beech, Sowerby Bridge.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Meeting, new headquarters, "Victoria Hotel," Charterhouse Street, E.C., April 4. Mr. R. J. Pretty presided. Things are looking very promising judging by the remarkable attendance of members at our meetings. The new room is one of the best we have ever been able to secure. This of latter years has unfortunately been a stumbling block for the society, but owing to the efforts of our old friend, Mr. Gilbert, and one or two other members, we hope to have succeeded in surmounting the difficulty. Several old members have rejoined us, and we have no less than twelve specials offered, to be won at young bird show, July 18. Before this, we hope to have several interesting lectures. Intending members wishing to compete for the specials can do so by joining at once.—G. G. Stubbs, Sec. (77, William Street, Regent's Park, N.W.).

NORTHERN BORDER AND S.F.C.C

A grand social and presentation of prizes was held Mar. 18, at the Roma Cafe, Grainger Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. There was a good attendance. The prizes were presented by our late pres., Mr. W. F. Barr. The clock and bronzes were won by J. Nicholson, for most points over patronage shows. Knives and forks won by Mr. J. Johnstone, for second most points, were given by Mr. Barr. In the novice section, the gold medal for most points was won by Mr. W. Howell; set of china, presented by Mr. A. Parkin, by Mr. W. Tallantyre, for second most points. The social part of the evening was a treat, some really good talent being there. Songs rendered by Mr. Luke, Mr. Sewell, Mr. Laws, and Mr. Walton. Mr. Tonks played a solo on his mouth-organ, Mr. Brown on his banjo, and Mr. Reay on his violin. The treat of the evening was Mr Rudd's concertina solos.—Monthly meeting, April 1, Pillar's Cafe, Mr. W. P. Scaith in the chair. Discussion took place on classes required for patronage shows; decided to leave them over to a fuller meeting. Mr. T. Robson is to be asked to lecture at our next meeting. Subs. now due.—M. C. Potts, Sec.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

Meeting, Railway Hotel, April 1, Mr. Leo. Hodgson presiding, Two new members made, Mr. Pownall and Mr. Norwood. The society are offering some exceptionally good specials for competition this year. Open section: 1st, gold medal, value £1; 2nd, medal, value 10s. 6d.; 3rd, pair of boots, value 12s., 2nd to have preference over 3rd if required; 4th, medal, value 7s. 6d.; 5th, box of cigars and bottle of whisky, value 3s. 6d., for most points in cinnamon-marked classes. Novice section: 1st, gold medal, value 15s.; 2nd, medal, 7s. 6d.; 3rd, pair of boots, value 7s. 6d.; 4th, fountain pen, value 3s. 6d.; and bottle of wine for most points in green and cinnamon-marked classes. There is also the scaled handicap—open section valun £1, and novice section value 10s. 6d. There will be given a bottle of whisky for most entries in last two shows, and a special for most points last show, and the Laisterdyke cup. Entries will be taken on the Friday night instead of Saturday, day of show, and all members who cannot bring their entries can forward them by post to reach me on the morning day of show on receipt of P.C. I will forward particulars to anyone who wishes to join.—W. H. Symes, 283, Back Lane, Bradford.

WEST CALDER C.B.S.

First annual show, Masonic Hall, Feb. 28. There was a fair turn-out of about 160 exhibits. Quality was good, some fine specimens being on exhibition. Mr. MacMillan, sec., Mr. S. Peden, the pres., and a hard-working committee had everything in apple-pie order. Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) judged, and his awards seemed to satisfy everyone. Messrs. Wight and Eason won sp. most points.

Twitterings.

The usual meeting of Wakefield O.S. will not be held on Saturday, April 11th, owing to the Easter holidays; members please note. —J. Sherwood sec.

We hear from Mr. W. Summers, sec., that Mr. Arthur Wake, Middlesbrough, and Mr. J. Johnstone, Wallsend, will judge the Morpeth and District C.B.S. show on Oct. 10th next.

Mr. D. Smyth, hon. sec., South Co. Dublin C.B.A. writes that Mr. G. Wilson (Frizington) will judge British, and Mr. J. Wilcock (Bradford) Canaries at the annual show December 9-10.

We have decided to alter the date of our annual open show from January 16th to January 23rd, to avoid clashing with Sunderland show, writes Mr. Geo. Reed, Sec. Brandon Colliery C.B.S.

Accept my sincerest thanks for inserting the sketch of my unevenly-marked yellow Yorkshire in CAGE BIRDS. Besides a first prize at Dover, it also won first at Windsor, Hastings, and Tonbridge. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success, which it undoubtedly merits.—E. P. Rayner (Dover).

Result of Ashton-under-Lyne and Dist. O.S. grand Easter prize distribution: 371, 346, 830, 297, 258, 213, 3,164, 2,004, 3,925, 928, 3,972, 562, 3,690. Prizes to be claimed within seven days from J. R. Colville, watchmaker and jeweller, Old-street, Ashton-under-Lyne, and paid for at the charge of 1d. each.—(Advt.)

I duly received cheque for £3, also the diploma for A.O.V. section, won at the Palace Show. I have great pleasure in thanking you for the same. I am very pleased with the diploma, which is very neat, and a great credit to the artist. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success, as I am a constant reader of it. I hope that next season you will bring out something that will take the interest of fanciers, and prove as successful as the coupon shows.—Thos. Proctor (Blackburn).

OBITUARY.

It is with deepest regret, writes Mr. Jas. Napier, Sec., Colinton and Currie Parishes O.S., that I have to announce the sad loss of one of our members, Mr. Jas. P. Rodger, in the death of his beloved wife. I am sure all fanciers will join me in sympathising with Mr. Rodger. Mrs. Rodger passed away in the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary, April 1. It is only a few years since they were married, and she was quite a young woman.

"Bird Notes" for March, the journal of the Foreign Bird Club, opens with an account by Mr. B. H. Scott of the doings of his birds in his aviaries at Ipswich. Mr. A. Whistler continues his "Some Punjab River Birds," and gives a diary of a month among the birds of the Jhelum district. Mr. S. Williams writes delightfully of his Ducorp's Cockatoo, the article being illustrated with two fine reproductions of photographs by the author. "The Birds on Bunea Vista Lake" is continued by Mr. W. Shore Baily, and Mr. H. Meakin writes on the breeding of Silverbills.

The April No. of "British Birds," Witherby and Co., High Holborn, 1s. monthly, opens with a review of "Life of Ewen Kennedy," beautifully illustrated with coloured drawings showing the changes in the colour of the bill and eyes of the Lesser and Great Black-backed Gulls at various ages, and photographic reproductions showing some of the changes in the plumage of the Lesser. Mr. P. G. Ralfe contributes some "Manx Ornithological Notes." Mr. Miller Christy writes on "The Crossing of the Bill of the Crossbill." A number of notes referring to the great incursion of Waxwings which occurred during the past winter are given, and the various letters completing the number are, as usual, very interesting.

A St. James's Park Beauty.

A Swan of the black Australian species is causing much interest among visitors to the ornamental water in St. James's Park, London. The bird has for the past two weeks been sitting on a clutch of eggs. As though seeking the protection of her native land, she has appropriately chosen a nesting-site under the Australian gateway, opposite the Victoria Memorial. The Swan has commenced her domestic duties well in advance of her English cousins, the latter having only just begun to build their nests. It is to be hoped that this beautiful feathered Colonial will succeed in rearing her brood of dusky cygnets.

A HOLIDAY REMINDER.

Owing to the Easter Holidays, CAGE BIRDS has had to go to press one day earlier than usual this week; thus any notices, advertisements, &c., which reached us after Tuesday mid-day have had to be held over until our next number.—Editor.

Ilkeston's New Secretary.

I have resigned the office of secretary to the Ilkeston and Dist. C.B.S., and all further correspondence must be sent to my successor, Mr. G. Siddown, 22, Taylor-street, Ilkeston, writes Mr. T. Smith.

Who Needs an Aviary Attendant?

We know of a well-recommended and experienced man who desires a situation to look after birds, aviaries, etc., and would make himself generally useful. We will forward any letters on to him.

Open Show for East Lothian.

Mr. J. Fairgrieve, Sec. East Lothian C.B.S., writes that they have decided to hold their annual open show October 17. Judges: Scotch Fancies, Mr. W. Rodger, Colinton; Borders and Brit., Mr. J. W. Bruce, Coldstream; Nor. and For., Mr. J. Winter, Edinburgh.

A Sixteen Year-old Bullfinch.

My Bullfinch, which died a few weeks ago, was caught by birdlime in 1900, writes Miss K. Wilson to "Country Life," when, as near as could be judged, she was two years old, so that if she had lived until May or June she would have been sixteen years old. This is, I believe, a very great age for a member of this species, which is always regarded as short lived. Before her death her feathers turned black nearly all over her body.

Birds Learn Poaching.

Blackbirds, Robins, and Wagtails have taken to breaking the thin ice over the Solway Firth hatchery ponds, and poaching fish, says Mr. W. H. Armstead, of the Hatcheries. A Blackbird having made the experiment with success, its example was followed by hundreds. On the return of the genial weather they went back to their natural food, but the lesson was not lost on them, and now they poach as soon as ice is formed. A Robin next introduced the game to his fellows, and from watching it the Wagtails learnt the trick.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

During the Easter Holidays the offices of CAGE BIRDS will be closed from Friday to Monday next inclusive.

Will Advertisers, and Correspondents generally, kindly note that all matter intended for NEXT WEEK'S ISSUE should be posted early, to reach us on Tuesday, April 14 at latest (or Wednesday first post).

An Early Nightingale.

The Rev. Edward E. Eddowes, rector of Barham, Suffolk, heard a Nightingale in his garden on Sunday evening, March 29th—a fortnight earlier than usual, he says.

A Society at Spalding for Boston.

I noticed the letter from a Spalding gentleman, and should be pleased to hear of a society being formed, writes Mr. J. Dring, Billinghay; but Spalding is too far off for me; Boston would suit better, although I almost feel myself too old (70) to join a society.

A "Mass Meeting" of Starlings.

Every evening just now the top of Nelson's Column, Trafalgar-square, is taken possession of by a multitude of Starlings, says "L. D." in the "Daily Sketch." They come from all parts of the compass. It is most interesting to watch them assemble and to listen to their twittering. I wonder how many readers have noticed them?

Someone Deserves Punishment.

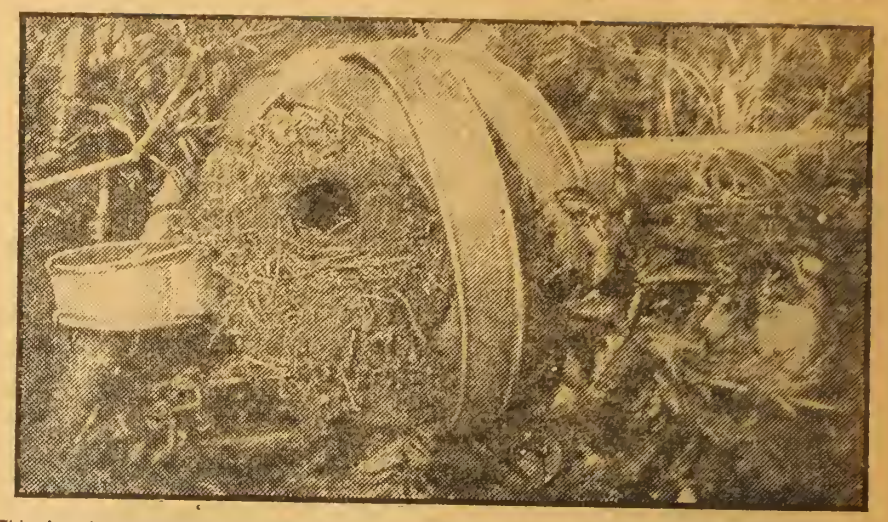
Going into my garden on March 26th, I was delighted to discover a nest of young Thrushes. On March 28th I went into my garden again, and much to my surprise someone had been with a gun; the parent bird lay shot dead by the side of the nest, and the four young Thrushes had died of starvation in the nest.—Fredk. Sheppard (Sanswick, Bath).

An Invalid's Companion.

I am an invalid, and my Canary was given me as a companion. He has turned out the brightest and most interesting companion I ever had. I am very much alone, but sometimes I get someone to close the window, and then I open the cage door, and if he chooses he flies out. He has learnt to know the cage is his house, and always returns to it; it is most amusing to watch his manœuvring to get into the cage when he is on the wrong side away from the door. Miss E. Tracey (Sunderland).

For Amateur Actors.

Amateurs have long complained, and with reason, of the high fees charged for the performance of sketches, one act plays, etc. They will therefore be glad to learn that Mr. Francis Grilliths (34, Maiden Lane, London, W.C.) has issued four volumes, each containing four plays and sketches by the author of "A Lucky Dog," at 1s. per volume, and that the fee for performing any of these is only 3s. 6d. a time. The pieces are varied in nature, and the books should supply a want that has been long felt by clubs and societies throughout the country.



This charming photograph of a Wren's nest, snugly ensconced in a disused watering-can left lying in a hedge bottom, was sent to us by Mr. A. L. Bonas (Castleacre).

The Goldfinch at Home and in Captivity.

By C. RICHARDSON (Ripon).

Interesting notes penned by a lover of our most beautiful British Finch.

THE Goldfinch or, as sometimes called, the Thistle Finch, is one of the best known and most beautiful of our native birds. Perched on a fruit tree for which the bird seems to have a special fancy the male bird makes the orchard ring again with its beautiful song and continues until the month of August, with the interruption of the period during which it is devoting itself to the care of its young.

Being a lover of this beautiful bird for a great number of years and having had ample means of studying them both in captivity and wild state, I have been particularly struck many times with the large amount of fertile eggs they produce, very rarely indeed have I found an unfertile egg in their nests. I cannot say the same of other granivorous birds, such as Linnets, Canaries, etc., and the only reason I can give is that the bird is naturally active and laborious, practically all the year round.

Mules bred from the Goldfinch and Canary will readily pair up with each other and go through all forms of mating, but it is open to doubt whether the eggs ever prove fertile.

In autumn Goldfinches generally go together in flocks, and can often be seen busy feeding on their native seeds such as thistle, groundsel, etc., and no prettier sight could be wished for than to see several Goldfinches clinging to one large thistle, their brilliant colours combining to make a lovely picture.

A Fault when Domesticated.

The male bird, when paired with the hen Canary, has a most destructive disposition. He will wait his first opportunity, and either destroy the eggs or the young. It is a very good plan therefore to remove him every night when the hen goes to nest, then remove the egg and place him back with her, repeating this until the hen lays her full complement of eggs, then remove him altogether and let the hen finish her duties with the young.

Some hens are very shy, and often afraid of the male Goldfinch when paired together, and they will not give the breeding call. The following plan is a good one, and I can specially recommend it, for, personally, I have never known it to fail. When both birds are in breeding condition place them together, then place a cock Canary in an all wire cage and let the cage hang quite close to the pair, then you will find that the hen Canary will naturally call to the cock Canary, and the Goldfinch, if in fine breeding condition, will very quickly act as substitute. This plan was imparted to me by a very old Scotch fancier many years ago, and, as I have already stated, I have never known it to fail. As a breeding conditioner I find that dandelion, thistle, and gold of pleasure seeds are by far the best.

With careful attention a Goldfinch will live for very many years. It is a good plan to vary their seeds occasionally in captivity, and give a small quantity of linseed, maw, inga, and sunflower; it will be found that some of these will act as a splendid tonic, and maladies that they may be subject to in captivity will be avoided. Fortunately the above seeds can now be purchased at any small seed shop. It will be found that variation of food occasionally preserves them in good health and lengthens their days considerably.

At the present time there are many ways and means of capturing the Goldfinch. In some counties where the Finches are to be found in large numbers at different parts of the season bird-trapping is quite legal. Most of the professional bird-trappers have some little plan of their own, but the general plan is to place the decoy bird in a brace surrounded by a clap net amongst the natural food. Then when a quantity of birds are enticed down the trapper pulls the line and the clap net closes over the birds with lightning rapidity. The majority of Goldfinches are caught in this manner.

The Old Plan.

In other counties where the Finches are not so numerous the old-fashioned plan of trapping them by bird-lime is resorted to. This plan is to get fine thin willows about a foot long, then rub them well with bird-lime, place them lightly on to some seeding weed, the thistle for preference, and place the decoy Goldfinch in cage covered lightly over with grass under the thistle, then when the birds alight on thistle they are immediately held by the willows.

After they are caught the most particular part comes in, viz., getting them on to seed. Inexperienced bird-lovers through not knowing how to treat them when newly caught are in danger of losing their birds. The following plan is a good one, and it will be found very few indeed take any harm if the treatment be followed. When the bird is newly caught put it in a small cage, say 14 by 12, in company with a steady bird, in a very quiet room. Place a dish, with a liberal supply of niger seed and a small quantity of crushed hemp, and a few heads of thistle, with a small glass of water, all inside the cage, and the bird, or birds, settle down to the new home. Then after a few days break them off gently by placing their water outside, then follow with the seed. I have used this plan for a number of years and invariably have good luck. But whatever little trouble one may experience in keeping the Goldfinch in good health is recompensed many times over by its lively company and brilliant song.

The Old Shildon Workman's Club C.B.S. has engaged Mr. Stanger, of Pelton Fell, and Mr. W. Reid, of Sunderland, to judge the open show on Dec. 4 and 5, writes Mr. T. Parnaby, the sec.

Bishop Auckland and District C.B. Society has been obliged to change date of annual show from November 18 to December 2, having failed to secure the Town Hall for the original date.—P. Elliott, sec.

The Patronage of Specialist Clubs.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following clubs should apply to the respective secs.: Northern Border and S.F.C.C., M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle; Welsh C.B.C., A. E. Brown, 66, Clare Street, Merthyr Tydfil, closing date April 18; Midland Counties Y.C.C., W. Wells, Helmside, Erdington, Birmingham.

This Thursday (April 9th) Mr. G. E. Weston lectures before the Queen's Park C.B.A. on "Some Points about Mule Breeding." Commence at 8.15 p.m., at headquarters, the Emmanuel Hall, Harrow Road, W. All fanciers invited.

New Sec. at Sowerby Bridge.

I have resigned my position as secretary of the Sowerby Bridge C.B.S., writes Mr. A. Sutcliffe, and Mr. George Mitchell, 19, Charlotte Street, Beech, Sowerby Bridge, has been appointed. All future correspondence should be addressed to him. I wish to thank all members who have so willingly helped me to make the society a success. I trust all will extend a helping hand to Mr. Mitchell, and then I am sure that in him they will have a capable and energetic secretary, and the society will be a continued success.

THE BREEDING OF LINNET-CANARY HYBRIDS.

By Clifford E. Newby, Detroit, U.S.A.

An American Fancier gives some advice that can be profitably followed by English Breeders of Mules.

AS the mating of a Linnet to a Canary is the one usually chosen by the novice at the commencement of Mule and Hybrid breeding I purpose to relate my method of feeding, breeding, and general management to gain good and satisfactory results, for, as the "harvest time" is quickly drawing near for the Mule breeder his mind will naturally be dwelling on thoughts of good results.

To get these good results one must have, in the first place, good birds. Be sure your Linnet is a sound and healthy bird, large, and with plenty of substance to his body. I am not a lover of the "long type" of Linnet, but much prefer the "thick-set" ones. By thick-set I mean a Linnet with good broad shoulders and a nice round chest, and, last, but not least, a good broad head, carried in a good position on the neck. Your Linnet must also be a rich nut-brown in colour, if you want good coloured youngsters.

I don't advise the mating of Linnets which have bad tail and wing carriage, as these defects are then more liable to appear in the young Mules. A Linnet which is nicely and richly coloured, and is of a good Norwich type makes an ideal specimen for the fancier. I advise beginners to use house-moulted birds to breed with, although any bird which can be got into breeding condition properly is very simple to breed with, and even an unsteady Linnet if in the right condition for breeding should pair easily enough.

The Choice of the Hen.

As to the hen Canary, I advise the novice to obtain a good bird of the Norwich type, and a yellow for preference. Good results can, however, be got from a good Yorkshire hen, although I strongly advise the Norwich type if possible. Let your hen Canary be perfect in carriage and shape, and let her have plenty of "show" so peculiar to many of the gentler sex. She must be a good coloured bird or else good youngsters are less likely to be obtained.

I want here to tell the breeder of limited means that he can, if he will study the birds he intends keeping, obtain good birds at a very limited cost. Pay a visit to a dealer's, go over the birds very closely, and pick out those you think will be suitable for you, in other words, those which seem to approach your ideal specimens. A lot of priceless information, too, can be obtained from the books published at the offices of Cage Birds. If a man studies his birds wisely and with good judgment, with these books as his guide he cannot go wrong.

I have proved that a Linnet pairs better to the hen Canary when he has been kept to himself during the winter.

Getting the Linnet into Condition.

To get my Linnets into breeding condition I make a stock mixture containing the following seeds, in proportions as follows: 1 part summer rape, 1 part Spanish Canary, ½ part teazel, ¼ part winter rape or mustard. I give them this stock mixture ad lib. I also give them a mixture of equal parts linseed and best hemp, three times weekly; but just a small amount of these two seeds, as they are to my mind fattening. My special "conditioner" contains the following seeds: 1 part dandelion, 1 part thistle, 1 part gold of pleasure, 1 part maw, ½ part plantain.

These seeds should be given in a separate hopper twice weekly. At most bird stores a fancier can obtain a wonderful collection of wild seeds. Their names are unknown to me, but I find they are very useful for getting a Linnet into condition. A Linnet fed on the above lines should soon be in full song, and "singing his head off."

Now, as to the hen Canary, I give a plain Spanish Canary seed diet as a stock food. About three times weekly I give her a good feed of summer rape, in a separate hopper. I also give her as a tit-bit a mixture of niger, maw, and gold of pleasure about twice weekly. Egg-food can be given to the hen at this period occasionally. Green foods must now be given to both Linnet and Canary ad lib. Young tender dandelion leaves, and groundsel make ideal green foods, with shepherd's purse, lettuce, and watercress.

A thing a novice must do is to give all his birds good grit ad lib. I find that most so-called "bird sands" do not contain half sufficient grit to keep birds in proper health, so I break up oyster shells into small pieces, or else obtain good mortar rubbish. Even egg shells dried and broken up make excellent grit, but be sure to give your birds plenty of it.

All birds must be supplied with water in clean pots twice daily, during summer months for drinking purposes. A shallow pan containing slightly salted water, placed on the bottom of the cage, makes an ideal bath for your birds. Where the writer is located (America) his birds have not bathed lately owing to the temperature being down below zero, but he keeps a supply of luke-warm water in their cages for any who fancy a bath before it turns into ice.

THE . . . GRAND . . ECLECTUS.

This fine member of the Parrot family—a hen—has won many first prizes, including Leeds, Luton, Manchester, Reading, Sheffield and the Scottish National Shows. It is owned by Mr. R. P. Bufton, of Llandrindod Wells, who supplies the drawing.

Modern Crests and Crestbreds for the Novice.

By THOMAS LANE (Barnstaple).

Provided there is no "scrapping," and all seems plain sailing I put in the nest pan, which is lined, giving them a bit of moss and cow-hair to start with. I do not give them too much at first, as it is only waste of good material until they have settled down. During the time they are paired up I give them a little egg-food and also a good pinch of inga seed to prevent egg-binding, not omitting a dandelion leaf daily until the hen lays.

Should you find a hen sitting closely in the corner of the cage with her eyes closed and breathing heavily it would be a case of egg-binding. But do not be alarmed. Keep quite cool. Lift the bird gently, put her in the palm of your hand and take her downstairs to the fire. Now dilute a little best brandy with an equal amount of water and give the bird three or four drops. This is best given with a thin tea-spoon. Open the beak gently with the edge of the spoon and tilt the contents down her throat. Never mind if you are a teetotaller—it will save the bird's life. You have found her quite cold; this will revive her.

Relieving the Hen.

Now get a show cage and, putting in a piece of warm flannel, lay the bird upon it. Put the cage by the fire and let it stay there five minutes to warm up. Don't try to awaken the hen; she will not open her eyes. During the time she is resting, get ready a jug of hot water and some olive oil. Now take the hen in your left hand again, holding the vent over the mouth of the jug. Lift the tail with the right hand, and steam her for eight or ten minutes, testing the heat meanwhile with your finger, otherwise you may scald her.

Anoint the vent with olive oil, applying it with a fine camel hair brush, then put her back in the cage. Remove one of the perches (leave the one farthest from the door) and put the cage before the fire. In a short time the bird will liven up and hop on to the perch. The odds are two to one that she will lay either almost directly or in the morning. I may say that I myself have never had a hen which laid the same day as it was steamed. These are my methods and I have never lost a hen since I adopted this treatment.

Setting the Eggs.

When the hens have laid, I remove the eggs each morning, replacing them with dummies. On the evening of the third day I put the eggs back into the nest, having previously well dusted the nest with Keating's Insect Powder. I ought to mention here that the eggs should be turned each morning during the time they are kept out of the nest. I separate the cock from the hen with the wire slide while she is sitting to prevent the hen being molested, and also to keep her quiet, as some hens will not sit unless the cock is in sight.

During incubation I give the hens Canary seed with a good pinch of maw seed at intervals to prevent nesting diarrhoea, not forgetting a little mixed seed twice a week to keep up their spirits. A day or two before the eggs are due to hatch I give a little egg food made from egg and bread crumbs, also mixed seeds, but no hemp. I ought to have mentioned that I cover the sand trays with a good layer of clean, gritty sand, and that I put a lump of cuttlefish bone between the wires for the birds to peck at.

The Food of the Young.

When the young are hatched I give the yolk of egg mixed with biscuit; this I give in small quantities to induce the hens to come off and feed when the young are a few days old. I give egg and biscuit in the morning, and egg and bread crumbs in the afternoon, also a leaf of young lettuce or dandelion and young groundsel tops daily. I increase the allowance of bread and biscuit as the youngsters get older, and also add a little hemp to the seed mixture.

Let the Cock-bird Help.

In about ten days I introduce the cock if he is good tempered, to help feed the young. When the latter are about four weeks old I divide the youngsters from their parents (or earlier if they are being plucked) with a wire slide. I give them egg food and crushed seed until they are able to crack seed for themselves, which they are generally able to do at about five or six weeks old; they will also be fed by their parents. During the time when parted off particular attention must be paid to their wants; the sand trays I withdraw once, or even twice, daily, and remove all stale food, dirt, and excrement. The feeding and drinking utensils I keep scrupulously clean, for if neglected the young birds are liable to get inflammation. I give them clean water daily, adding a few drops of Parrish's Chemical Food, which stops them drinking too much; some of them, like confirmed tipplers, never know when they have had enough.

TIMELY HINTS.

Two prizes of 2s. 6d. each (cash or our books to value, at option of winners) given weekly to the senders of the best two Hints. All hints must be WRITTEN ON POSTCARDS, with sender's name and address at foot.

Home-made Cage Stain.

Get your chemist to mix the following: 1 pint methylated spirits, 2ozs. shellac, and one pennyworth of Bismarck Brown. It is best to let it stand two days before using (cost 1s.).—C. J. Roberts (Corwen).

A Cake to Rear Young Canaries.

10oz. flour, 3oz. sugar, 2 eggs, 2oz. butter, 2oz. lard, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, and a little milk to mix. I have reared young Canaries on this; it has proved very good and cheap.—Mrs. W. Brown (Ackworth).

To Provide Insects in an Aviary.

A good way to provide insects in an aviary is to let a small heap of green-food stand in the flight for three or four days, and then move it and turn it over. The birds will then find an abundance of insects. This is most useful for hybrid breeders, and will keep the birds in the pink of condition.—R. Blake (Ross).

Relieving egg-bound Hens.

In cases of egg-binding, procure an ordinary glass bottle with neck about half-inch diameter. Place it into pint pot, half full of hot water. Next get your hen into the left hand, placing her vent in the bottle neck with a slight pressure, when the hot air in the bottle will draw out the egg in a few seconds. I have used it a good number of occasions, and never known it to fail.—J. Davis (Houghton-le-Springs).

Defeating the Red Mite.

(Winner of Half-Crown Prize.)

An effectual remedy for keeping red-mite out of nests and from perch ends is when making paste to fasten nest linings in, to mix Jeyes' Fluid with water and mix the paste with this. Stick the pads in with this paste. I also dip the perch ends into the paste, and I find it keeps the red-mite away better than anything I have tried. I have recommended it to several fanciers, and it has proved to be successful for them.—R. Peart, 15, Kay Street, Stanley.

Preparing the Breeding Cages.

Now that preparations are being made for the breeding season, the following hint may be of help to fanciers. Get from your oilman sufficient Myresco or Duresco, the paste water-paint (not powder) to do all your cages. You can get any shade required. Mix this with thin glue size in a jam jar and boil, placing the jar in a pan of water. Stir well and put on cages while hot. It dries quickly with an enamel-like gloss, leaves no smell, will not chip off, and is much cheaper than paint or enamel. Before applying, the cages must be well cleaned, and any old lime, etc., be scraped off. If any cracks or crevices want filling, make a stiff paste of glue and whiting; this will set like pot. The water-paint must be applied with a soft brush, spreading it thinly with an even surface.—W. E. Wilson, 6, Beech Street, Lancaster.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

LAYING FROM PERCH (Novice.—I am afraid you can do nothing to remedy this, except covering the cage floor with a good layer of sawdust or oat-husk, to prevent the eggs being broken, and having saved them this misfortune, place them under another hen or hens with eggs just about to commence sitting to be hatched and reared, you omit to say whether the hen built a nest or not, or anything about her age. If a young hen, it is quite likely that she may nest in a more normal manner next time. If she seems to object to the place you selected for the nest-pan, you had bette rhumour her next time, when it is not at all unlikely that she may take to the nest all right. Do not interfere with her arrangements more than is absolutely unavoidable, make her a cosy nest on the evening of the day the third egg is laid, if she has not made a nest herself, and keep a china egg in the nest whilst laying is in progress. If this does not bring her to a more reasonable frame of mind, write again, and give full particulars of your management, the kind of nests and material you use, and whether the hen makes any attempt to build the nest herself or not.

SOILED PLUMAGE (E. T.). You must have applied the oil either too liberally or unskilfully to materially grease the plumage. As you have already returned the hen to the cock to go on breeding I do not advise you to attempt washing her. In skilled hands this would do no harm, but as I take it you are not skilful at the job you might very easily destroy all your chances of breeding this season by attempting it. Your best course is to leave things as they are, except that you might remove the most unsightly greasiness by catching the bird and dusting the part very liberally with French chalk or Fuller's earth, working it well into the base of the feathers, hold the bird a few minutes until this has had time to absorb the oil from the feathers, and then brush it out with a soft camel-hair brush. Repeat the procedure several times, and you will find that a considerable proportion of the greasiness has disappeared. After this give a bath in the usual way, when the weather is suitable. When she is next going to nest add 20 drops of chemical food to the drinking water, four or five times a week, and sprinkle a little crushed old mortar on the sand. To prevent, or reduce the chances of, disappointment you should get a second hen which is a suitable match for the cock, and mate him with them both alternately as you may have often seen described in this column.

BAD EYES (Old Joe). Glad to hear that there is already so much improvement, and I have no doubt if you persevere with the treatment advised in last reply it will quite cure the trouble. By all means continue with the same treatment until the eyes are quite well, and keep the light muslin cover over the cage for a week or two, just to tone down the strong daylight a little, as strong light will be painful to the bird until the eyes get a little stronger.

SWOLLEN GLAND (R.P.J.). You should have described the position and appearance of the "gathering." If on the upper surface, at the base of the back, just over the root of the tail, I suspect it is simply an obstruction of the oil gland, and more or less swelling of this organ in consequence. As a rule this should not be tampered with, as in the vast majority of cases interference is more harmful than otherwise. Add a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea to the water for a week or so, and anoint the sore spot daily with Lanocyllin. Try the bird with a scrap of bread crust soaked in milk, dusted with soft sugar, and stuck in the wires at the end of a perch, also, as soon as you can get it, a little tuft of the flower-buds of groundsel.

FOUR-IN-HAND (T.C.).—(1) It depends upon the condition of the birds when mated how long a time will elapse before laying commences. If both birds are in good forward condition, the hen will will often commence laying about the seventh or eighth day after being mated. In other cases several weeks may elapse. No definite time can be named. In all ordinary cases it is reasonable to expect the hen to begin laying in about a fortnight after being mated. (2) The presence of mice in the cages will certainly disturb the birds, and very much upset their breeding arrangements, and also spoil your chances of success. But it will not necessarily put them back if they are in really forward condition. (3) Unless your cage is of a very large size, in which the birds can fly about, and you could introduce, say, four breeding sites for the hens to choose from, you did wrong to put the birds altogether in one cage. The best course is to keep the hens separate in single breeders, and mate the cock with one first, and when she has laid and begun to sit, remove him and mate him with the second hen; when she has begun to sit, remove him again and cage him alone until the first hen is ready to go to nest with her second clutch. Then repeat the former tactics. Leave both hens to hatch and rear the young by themselves. (4) For getting rid of the mice, a good cat properly trained to the birds is hard to beat. If you cannot avail yourself of this means, you next best plan is to give them a course of the "Virus" remedy which you may see advertised regularly in our columns.

SEED AND EGG MIXTURES (P.R.H.).—(1) Give a staple of plain canary seed only. In addition give a pinch of summer rape separately every second day. For a mixture to use, say, twice a week, take by measure, two parts each of hemp and millet, one part each of niger, black rape or cole, teazle, and broken groats, half-part maw, and a quarter-part gold of pleasure, and occasionally add a sprinkling of linseed—just a mere trace of the latter is sufficient. (2) You can buy the dessicated egg yolk ready prepared from large firms of fanciers' providers. It is often advertised in our business columns, which see.

LAYING SOFT EGG (H. G. Monney).—There is something wrong with the oviduct of this bird, and whether she will be of any further use this year depends very much upon her age and condition, about which you say nothing. To avoid disappointment you would certainly be well advised to mate the cock with another hen, choosing one not past her second season, and in good vigorous health. As regards the hen now ill, keep her in a nice warm place, free from cold draughts, give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw every second day for, say, a fortnight, and on the alternate days a pinch of niger, and add to the water on these days as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence. Warmth, remember, is most to be relied upon just at the beginning, and it will be best to cage her alone in a moderate sized cage.

EGG-EATING COCK AND FERTILITY (H.S.G.).—(1) It is a matter of opinion whether an egg-eating cock can be cured of his vice. Personally, I doubt it. Anyway, here are two remedies which are said to cure. First; leaving a china egg or two in nest or about cage floor for the bird to operate upon, and learn by experience that it is labour lost to try to get into a china egg. Secondly, blowing contents out of a real egg (an unfertile will do), filling it with a mixture of mustard, salt, and aloes mixed to cream, stopping the "filling hole," and placing the "egg" thus prepared in the nest for bird to investigate. The most practicable plan is to shut cock away from hen each night when eggs are expected, and not return him until the egg has been secured next morning. When full clutch is laid, put hen to sit by herself, and keep cock separate. The hen will hatch and rear the young by herself. Do not return cock as soon as young are hatched. Wait until young are old enough to place alone in nursery, in case he should molest them. (2) It is quite possible for the full clutch of eggs to prove fertile if you removed cock permanently as soon as the hen began to lay, but it is also rather improbable. There is a great risk to take in the matter.

DOUBLE-YELLOWING (Dan). Yes, if neither of the birds in question is the progeny of a double-yellow mating, you may quite safely mate these two yellows together this season, and then go back to the usual yellow-to-buff matings for their progeny next season.

SOFT MOULT (J.W.J.).—(1) Only time can tell whether you will be able to get a brood of young from the bird this season. The prolonged moulting is probably due to one of these things: exposure to cold draughts or rapid and extreme fluctuations of temperature, or damp. Remedy any or all of these things. Keep bird in a cosy place, not overheated, nor yet on the cold chilly side. In addition to staple diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw every second day. On these days also give two leaves of dandelion. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana, and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, and teazle. Add to the drinking water six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day. Continue this treatment until feathers cease dropping. Possibly, bird may be fit to mate early in May. (2) The actual length of a normal moult varies considerably, but from eight to twelve weeks may be taken as only normal. Your bird should have moulted last autumn.

PINK-EYED AND CINNAMON-MARKED (Nobby).—You may expect clear pink-eyed, and cinnamon-ticked, and cinnamon-marked young from the mating you describe, as the cinnamon blood is known to be on the side of the cock. The amount of marking or variegation will depend upon the amount of dark blood in the strain, as also will the proportion of clear young you might expect.

FITTING UP BIRD-ROOM (A Blackburn Novice).—In fitting up your new bird-room, you have certainly gone to a needless expense in having "beautifully decorated" breeding cages. In the vast majority of cases all decorations about cages should be avoided, as affording cover and harbour for insect pests. If well made, and of good sound material, the structure cannot be too plain. If you could possibly avoid doing so, it would be better not to go higher than three tiers of cages. Could you not place the flight, or two if necessary, on one of the other walls? In the plan of your room will not allow of this being done, you may place one on top of the breeding cages. If the room is well ventilated, and nice and light, there is no very great objection to the flight being in that position, but do not under any circumstances place it at the bottom and the breeding birds at the top, as this would make attention to them more difficult, with the added risk of inattention from this cause. If the birds are quite ready for mating, and the weather seems settled, you may safely mate them at any time now.

FUMIGATING CAGE (Taffy).—Certainly, the idea of fumigating a cage with sulphur in the manner you describe to exterminate red mites is quite practicable, and would prove most efficient provided the fumigation was repeated after an interval of a week or so before the cage was redistempered or painted, as the case may be, in order to destroy any fresh stock that had hatched out from eggs placed deep in any crevice after the first operation. The outer box, or cover, should be well papered to make it as airtight as possible, and the fumigation should be carried out in the open air, or some place where other living things would not be subject to any escaping fumes.

A CHAMPION ROLLER (D. S.).—I take it you want the bird to compete in singing contests, and are aware that the Roller is not much of a show bird in the same sense as the Fancy varieties, such as the Yorkshire or Norwich. The present is not the best time to buy such a bird, as they are not at their best for quality of song just now. Nevertheless, I am afraid you would have to give a fair sum for the bird you want—the amount I cannot name, as that depends solely upon the vendor's idea of the value of the bird to himself. Neither can I give addresses here. The best advice I can give you is to look up the names of the principal winners in open singing contests in the past season, select one or two known breeders from among them, and write and and ask if they have such a bird as you require for sale, its performance and price, and have the bird on approval, despositing the money with our Editor during the time of approval. You will find both the addresses of the principal breeders and the names of principal winners during the past season in "Cage Birds Annual."

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

GREENFINCH AND CANARY HEN (Geo. Everard).—I would advise you to try them again this year in a cage. Put them in, one on each side of the wire partition, and feed them both well with mixed seeds, a little egg-food, and dandelion leaves, and seed pods when ripe. Keep them like this until they are both fit, and you see the Greenie feeding the hen through the bars, then draw the slide, give a nest pan and plenty of building material. The hen may do well this year, although she was a failure last. You had better keep her with last year's partner.

SAMPLE OF WILD SEED (P. K. Saltcoats).—Yours is a very good sample of wild seeds. It is mostly composed of fine grass, clean and bright, and will certainly be very useful to give the birds for a change. You could, if you felt disposed, make up a very useful mixture by adding some niger, maw, gold of pleasure, and a little lettuce. This would certainly increase its value as a mixed seed, and it could be used two or three times a week.

BEST BIRDS FOR SINGING (Enquirer).—I fear I shall be unable to answer all your questions to your satisfaction in the space allowed me, but will do my best. (1) As to which are the best nine singing British birds, this is quite a matter of taste. I should put them in the following order: Nightingale, Blackcap, Skylark, Woodlark, Blackbird, Thrush, Linnet, Goldfinch, Whitethroat. (2) Blackbird and Thrush can be fed on the same food, although the Blackbird is just a wee bit less robust than the Thrush, and an occasional change to good insectile food is good for him. (3) The Finches all require special seed mixtures. One could not give a Linnet and Canary so much hemp, etc., as you could a Goldfinch. The keepers of Finches should know the requirements of each species—that is to keep them in the condition and health that one who is fond of his pets likes to see them. (4) Blackcap and Nightingale will live on a good insectile food, with mealworms and other live food. (5) The Pekin Robin is a merry songster, but one can hardly compare it to the Nightingale. The former is comparatively easy to manage, and a free singer. You had better procure young Softbills if you can manage it. With the Finches it is not so important, but before doing anything in the matter, I would advise you to procure the following books on birds, and read them carefully. You will then get some idea of the merits of each species, and the manner in which they should be housed and fed. Then if you are in doubt about any little point, we shall be pleased to assist you. British Bird Manual, Part 1 Hardbills, Part 2 Softbills, 1s. 1d. each, or the following booklets all 2½d. each: No. 1 Goldfinch, 2 Linnet, 3 Skylark, 4 Blackbird, also several others which are frequently advertised in our columns.

BREEDING FROM HYBRIDS (Constant Reader).—You have omitted to send your name with your query, which is contrary to our rules. Hybrids are not considered to be breeding birds, although cases have been occasionally reported of their having done so. If you wish to try, do not pair hybrids together, but pair to a bird of the parent stock, such as a Canary cock to a Linnet Canary hybrid hen.

GREENFINCH-BULLFINCH (W. G. Hole).—It appears to me that you could safely leave your Greenie and Bullie in with the Canaries, as you say they have been flying with them all the winter, and do not interfere with them. If they go to nest themselves they will be too interested in their own affairs to trouble much about others, especially as they are so used to their being there. Anyway, I would try them. In mixed aviary breeding one has to venture something. Things seldom go on all through the summer quite as we should like them to do.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS

should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2, "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4, "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Moult British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

THRUSH BARE ROUND NECK (New Reader).—I fancy your bird is troubled with insects, most likely grey lice. You had better catch him, and hold him in the hand for a minute or so, and if you turn up the feathers on the under part of the body you will probably find them running over your hand. The remedy at this time of the year is to hand-wash him with soap and water, rinsing in a solution of quassia chips. But as you are a new reader, and therefore probably unable to wash a bird, you had better dress him well with insect powder, working it well into the feathers, and then rolling him in a cloth for about ten minutes. Be careful not to get the powder in his eyes, and do not smother him when you roll him in the cloth. You must let him bathe more frequently, and put some quassia solution in the water, not very strong at first, or he will probably refuse to use it. I would advise a change of food occasionally, such as soaked chicken meal (best quality), and a spoonful of meat meal in with it. Also mix your other feed with scraped raw carrot or boiled potato.

HENS NOT NESTING (J.W.J.).—I have read your letter carefully, and everything appears to me to be quite in order. All you require is a little patience. I have nearly twenty hens myself, and not one has laid yet, but I am not worrying about them—all in good time. Give them mixed seeds and a spoonful of egg-food daily, also a dandelion leaf. I think it would be as well to part them if they are very backward, and try them again when the hens are calling and bouncing from perch to perch, constantly flapping their wings. They should then start building in a few days.

CHARLOCK SEED (S.H.).—I should not feel inclined to use charlock and dock seed in place of rape for British birds and Canaries. Charlock is very hot and strong, and much coarser than summer rape. You could give them some occasionally—more to the Britishers than the Canaries. You could be fairly liberal with it to the Greenfinches and Linnets. They eat quantities when at liberty.

WASTEFUL GOLDFINCH (J. Jones). Instead of the mixture you are giving him, which he wastes, feed him in the following manner:—Make a mixture of equal parts canary and teazle, and give it to him as staple food. Then make up the following seeds:—One part hemp, half part niger, half part maw, half part summer rape, and just give him a small spoonful in the corner of the cage every day. Purchase a good brand of wild-seed mixture containing thistle, dandelion, etc., and give him a spoonful of it twice a week; stop the other mixture on the days you give him this. Don't forget green food—groundsel, chickweed, and young leaves of dandelion. (2) The black streak on the upper mandible will disappear as the bird comes into breeding condition. When quite clear, he should be in a fit state to pair with the hen. (3) You can run him with a couple of hens. Take him away when one has laid her third or fourth egg and introduce him to the other. There is no difficulty about it. (4) I have had no trouble with field-moulted Linnets; if in condition, they will pair readily with Canary hens. (5) You should purchase your bird at once and let him and the hen get thoroughly used to each other before the breeding season. I would advise a large Yellow Norwich hen, as the young come much more shapely than when one of the parents is a Yorkshire.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

BUDGERIGARS (G. Everard).—As you are new to these get our Nutshell No. 18, 2½d., post free from our Manager, it will tell you how to succeed. (1) Yes, the aviary will suffice for the two pairs, but it should be where the bird can get plenty of light and air without draught. (2) The one with the greenish colour right to his beak is quite a young bird, and is now just beginning to drop the nestling plumage. (3) Canary seed, white millet, and a few oats, with green-food, grit, cuttlebone, and water. A little apple to nibble at occasionally. Seeding and flowering grass is the best conditioner for Budgies as soon as you can get it free from frost. (4) Large size, rich pure colour, clean cut markings. (5) Certainly, if birds are up to standard. (6) It would do, but they are usually shown in a longer and lower cage than those used for exhibiting Canaries. Any maker of repute would supply a suitable cage if you state what for. (7) Exercise is good for them, but it is not absolutely necessary to let them out, and till they are quite steady might do harm; when steady a fly round the room will be very beneficial. (8) You must write the editor, but a Budgerigar did appear as one of a group on one of our plates. (9) Hang up four cocoanut husks in the cage and leave the birds to themselves. They do not require any nesting material. (10) See reply to No. 3. Good millet sprays are 2/6 per bundle of 50, and are excellent for the birds. (11) Yes, if the plumage is soiled, not otherwise. Budgerigars are the easiest of birds to breed, and yours should breed during the season.

QUAIL (Alva).—I have found that the Californian Quail does best kept in pairs, though if the aviary is very roomy several pairs may be kept together, but it is better to have only pair of each species in the aviary to get best results. I think the Cuban Colin or Quail (Ortyx cubanensis) would do all right and agree with the Californian. They are about equally hardy. The Californian Quail is as much at home among the branches of a lofty aviary as it is on the ground, and it will be well to give them an opportunity of taking this exercise. When you can get them, the Chinese Painted Quail would be a charming species to obtain. Foreign Doves—Australian Crested, Cape, Diamond, Peaceful, Senegal, Turtle, etc., would do well with the Quail, and give variety.

WHAT BIRD? (W. Fisher).—You must give me some idea of size before I can be definite; compare it to some well-known English bird of similar shape and size. It may be a Glossy Starling, in which case it will certainly take fruit and insects if offered. It may be a Silky Cowbird; if so, it would certainly take insects if offered. If small, it is either a Combassou or Jacarini Finch, but both these birds take white millet and millet from sprays, and green-food, also an occasional insect when offered, as well as canary seed. On receipt of further details I will try and give a definite reply.

BUDGERIGARS (Turpin).—Note reply to another correspondent in this column. The Budgerigars, if you have true pairs, will ultimately settle down to nesting. Cocks have the cere surrounding the nostrils bright blue, that of the hens being ruddy brown when in breeding condition. Take down the boxes and put up four more husks at least. The grass most favoured is very similar to lawn grass let grow wild, and you cannot give them too much of this as soon as you can get it free from frost. Do not mix Finches or other Passerines with the Budgies. You could put in a pair of Madagascar Lovebirds or Black-cheeked Lovebirds with them, or even Cockateels. The Budgerigars and Cockatecls require no nesting material, but the Lovebirds will require a log, box, or small barrel, and leaves, strips of bark, straws, millet spray stems, etc., for lining up the nest receptacle.

AILING BUDGERIGAR (C. Harding).—Pleased to hear that the bird is progressing favourably. Continue the treatment, and, as soon as you can, get seeding and flowering grass free from frost—supply this ad lib. The matter of the plumage will right itself as soon as the bird is quite fit again. If the cock bird to which she is mated is strong and vigorous, the progeny should prove quite satisfactory. On warm days let her have all the light and air possible; at the same time do not place her cage in an exposed position.

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Cresswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

CUBAN QUAILS (H. G. Mooney).—The Cuban Colin or Quail (Ortyx cubanensis), is, as its name indicates, a native of Cuba. The adult male is brown above, barred with black, top of head black; chin and throat white surrounded with a black band; upper breast black, mottled with whitish-rufous in the middle; remainder of underparts chestnut-brown, laced with black, and spotted with white on sides of body. Total length, 8 inches, of which the tail measures 2¼. Quail as a rule agree excellently with the inhabitants of a mixed aviary, but if the aviary is small and the covers not numerous, occasionally they upset the nests of other birds when moving about among the branches and bushes. Diet: Canary and millet seed, green-food, and some live insects. Many are very fond of dry ants' eccoons, and if these are scattered on the ground they soon become slightly moist.

GREY PARROT (E. P. G.).—As you have our Nutshell, feed your bird on the seed mixture advised therein, and treat generally as the pamphlet advises. Once a week put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water, and continue this for some time. Give six drops of cod liver oil daily on a small piece of bread, biscuit, plain cake, or anything similar the bird will eat. Keep it where it will get light and air, yet be out of reach of draught. As soon as it is sufficiently tame, allowing it to take exercise outside its cage daily will be greatly to its benefit. Examine its mouth, and if it is furred, slimy, or if there should be any white spots on tongue or roof of mouth, then put a little (about size of a pea at a time) honey and borax in its mouth once or twice daily. The sides of the cage should be covered up at night. If it will not bathe, give a light spraying with tepid water, containing a little quassia solution, once or twice weekly, but choose warm bright days for the operation.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

A. Wallace.—Impaction of the stomach (proventiculus) was the immediate cause of death. The bird was not a sound one, its liver having undergone a trace of fatty degeneration, evidently the predisposing cause.

Mrs. F. Dunn.—Fatty degeneration of the liver caused death of Bullfinch. The disease was far advanced, and had its origin at some time in the ingestion of some irritant or toxic substance with the food.

Mardyite.—Pulmonary apoplexy, death from haemorrhage resulting from rupture of an important blood vessel.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else

Early Mules.

SIR,—I had a nest of Goldie-Canaries hatched March 5; five young ones out of five eggs, and all are doing well. I have taken the hen Canary from them this morning, March 31. I think this will take some beating.

A Chance for Would-be Breeders of Albinos.

SIR,—In my study of Albinism I have found that though the Blackbird is the most common species to exhibit traces of this departure, such is, in the majority of instances, confined to the male, whereas with other species I find the female most prone to Albinism. I remember some years ago I had correspondence with an aviculturist who was endeavouring to found a strain of Albino Blackbirds, but was sorely handicapped by reason of the difficulty of procuring hens. If he, or any reader who possess an Albino cock Blackbird, has facilities and the desire to experiment in that direction, I would be pleased to make him, or her, a present of an Albinistic hen which has lately come into my possession, and which has the merit of being tractable. My only conditions are that an account of the results be sent to me, and that the breeding be carried out in an aviary, as I consider space essential.

Interesting Notes on the Pine Siskin of North America.

SIR,—I was very much interested in reading the par. under "Twitterings" in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS re the two Chinese Siskin hens which Mr. Frostick had imported from China, and which, when compared with the European species are about identical. It may also be of some interest to many of your numerous readers to know that the Pine Siskins of North America are also practically identical with their European cousins, the exception being that the cocks have no black caps or bibs. The only difference 'twixt the cocks and hens lies in the cocks being brighter in the colours of flights and tail, but they are not so well laced on breast and thighs. I might say that they are very abundant all over both Canada and North America, where the Pine forests exist. I have seen them in flocks of thousands together, feeding on the alder trees in winter at Nanaimo, Vancouver Island, B.C. I noticed when they are breeding, and right through the moulting season, they mostly feed on new grown grass seeds of various kinds, and also the new grown seeds of dandelion. The latter plant is very abundant, and grows to an enormous size in British Columbia. I may also say that I caught scores of them during my stay in British Columbia, and bred Mules from the cocks with Canary hens, but the young Mules did not show the rich colours of those bred from the British Siskins. How a Successful Norwich Exhibitor Achieved His Success

Sir,—I was pleased to see your artist putting a portrait of my winning yellow Norwich hen in CAGE BIRDS. I bred her last year, and showed her three times as an unflighted, winning a 1st at Abersychan, 3rd Swansea, he Cardiff. Since her adult moult she has improved wonderfully, winning this season 1st special diploma best Norwich in show at Swansea, 1st special Abertillery, 1st special Pentrebach, 1st Pontardawe, 2nd Llandrindod, and 4th Cardiff—not a bad performance, as she came home a winner every time I sent her out. It is about seven years since I took to Canary breeding, and, like most novices, I took a long time before I fell into the right groove. The plan I adopted was to attend the various shows and study the type of bird the judge wanted, so that I had a good idea what to breed for. Though attending these shows I got acquainted with some real good fanciers; some who seemed delighted to explain the good and bad points to you, beside giving you a lot of valuable information as far as breeding was concerned. I fully realise, however, that I have much to learn, and much more winning to do, before my ambition is attained.

As regards breeding, although I generally adhere to the old method of pairing, viz., yellow to buff, I do occasionally double buff, and have bred many winners this way. I also do a little double yellowing, by pairing two heavy marked yellows together to produce a green, to get some stock birds; as without green blood in your stock you are going to spell failure, for colour is one of the chief items in breeding the Norwich Canary. My methods of feeding and management are on the lines advocated from time to time in the valuable columns of CAGE BIRDS. I also use a soft food prepared in the following manner:—Take a cupful of Spratts' cod liver oil food, a teaspoonful of maw seed, pinch of sugar and salt; mix well together and add boiling water to scald it. Do not make it soppy, but leave as dry as you can. After it has cooled, mix an egg with it. The birds may not take to it at first, but continue it for a few days, as once fairly on it you will be able to see the improvement in your stock. As for colour-feeding, I mix the colour food with it (leaving out eggs, as they are scarce and dear) and have won colour-feed medals on the above; besides, it puts a lovely gloss on them. One of my mates bred 100 Canaries one season on the above alone.

I advise those about to enter the Norwich Fancy to go to a reliable fancier and buy the best they can afford. If you are unable to select them yourself, place yourself entirely in his hands, and ask him to pair them for you. If he is reliable, he will put you on the right road, and with a little perseverance and attention, success is sure to follow.

ALF. HITCHINGS.

A Schoolmistress's Feathered Friends.

SIR,—As a Hull reader, I am proud to send the attached cutting from the "Hull Daily Mail." It shows what can be done as regards attaining the confidence of wild birds. "For some years Miss Matthews has filled the position of certificated infants' mistress at the Walkington Council School. Her home is in Hull, and she walks from and to Little Weighton station, a distance of over two miles each way, night and morning, which affords a splendid opportunity of studying the habits of the birds, and she has made many little feathered friends. Miss Matthews has to leave Hull by the 6.30 a.m. train, but she never forgets the birds' breakfast, and it is a pretty sight to witness the Sparrows and other birds, who can time their friend's arrival at the station to a nicety, waiting, and quite a flock follow her for crumbs. All through the village the same thing happens, but when she gets along the quiet country roads the rooks join the "party." The writer had the pleasure of witnessing this pretty scene on Thursday afternoon, when the Rooks flocked around Miss Matthews, and picked up the crumbs within a yard of her feet, and she had the greatest difficulty in keeping them off, to allow the lesser birds to "have a share." ANLABY ROAD.

A Wail from Aintree.

Sir,—I am sorry Mr. Anderson did not like the tone of my last letter. "Practice what you preach"; I, as a novice up to this year, have always worked by that old proverb. As for the expressions that Mr. Anderson used, such as "mud slinging," I am greatly surprised, but I suppose I must put that down to iguorance, pure and simple. All I asked Mr. Anderson was, did he blame the cage-bird fanciers for the winding-up? He answers he did not intend to suggest that the birdie men were to blame; but still he did blame them, and as we are all working in harmony one with another, I think it a shame he should upset such harmony. I am pleased to say that the Fancy in Liverpool is growing, and we must have secretaries to encourage it, and not to show a tender skin. I can safely say we will have a cage-bird society in Aintree, and I for one will promote it, to the best of my ability. I would also like to impress upon Mr. Anderson's mind that I have received no correspondence from him with reference to the so-called challenge cup, as my address for the past eight months has been 77, Percy Street, Bootle, not Rosalind Street, Birkdale. He will find, through the minutes, that the cup competition calls for three competitors in each class, or points do not count; therefore I claim to win the said cup for the second time, with 31 points, the next 21 points, and so on. I maintain the bird fanciers were the upkeep of the society. Why did Mr. Anderson not call a special meeting for the drawing up of the schedule for the old show? Why was the said show cancelled? Because the schedule was not fit for sending out. Another thing I would like to ask is, why did the sec. allow exhibitors to exhibit without paying their subscriptions (no wonder no prize-money) which they have done at Aintree? I also hope Mr. Anderson does not think that I make a business out of my bird-room, as I make my hobby a pastime and a pleasure, and I support my birds and home through manual labour. I, for one, will say that we have not a bird fancier in our district that expects his hobby to keep him. So if your impetuous correspondent wishes to make a display of iguorance, I would rather him make it personally, without intruding on the columns of your valuable paper. G. A. SKILLING.

Prize-money at the Bristol C.B.S. Show.

Sir,—In answer to Mr. H. W. Carrier, I beg respectfully to refer him to the list of prize-winners at our show which appeared in your issue of Nov. 14 or 21. If, as he says, he received a 3rd and spl. prize cards, they were put in his cage by mistake when his bird was returned, for which I apologise.

A Norwich Hen's 14 Eggs in 19 Days!

Sir,—I have a young Norwich hen that has laid 14 eggs in 19 days. She laid 5, missed two days, laid 3, missed two days, then laid 6. She does not sit, or seem any the worse for her extraordinary laying. I myself have been a breeder for 17 years, but never experienced anything like it. I hope to hear other fanciers' ideas, as I myself am puzzled.

The Return of the Migrants.

Has a Bird a Conscience?

Sir,—Perhaps it may interest your readers to hear that two of my young White Wagtails (recently mentioned as having been bred in my aviary last summer) have returned to me. On the 4th April they alighted in the garden, and for some time were running round my feet (thus showing that they were not migratory wild Wagtails) and have been almost constantly in the garden for the past two days.

Since July 11 of last year I have seen nothing of them. I regard this as a very unusual incident, for two reasons—in the first place, though I release a good many birds every year and some of them often hang about for a few days, I have never known any to return when once they have drifted away. Secondly, it is most unlikely that White Wagtails would winter here, and if these two birds crossed the Channel, one would think they would have returned to Central Europe, where their parents were captured.

The migrants seem to be late in the West, yesterday (April 5) being the first occasion that I have seen or heard the Chiff chaff.

I note Mr Coe's query, and shall have pleasure in replying to him next week. Having been away from home last week, my correspondence is much in arrears. I am glad to hear that he takes an interest in the subject.

The Border Fancy C.C. and the Use of Closed Rings.

Sir,—I am pleased to notice that my letter in your issue of March 27th has brought forward two replies—one from the secretary, and another from that esteemed fancier, Mr. Johnston. I will treat Mr. Smart's letter first. To my mind it is very misleading, as one would conclude there had been very little discussion on this point at the general meeting, and that there was no dissent whatever, but all were in favour that any member competing with ring birds should be disqualified. In the report of the general meeting, which I have by me, it distinctly states that this question created a heated discussion, which contradicts entirely Mr. Smart's remarks, and to confirm this, I would refer him to our friend Johnston's letter and quote his own words, "I fought hard to get the above rule abolished." In view of this, either the report of the general meeting or Mr. Smart is wrong, but I will leave your readers to form their own conclusion. As regards my using a nom de plume, I am not desirous of any cheap means of placing my name before the public, hence the reason for adopting this course; but my motive for bringing it up through the press was for the general good of the Fancy, and the "wee gems" in particular.

With reference to Mr. Johnston's letter, I was more than pleased to read his straightforward and interesting remarks, and I am of the same opinion, that there is no distinguishing feature whatever about a closed ring, no more so than in the case of the different styles of show cages and perches. On the other hand there is no getting away from the fact that they have a considerable number of advantages, as pointed out by him. It is therefore obvious that the B.F.C.C. will subsequently have to withdraw this rule, or else suffer considerably by its membership decreasing. I should not like to see the latter, but on the other hand, let it continue to flourish as it has done in the past.

As regards my refraining for one year from using rings, it would be a considerable disadvantage to me to do this, as we have had generously put up by several fanciers in this district a silver cup to be competed for by the three highest birds, wearing closed rings, at the various shows, and as I wish to participate in this competition, you will readily see my reason for doing so. However, I trust to be spared to attend the annual general meeting, and I shall certainly send on my "Little Bit" to the fund for the late secretary and president. Although I have met neither of them, I have a great respect for Mr. Jamieson, as he helped me considerably when I first joined the club, and always treated me in a most gentlemanly and business-like manner.

Anxious.

Sir,—Although we have never adopted the system of ringing the "wee gems," either for the show bench or other purposes, I do not think it right to disqualify any exhibitor for doing so until the opinion of the majority of the members of the B.F.C.C. be taken. I think the question would be best settled by a plebiscite, as I know a good many who would like to have a say in the matter, but are unable to attend the general meeting. As regards the ring influencing the judges' decisions, I feel sure any judge who is inclined to favour any particular exhibitor will be able to do so, ring or no ring.

J. Hopper.

Birds as Happy, Healthy Pets.

Sir,—Seeing much discussion going on about the cruelty of caging birds, I thought I would like to give a few of my own experiences, which prove that caged birds are not "miserable heartbroken prisoners," but usually happy, healthy, pets if properly kept and catered for. Here is my first experience. I had a hen Redpoll which had nested in an aviary, and then been moved into a double breeding cage. One sunny day in late autumn I was cleaning out the cage in the garden when out flew the Redpoll from the cage door. A cage was put out, but for two days the weather was cold and frosty, and on the third day the bird returned and flew into the cage. Another time a finger-tame cock Siskin escaped, and was loose for half-an-hour or so, but it soon returned, flew down on to my hand, and was finally caged again. One day this winter one of my Tricoloured Nuns escaped, but on my putting out a cage which was empty by the side of a cage containing its mate, the bird soon returned and entered the cage. Some years ago I kept a pair of Blue Tits which I caught myself. However, after about two months' time the hen died, and a week after I took the cage containing the survivor and opened the door, hung it on a tree, and left it. For half-an-hour the bird went in and out, and not until a wandering band of its own kind passed by did it depart.

Only last summer was it that my pet Rook, which is hand-reared, escaped. This was after its first three days of captivity, before it could feed itself, but it was strong on the wing. It was loose all day flying round the neighbouring trees, but in the evening when I came back it flew on to my shoulder, and was fed and caught. The bird is still alive and is pied. My wild-caught four times cage-moulted Jackdaw has escaped several times, but has always returned of his own will or entered other houses and been caught and returned to his rightful place. These are all the escaped bird experiences I have had, but I have had, and have now, many birds which will take tit-bits out of their owner's fingers, and all of which are wild-caught. Hand-reared birds have never fallen to me, with exception of a Blackbird, now dead, and a Rook.

These facts will, I am sure, prove that cage birds, if well fed and well caged, are perfectly happy and willing pets. All this talk about the cruelty of caging birds is absolutely absurd. Why, if anyone could see some of the private pets of bird fanciers, they would be convinced. Birds, like some people, are very shy of strangers, no matter how tame they are with their masters. How, then, are strangers to know whether a bird is tame or not until it is used to them?

The Opinion of a Noted Fancier—
"It makes Bird Breeding Easy."

THE STOCK BOOK

Compiled by G. E. WESTON.

Simplifies the operations in the Bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. It affords facilities for the recording of the complete pedigree of all your birds; of your experiences during the season; an account of every bird reared. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird and Show Registers of simple and unique character; Cash and Profit and Loss Accounts for the year. Gives valuable Hints for times of emergency during the breeding season.

THE MODEL OF THE SOUTHERN BORDER FANCY C.C.

The standard bird adopted by the committee of the club for the members to breed to. The drawing is by "Cage Birds" well-known artist, Mr. H. Norman.

A Whistling Blackbird and Other Pets.

Sir,—An error crept into my article, published last week. It should have read "Each week I damp my birds all over and wash legs and feet." This does not check them singing if practised regularly; on the contrary they dry themselves, and then sing more than ever.

E. Crisp.

The Richardson and Jamieson Testimonial.

Sir,—As the closing date for the lists being returned for the above testimonial is Saturday, April 11, we hope members will try their best to have lists returned, so that we may have time to make arrangements for presentation. We propose to have a smoker on May 2, in Grant's Cathedral Hotel, Cockburn Street, Edinburgh, which is very central and within five minutes walk from Waverley Station; start at five o'clock to suit those from a distance; tickets will be sent to delegates in due time; should any member have any suggestion to make, we will be very pleased to hear it.—G. W. Brown and W. B. Smart, 13, High Street, Loanhead.

The "Napoleon" of the Canary World and the Novices.

Sir,—I was greatly amused last week at the article by Mr. Allsopp. What a fighter! I tremble to think of the poor novice who cannot reach the top. Does he think these novices are children whom he can put across his knee and give what he no doubt thinks they deserve? Only fancy this Napoleon and his "Limehouse" speeches—we are getting used to them from gallant little Wales. Suppose a novice keeps a few birds as a hobby, is not ambitious, or has no time or money to send his birds about to shows, what has it got to do with this "Director of Destiny"? He desires to sweep away the machinery which professes to guard and help the novice. Note only professes. Well, I don't think they would be so easily broken as he thinks. I am pleased to see he is giving the committee something to go on with; pleased to see him giving them a little reward for their services, which they render for nothing. I would suggest he "Bothwell" them; or something even more desperate. "Goliath" does not wish to wound the novice's feelings. He will show no mercy to the weed and parasite; will help the novice, but he must be the genuine article. For the weed he has nothing but his winter boots! Well, I should like very much to see him attempt to use his winter footwear on a few novice friends of mine, whose heads are perhaps as hard as his boots; I would advise him to bring an armour suit. Is he only pulling their legs, or is this an after-dinner speech, for some speak as their stomachs guide them? Perhaps, Mr. Editor, a little advice to Mr. Allsopp would not do harm. Without the novice, the most serious thing would be, I think, that we should not have our Cage Birds to read with pleasure each week, as without the novice how could it be run with the success it deserves? And what about fellowship; also what about that word "Fellow Fancier"? No, Mr. Allsopp, it won't do. If you wish to help the novice, tell him what you know; that would help him. They cannot all be champions of champions, any more than they can all be Lord Mayors. However, you are forgiven this time, and may the novice give you a close run in the future is the wish of

The Sad Loss of a Noted Scottish Fancier.

Sir,—I noticed in last week's Cage Birds a letter from Mr. Rennie (Secretary Falkirk and District C.B.S.) reporting the loss through fire of the whole stock, birds, house, cages, etc., of our old friend and veteran fancier, Mr. Hugh Moreland, of Falkirk, and I know I pen the feelings of the entire Fancy when I say that the sympathies of all go out to the old veteran in his almost irreparable loss.

Mr. Moreland, who is now about the borders of seventy years of age, has been a life-long fancier, and one of the pioneers of the Norwich Fancy in Scotland, and although only a working man with a small wage, was ever ready to dip his hand into his hard-earned savings to assist any good cause in the interests of the Fancy. He was also a friend of the novice, and anyone struggling in the Fancy, and I am sure many a one has reason to remember the cheery, encouraging word and good practical advice, given ungrudgingly by "Auld Hughie."

Now, sir, I appeal to my brother fanciers, as I think this an opportune time to set going a National Testimonial for our old friend, by selecting a representative committee of Scottish fanciers, under the secretaryship of Mr. Rennie, get subscription sheets distributed to every secretary to bring before notice of members, and I am quite confident it would be the means of restoring and keeping the old man in the Fancy which he loved so well. I shall, however, be glad to hear the opinion of others on this subject, through the valuable medium of Cage Birds.

John Young,
Hon. Sec. Scottish Crested C.C.

[We shall be pleased to do all we can to assist in this good cause. Any subscriptions sent to us will be duly acknowledged in our columns.—Editor, "C.B."]

THE "FILUP" FEEDER.

Hand feeding can now be done with the greatest success. Save all young birds hatched. Hundreds of testimonials have been received from fanciers who are delighted with it. See Cage Birds Annual. Can be obtained from all dealers, or 1/3 post free by return from sole manufacturers.

In the Courts.

A Trapper Summoned.

At Cullompton Divisional Sessions, before Messrs. E. Opie (in the chair), H. G. New, E. F. M. Alleyne, W. J. A. Grant, and J. W. Clarke, and Colonel Grundy, a labourer, Frederick Voisey, was summoned, under the Wild Birds Protection Order (1913), for having in his possession certain Goldfinches.

Inspector Lale, R.S.P.C.A., stated that defendant was seen by Constable Lewis coming from a field, and, on being searched, was found to have three Goldfinches, which he admitted he had recently taken. He also had decoy birds with him. Defendant pleaded guilty to having the birds in his possession, and added that he had caught Linnets, Chaffinches, and Goldfinches many times. He did not know he was not allowed to take them. He had done it in order to provide boots and shoes for his children, not for the purpose of obtaining drink. He asked the Bench to take a lenient view of the case for the sake of his family.

P.C. Lewis, of Bradninch, stated that he saw the defendant going across a field near Stoke House carrying two bags. He asked the defendant what he had, but at first defendant made no reply, and started walking away. Witness asked again and defendant replied, "Nothing." On searching, witness found six Goldfinches, a variety of nets, and irons. Defendant said he did not know Goldfinches were protected, and that he had not done anything in trapping for some time. The defendant was also summoned for causing unnecessary suffering to two Goldfinches by bracing them. P.C. Lewis stated that on reaching defendant's home with the birds he found two of the birds in a cage were very uncomfortable. Witness found that across and around the wings and below the body were little pieces of twine, with hooks fastened at the bottom. He cut them off with difficulty, and after a time the birds seemed greatly relieved. The braces on one bird were very tight, the bird was rubbed underneath the body, and had been bruised. When witness served the summons, defendant asked why he was summoned for cruelty. He said that he did not consider braces would hurt the birds, as they had had them for months, and they sang in the cage with the braces on. Defendant said that the birds had been in a breeding cage. They had never shown any sign of being cruelly treated. It was no trouble to put the braces on or to take them off. He would not hurt one of his birds even if he were given £50. He was very fond of all birds.

On the first summonses the Bench fined defendant 20s. inclusive. On the second they gave him the benefit of the doubt, and dismissed the case. The nets were confiscated, but the defendant was allowed to have the birds which had been in captivity.

LONG EATON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting April 4, headquarters; 14 present. Discussion was opened by C. Rogers on the use of closed rings for young birds. Opinions were about evenly divided, and as the season has already started with some of the members, the Secretary suggested that the rule should not be made compulsory this season. A very instructive and enjoyable evening was spent. We are all looking forward to a successful season with our birds, and the Fancy generally seems to be making progress at Long Eaton. One new member was proposed.—G. Baines, Hon. Sec.

EAST ARDSLEY C.B.S.

Table show of British, Black Swan, April 4. Entries were very good. President, Dr. B. G. Ewing, judged and gave great satisfaction. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the judge. BULLF. OR GOLDIE: 1, Pyrah; 2, Burnell; 3, Crossley; vhc, J. Summers; hc, H. Summers; c, Waind. LINNET: 1, Burnell; 2, Waind; 3, Pyrah; vhc, Waind. GREENF.: 1, Kendrew; 2, Waind; 3, T. Summers. REDPOLL, ETC.: 1, Pyrah, Twite; 2, Burnell, Redpoll; 3, J. Summers, Redpoll; vhc, Crossley; hc, Haywood. A.O.S.: 1, Burnell, Chaff.; 2, Kendrew, Chaff.; 3, F. Summers; vhc, Waind; hc, Waind.—H. Cockrem, Sec.

COLINTON AND CURRIE PARISHES O.S.

Meeting April 4, Village Hall, Juniper Green, Vice-President (Mr. Michie) in chair. The Chairman made reference to the sad loss sustained by one of our members, Mr. Jas. Roger, in the loss of his beloved wife, and Sec. was instructed to send a letter of condolence to Mr. Rodger. Classification for N.F. show was read over by the Sec., and it was decided to add a class for Crest or C.B. Mr. Watson, Edin, gave a very interesting lecture on Mules and Hybrids. Mr. Watson went into every detail very minutely, explained all the various methods he had tried, and gave the result of his experiences. At the close of the lecture Mr. Watson answered a number of questions in a very able manner. A vote of thanks was heartily accorded Mr. Watson. Next meeting May 2, at 7, when subs. are due and booking of hens; the last meeting for new members joining.—Jas. Napier, Sec.

READING C.B.S.

Meeting, Palmer Hall, April 1, with a good attendance. Mr. Hawes, of Brill, gave a washing exhibition, using a drying cage heated by water-bath. This method was new to most members and was much appreciated. Mr. Hawes afterwards gave a very interesting paper on bird management for breeding and showing. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Hawes for his kindness, and for the manner in which he answered the many questions submitted to him. The unfortunate part of the meeting was the resignation of Mr. W. H. Pyke, as Secretary. The Society can ill-afford to lose such an enthusiastic worker. He has the well-wishes of every member in his new appointment, and one and all are delighted to know he will still be among us. Mr. O. C. Smith, the assistant, was elected Sec., and all communications should now be addressed accordingly. Members are requested to keep next meeting night clear and attend, as there is an extra special paper. New members elected: Mrs. Murton, Mrs. McCallum, Mrs. Ford, Mr. Wise, Mr. Pounsett, Mr. Seymour, and Mr. Cox.—O. C. Smith, Sec.

HALIFAX O.S.

Meeting, April 4th, at Plummet Line Hotel, before a good attendance, Mr. F. Townsend presiding. The sub-committee's report was heard. Decided to have six members' shows, also three lectures, one debate, and two rambles, one to Crimsworth Dean, on May 16 and the other up Blackburn Valley, on June 13. We shall also have a washing exhibition on Sept. 26 by Mr. R. E. Helliwell, and a novice competition for a medal, given by Mr. Townsend, and then a judging competition on December 26th. Decided to offer 5s. for each section at each show, also to give three gold medals for novices, two for Yorkshires and one for Norwich for most points with three birds. A member kindly promised a pair of Yorkshires, value £1 for a novice who does not win a special, also another member has given two shillings at each show for second most points for novices. Five shillings was given for most points with three birds at nest feather shows, also 2s. 6d. for most points with vhc birds, and 2s. 6d. for hc birds. We have also 22s. 6d. given by members yet to allot. The secretary will be glad to receive any addition to the specials in cash or value, so we can share them out at next meeting, April 18. Decided to engage W. Mundell and W. Vardy, to judge annual open show, Nov. 20 and 21. We made three new members, which brings our list up to 90.—H. Clegg, Sec.

NORTH STAFFS R.C.C.

Meeting, March 5. Mr. Hickman presided over a good attendance. The usual business was expedited, and closed with a hearty vote of thanks to officials for their services during the past half-year. The secretary was mentioned for judging club show. We have been repeatedly asked, "When are you holding an open show?" Thanks, friends; not yet—finance. Proposed that members and friends have motor trip to Rhyl. A few Birds were at the meeting, and tours which proved a stumbling block were explained. These were a Schwirre, a peculiarly delivered set of flute notes, and an uncommon way of delivering a slight aufzug. Owner said "this had been penalised." It was explained that only the judge knew how it was sung at the time the bird was judged; but, if sung the same as we heard it, competition must have been extraordinarily keen for it to be penalised. A bell-Glucke also was sung. Agreed unanimously that when sung in such a manner it was worthy of being credited. A fair number attended meeting held April 2. Mr. Hickman again presided. Idea of motor trip abandoned, as suitable date cannot be fixed to suit the convenience of the majority. Decided to have, in lieu, a knife and fork tea, followed by a musical evening, May 14, at Evans' Cafe. Tickets, 1s. 6d. Will members and friends desirous of attending, please notify previous to, or at the next meeting, April 30. Mr. Haddrell has arrangements in hand, and will be pleased to supply further particulars. Only one bird at this meeting, but it did not sing. New member, Mr. Worthington (Longton). Proposed for membership, Messrs. Booth and Plant (Chesterton).—J. Tomlinson, Sec.

BROUGHTY FERRY C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Victoria Cottage, April 1st. Mr. R. Carmyllie presided over a small attendance. Date of annual show was fixed for 5th December. Club show will be held 17th October.—J. F. Langlands, Sec.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES C.B.S.

Annual table show of Muling and Hybrid pairs, April 4, Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram-st. A grand array was on exhibition. Entries were quite up to average, and quite a tidy sum was placed to the credit of the club. President, Mr. Peter Pettigrew, is always well to the fore in giving specials for these shows, and his example acts as an incentive to others. Specials were given also by Messrs. Macfarlane, Cassels, Telfer and Martin, whilst Mr. Arnott gave a cash special for next meetiug for best F.M. Linnet, and Mr. Macfarlane has promised a special for a judging competition in this class. Mr. James Dick (Kirkintilloch) judged, and his awards were well received.

GOLDF. AND CAN.: 1, Pettigrew; 2, Hulbert; 3, Macfarlane; 4, Telfer; 5, McGowan; 6, Cassels; 7, Bannerman. LINNET AND CAN.: 1, McPhail; 2, McGowan; 3, Telfer; 4, Pettigrew; 5, Hulbert; 6, Bannerman; 7, Cassels. A.O.V. MULING PAIRS: 1, McPhail; 2, Cassels; 3, McGowan; 4, Pettigrew; 5, Telfer; 6, Hulbert; 7, Bannerman. HYB.: 1, Pettigrew, Goldf. and Bullf., both Siberians; 2, Telfer, Linnet and Bullie; 3, McGowan, Goldf. and Greenf.; 4, Bannerman; 5, 6, Cassels; 7, Hulbert.

BARNSLEY C.B.A.

Meeting April 4, headquarters, Clarence Hotel, Chairman, Mr. Hinchliffe, presided over a good gathering, who each in their turn had a question to answer concerning Canary breeding. The first call was Mr. Charlesworth, who gave us a good little lecture on the cause of unfertile eggs, which, in his opinion, is due to birds not being in condition. No. 2 was Mr. Race, with that funny question. "What is the cause of hens leaving their young at the age of 8 or 10 days old?" Mr. Race gave us plenty of reasons, but the main cause, he thinks, is the hens coming into condition again, through the feeding, especially with hemp seed. No. 3, Mr. Thorpe, with the standard of the Norwich Plainhead, which was very interesting, especially to the breeders of the "thick 'uns," who will be looking over their stock to see if they can find one or two like the one Brother Thorpe impressed on their minds. No. 4, Mr. Ibberson, a breeder of Norwich, had the question, what kind of stock birds would he prefer to produce exhibition Norwich Plainheads? This was also very interesting, and was explained in good order. His ideal pair was, clear yell. cock with good broad skull, with eyes in centre of head, neck thick and short to correspond with a body well clothed with good quality of feather and full of substance, tapering off into grand position, on a pair of legs showing well up to thighs, tail nicely carried. This kind of bird paired to a nice green marked hen, that has a good round head, with a broad entrance, with good quality of feather and type, and a pair of short wings and legs, should produce some good specimens. No. 5, Mr. Hall: Which is the best egg food, and give receipe for same? Our friend gave us numerous recipes, but the one he gave his vote to is: Boil one fresh egg for 15 minutes and let it go cold, then rub it through a fine seive, along with one tea biscuit and three arrowroot biscuits. With this he has reared the most young birds. No. 6, Chairman, Mr. Hinchliffe, had to answer—What is the best method of colour feeding? He thinks the best colour is produced by paste feeding. He cuts a thick slice of bread, soaks it in water and squeezes it out again, then mixes 1½ tablespoonfuls of colour food with the bread to make it into paste. He gave us plenty of recipes which were eagerly grasped by our novices.—E. Toulson, Sec.

CHESTER C.B.S.

Meeting March 31, Boot Inn, Mr. F. C. Parker, chair. Decided that Mr. Burns (Birkenhead) judge N.F. show, that cup he offered for competition similar to last year, and that two classes for Borders be included in schedule. Washing exhibition next monthly meetiug.—L. Cavanagh, Hon. Sec.

AUDLEY ROLLER C.C.

First meeting held April 4. Mr. J. Tomlinson presiding. Addressing a "full house," he explained a fancier's duties, first to himself, and to his family; in brief, that a fancier should not purchase, or allow his stock to reach such proportions that it necessitates more or less hard work, and probably a detriment to home comforts. He urged fanciers to consider what was required from them; they should join a society, but there was more required from a member than a simple payment of the club's subscription. After joining, having become a "shareholder" in his club, he urged him to do his duties faithfully and well, both to himself and to his fellow-members. Several interesting discussions took place, one, the superiority or otherwise of bricks over wood in the erection of an outdoor bird-room. The causes of colds, asthma, or bronchitis, the possibilities of a cure, and the advisability of breeding from affected specimens. Others of a minor character were discussed. Several birds were at the meeting, and the tours were explained by the Chairman. He pointed out a modulating bass roll, describing its varying changes of toue, saying it was one of the best he had ever had the pleasure of hearing. Another, similar, was a hollow roll, its value would have been enhanced with a little more depth of tone. It is gratifying to us, a new society, to learn that our birds are equal to the majority of those owned by North Staffordshire fanciers. I have not Mr. Tomlinson's permission to repeat all the kind things said of the part he is taking in endeavouring to instruct the roller fanciers in North Staffordshire, in the "mysteries of the bird's song tours."—Geo. Cross, Sec.

Avoid Unnecessary Trouble & Expense

BY REARING YOUR BIRDS ON

Spratt's COD LIVER OIL CAGE BIRD FOOD.

THERE IS EVERY REASON WHY YOU SHOULD USE THIS FOOD IN PREFERENCE TO THE OLD-FASHIONED EGG AND BISCUIT PREPARATION.

It is much more efficacious.
It is more easily prepared and keeps sweet much longer.
It is far less expensive.
It improves the size of birds fed upon it, assists them to feather quickly, and greatly increases their stamina.

For many years the most up-to-date Canary Breeders have regularly used Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Cage Bird Food, not only as a food for fledglings, but for a number of other purposes.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the safe delivery of OUR CANARIES from you.

I should like also to say that I am very satisfied with it. I think that all lovers of Canaries should be in possession of a copy. The information it contains I consider to be most valuable and practical to all bird fanciers, as a guide and help in keeping their birds in a healthy condition. I am going in for Norwich Greens, and feel quite safe while I am acting according to the advice in the book, especially when I see the names of all the leading judges and fanciers in the country.

Thanking you, I beg to remain,
Yours faithfully,
ED. JONES.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.
Headlines or Footlines, 1/-, 1/6 2/-, 2/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.
Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible.
All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.
The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.
Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona-fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.
Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.
Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.
Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.
We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.
SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.
HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.
1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.
2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.
3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.
4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.
5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE. When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.
6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the good are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.
7.—FRESH TRANSACTION. In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.
8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT. Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.
9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.
10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.
It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

Avoid Unnecessary Trouble & Expense

BY REARING YOUR BIRDS ON

Spratt's
COD LIVER OIL
CAGE BIRD FOOD.

THERE IS EVERY REASON WHY YOU SHOULD USE THIS FOOD IN PREFERENCE TO THE OLD-FASHIONED EGG AND BISCUIT PREPARATION.

It is much more efficacious.
It is more easily prepared and keeps sweet much longer.
It is far less expensive.
It improves the size of birds fed upon it, assists them to feather quickly, and greatly increases their stamina.

For many years the most up-to-date Canary Breeders have regularly used Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Cage Bird Food, not only as a food for fledglings, but for a number of other purposes.

SOFT MOULT

Special notice to all bird lovers. We are anxious that every fancier should know the value of our bird medicines. Ditchfield's Medicines have been used by most leading fanciers for over six years, and are supplied to the London Zoo. They are genuine remedies, which can be given with confidence to all classes of cage birds. Fanciers, we want a trial. We guarantee to return you every penny paid if our medicines fail to give you satisfaction. Special offer: If you have any birds you are relying upon for the breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, try Ditchfield's Tonic Drops. We guarantee you a perfect cure. This medicine is without doubt the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing birds into breeding condition. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are an absolute cure for Not Singing, Soft Moult, Going Light, Egg Binding, Feather Plucking, and Inflammation of the Bowels. In 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For Bronchitis, Wheezing, and Hoarseness, get Ditchfield's special Lung Tonic. It is the grandest Medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For cases of Constitutional Weakness and Debility get Ditchfield's Famous Revivo. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick-me-up for birds before and after showing, Revivo is absolutely unequalled. In 7d., and 1/1 bottles. In cases of severe Diarrhoea use Ditchfield's Famous Diarrhoea Powder, in 7d. and 1/1 bottles. It is perfectly safe, and can be relied upon. When ordering Medicine, kindly mention for what complaint, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free. As an advertisement, we will send two 7d. bottles of any of the above medicines for 1/-, three for 1/6, or two 1/1 bottles any kind for 1/9, three for 2/6. The 1/1 bottles are treble the size of the 7d. bottles. All medicines are sent, post free, per return. All bottles broken in transit replaced. Also two valuable Seed Recipes: How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for Song, given free to all Purchasers of our Medicines. THE most up-to-date manual on this popular bree is "Norwich Canaries: How to Breed, Manage, an Exhibit," by C. A. House. It contains a beautifu coloured plate, and many black and white illustra tions. In it will be found fullest hints and instruc tions on all the various points which go to make up a champion Norwich. It deals in a most practica manner with all the various stages of the life of a Norwich from the egg to the show bench, explains fully how to pair up the stock birds, how to feed the young, the art of colour feeding, and the way to wash and prepare birds for show. Do not be without it, post free 1/1½, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

I SOLD two more pairs of my champion Norwich last week for £9, and the money was deposited with the Editor; that's the proof. I do not send out rubbish. I have held the finest stud of exhibition Norwich in the Fancy for several years. The following birds are correctly described, and guaranteed as represented, and all ready for immediate breeding:—(1) Giant yellow marked cock, rare head, grand shape and quality, winner four firsts, keenest competition, £4; (2) very large buff cock, marked head and wings, a stormer for stock, with great head, 30/-; (3) grand marked buff cock, nest brother to No. 2, not quite the quality, but rare stock bird, £1; (4) unflighted eye, head and wing marked yellow, a coming champion, rare show bird this, 35/-; (5) unflighted clear yellow cock, fine head and size, 25/-; (6) ticked yellow cock, 1912 bred, teeming with quality, grand colour and size, 25/-; (7) clear yellow cock with fine massive head, rare size, 27/6; (8) variegated yellow cock, good head and quality, moderate size, 15/-, 1913 bred; (9) winning ticked buff cock, beautiful head, size, and quality, 21/-, cheap; all these cocks are in fine fettle, and worth considerably more money. The following excellent hens, would mate them if required:—(10) The best yellow hen in the Fancy, no sweeping statement, have it ou appro., 'nuff said, £3 3/-; (11) clear yellow hen, good head, a real high class hen, 25/-; yellow hen, ticked slightly on back, a right good one, 1912 bred, in fine form, 20/-; (13) unflighted clear yellow hen, good head and colour, 20/-; (14) variegated yellow hen, good hen for colour improving, not a champion, but one which will breed a good one, 12/6; (15) splendid clear buff hen, rare head and size, 17/6; (16) marked buff hen, a real good one, fine Norwich, 15/6; (17) real good show buff hen, winner, in fine condition, with a good cock must breed a winner, 27/6; (18) unflighted clear yellow hen, rare feather, moderate size, 10/6; (19) extra large clear buff hen, 1912 bred, trifle long in feather, otherwise a good one, would suit a good quality yellow cock, 12/6. Have any of these on approval and judge for yourself. These are not surplus stock, but the highest class birds, which many fanciers would not sell at any price. Terms cash, or deposit Editor: The Greatest Norwich Specialist, Judge Silk, Whitstable.

REAL BANDMASTERS.

Have you ever heard of my BANDMASTERS?

If not, I invite you to come and hear them sing. I have a magnificent collection, consisting of hundreds of pure-bred Seifert Roller Cocks, as imported by me direct from some of the best breeding rooms in Germany. They are well trained, in full rolling song, with many changes of tours, and include some really high-class birds that will give satisfaction anywhere. Every post brings me letters from customers who are delighted with the birds received. These letters are all filed here for the inspection of my visitors. Kindly note the following prices:—Cocks, in full song, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Hens, same pure strain, 3/-, 4/-, 5/- each. Genuine schoolmasters specially trained for contest singing, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 35/-, 40/- each, upwards. Travelling cages, 3d. extra in all cases.

I am also offering a limited number of hens bred from some of the best strains in England, at 7/6 and 10/- each. These are worth treble to any breeder. All B.R.C.C. rung. I invite fanciers requiring Rollers to come and hear these birds, and make their own selection. To those who cannot come I offer to send one or more birds to any address in the Kingdom at my sole risk, on ten days' approval, and undertake to return cash in full, if not absolutely satisfactory. Is it possible to make a fairer offer?

JOE THOMAS, BREEDER AND EXHIBITOR,
Ambler Thorn, Halifax, Yorks.

Remember! I Invite You

to come on any day but Sunday and inspect my stock. You need not announce your visit. Come at any time. You will be sure of a hearty Yorkshire welcome, and whether desiring to purchase or not, will be shown round my rooms and stock.

I have 14 large rooms full of grand stock and exhibition birds, also First-class Songsters, in every variety; all in the pink of health and condition.

As regards the quality of my stock, I need only say that during the show season just ended they have secured 76 Specials, 89 Firsts, 74 Seconds, and 69 Thirds, and have been shown in open champion classes only, in hottest competition at all the leading shows. They have also won the N.P.C. Champion Trophy, the O.N.P.C. Champion Trophy, 3rd in Y.C.C. Competition, also several Silver Cups and Bowls, Gold and Silver Medals, Diplomas, and numerous other trophies, finishing at the Crystal Palace Show with 4 Firsts, Silver Cup, and other honours.

I have also supplied birds that have won highest honours for my clients, including winners of this year's Palace show, in very strong classes. I have letters filed here for anyone to see in proof of this; also a large number of letters from fanciers who have bred winners from stock bred and sold by me.

These are FACTS, needing no comment. They speak for themselves, and they cannot be disputed. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. THERE is no more lovely Seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2½d. From agents (see list frequently published).

TALKING Green Amazon Parrot, most handsome plumage, finest, most fluent, plainest, and constant talker living, saying fully 200 words, long sentences, whistles tunes, sings actual words of "Oh, dear," "Tommy Atkins," "Polly Green," etc.; 4 years old, perches on hand and talks, heard talking, or approval before payment, £3 15/-: E. Milton, Eagle Chambers, Liverpool. (1544)

BUDGERIGARS and Cockatiels are among the most popular foreign birds, and C. P. Arthur has had a lifetime's experience with them. His book, 'Budgerigars and Cockatiels," will show you how to keep them, feed them for health, how to breed them, and how to teach them to talk. The price of this valuable handbook is only 6½d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

WAXBILLS! (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

Surplus stock purchased or exchanged. Large aquarium and bird cage combined worth 30/-; what offer? (1545)

BUDGERIGAR BREEDERS

Don't forget, best hatching results are only obtained when using my "Improved Secure" cocoanut husk nests, which have withstood all competition for over 25 years. I originated husk nests and, although imitated, nothing has yet equalled them for successful breeding results. Don't be misled; cheap, clumsily-made substitutes which fall to pieces when in use are dear at any price, causing losses and disappointing failures. Having bred thousands of Budgerigars I know their requirements. Am not a dealer and don't keep a bird shop. Parks, Zoos, and trade supplied, 4/6 dozen; smaller quantities 5d. each. Note changed address; larger premises: Harper, 26, New-st., Dudley. (1537)

AVICULTURAL SOCIETY

Those who are interested in British and foreign birds in freedom and captivity are invited to send in their names, with references, to be proposed as members of this society, whose monthly magazine has been published since 1894, with articles by all the best known and leading aviculturists, beautiful coloured plates and black and white illustrations, portraying birds of many species. Dr. Butler, the Marquis of Tavistock, Mr. St. Quintin, Mr. A. Trevor-Battye, Miss R. Alderson, Mr. Teschemaker, Mr. Seth-Smith, and others are constant contributors. Nearly 420 members, including aviculturists in the United States, Australia, and Africa, etc. Editor, Hubert D. Astley, Esq., Brinsop Court, Hereford, to whom communications should be addressed.

Club Reports.

SOUTHAMPTON C.B.S.

General meeting, April 6, at headqnarters, 23 present; three new members made, Messrs. W. G. Fellows, S. White and Dr. Weekes. Sec. announced that Mr. Geo. Gamble, Winchester, had promised to give a lecture on the breeding, colour feeding and exhibiting of Canaries at next general meeting, May 4, when non-members and all fanciers will be heartily welcomed.—W. L. Page, Hon. Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.S.

Meeting, April 9; Mr. Havenhand, chair. We have secured the large hall at the Vestry Hall for annual show, Nov. 21. Mr. Fletcher gave some very breezy and interesting hints on the management of British birds. A thorough fancier, Mr. Fletcher does not believe in giving anyone a puffed criticism of any bird. He criticised the specimens shown candidly and freely,, and his remarks were greatly appreciated. He also answered numerous questions in his usual inimitable manner, and members who were not present missed a most enjoyable meeting. After a hearty vote of thanks had been accorded him, Mr. Fletcher honoured us by accepting a honorary member's card. Awards: HARDBILL: 1, 2, M. Darlow; 3, 4, W. Buckley; vhc, W. F. Dyett. SOFTBILL: 1, W. Buckley; 2, 3, M. Darlow.—E. Johnson, Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting, April 8, headquarters, Marlboro' Hotel, Mr. Bayliss chair, and a capital attendance. Mr. Cowley, Little Bromwich, elected a member, and two others nominated, all being keen on the Yorkshire Fancy (still going strong). Decided to have the young bird shows on Saturdays this year, June 20 and July 18, birds to be entered day of show not later than 3.30, this giving all members a chance to bring their best birds and preventing disappointment when, after entering birds several days before, birds go amiss and owner cannot bring others because of the rules. Decided to try and obtain new judges from some distance, even if the Society did have to pay a little more; this and other show matters left over until the May meeting; number of paid-up members on books (reliable), 50. —J. Sheppard, Sec.

FIFE CAGE BIRD LEAGUE.

Meeting, April 4, Masonic Arms, Cowdenbeath, Mr. Wildridge (President) in chair. Decided to let the young bird show drop in favour of a Derby Show, about January. The balance of 6s. 10d., derived from the smoker in conjunction with annual meeting was considered very satisfactory. We were pleased to see a deputation from Buckhavon C.B.S., who agreed to join the League, and as that only leaves one society outside the League, we hope to see their deputation at the next meeting, May 2, at 5.30, Recreation Rooms, High Street, Kirkcaldy (opposite the King's Theatre). Mr. Thos. Arnott, Kirkcaldy, has promised a lecture, and all fanciers are cordially invited, if members of any of the societies in the League. They will be able to hear the League business, but not to take part in same. The following were appointed as a committee to draw up the letter in which the League means to tackle railway charges: Messrs. Wildridge, Arnott, Storrar, Reilly, Campbell, Reid, and Secretary, so as to get it as forward as possible before the show season starts. We have the assurance of a few specialist clubs, who will render us every assistance, and we mean to see what is in it. The subs. from each society to be as formerly, 5s., payable at next meeting. Decided to hold the June meeting in Dunfermline. A hearty vote of thanks to the chair ended the meeting.—Jas. Cordery, Sec.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

Meeting, April 2, Mr. M. P. Potts chair. Members elected: Mr. T. E. Hedley, Gosforth; and Mr. W. Dear, Ashington. Classification for open show on October 23: Norwich, 12 classes; Crests, 7 proposed, will be settled later; Yorks., 9; Scotch Fancy, 2; Borders, 15; Scll., 2; A.O.V., 1; Mule and Hybrid, 4; Brit., 10; For., 5. Members' classes will be considered later. Mr. Crawhall opened a discussion on breeding, and outlined the methods he has found to be successful in breeding winners. His first operation is thoroughly cleaning his room and cages, also having his birds in tip-top form before putting them together. The making of egg-food was practically demonstrated, Mr. Crawhall using a sieve for the egg and bread, and showing how to make the food nice and fine by putting twice through the sieve; he does not use sugar for bringing birds into condition. He uses 2 parts summer rape, 1 black rape, 1 hemp, 1 linseed, 1 teazle, 1 inga, 1 gold of pleasure, 1 millet, ½ maw; and for green-food watercress. Mr. Crawhall gave a great many useful points, such as the treatment of egg-bound hens, treatment of young, etc. A number of questions were asked and answered, and members had an enjoyable and profitable night. Mr. Crawhall was thanked for his kindness. Mr. Tindale outlined a scheme for the Northern Specialist Societies to be asked to grant their patronage to our Nest Feather Show, July 4. This will be discussed at next meeting, May 7. Will members of the Northern Specialist Societies please note; we give them a cordial invitation to come to that meeting and to bring this matter before their own meeting. Let us have a record attendance. Subs. now due.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

LEEDS ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, April 4, Mr. Walton presided over a good attendance. The appointment of the following gentlemen as judges at the annual contest, Nov. 13-14: Mr. Roebuck, Mr. Warding, and Mr. Fisher was sanctioned unanimously. The best hall in Leeds for the purpose has been engaged at great expense, and having every confidence, we hope to be as successful this year as in the past. A few members brought birds, and Mr. Walton kindly explained the song tours, after which a discussion took place on the song of the birds. Three members promised to bring birds to the next meeting, May 2, so if this should catch the eye of Mr. Gill, of Skipton, and he cares to run over to Leeds on that date, I am sure Mr. Walton will be pleased to explain anything he desires. Pleased to see any new fanciers.—H. Best, Sec.

LONDON C.B.A.

Meeting April 7, "El Vino." The most extensive and elaborate classification ever offered to British bird exhibitors was submitted for approval from the N.B.B. and M.C. in connection with their patronage and club show, to be held at the annual show at the Horticultural Hall, Nov. 26, 27 and 28. In addition to 59 classes with full prize money guaranteed, Mr. T. R. Trower has most generously offered £23 for extra prizes in open competition. A sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Crisp, Tyson, Boxall, Easterling and Knight, was elected to discuss the scheme further with the N.B.B. and M.C. The following judges have been elected to officiate at the annual show:—Crests, Mr. J. Tyson; Norwich, Mr. E. J. Rippon and Mr. A. Curtis; Yorkshires, Mr. R. L. Crisp and Mr. F. Easterling; British, Messrs. J. Robson, Allen Silver, C. Prior, J. Dewhurst and A. J. Marley.—F. Knight, Press Correspondent.

BEAMISH C.B.S.

Meeting, April 4, Bird Inn, Mr. J. H. Elliott chair. Decided to hold a young bird show, July 18; Messrs. R. S. Bewick, J. Riseboro, W. Reid, J. Hands, and H. Seely were nominated as judges, to be written to for terms. Decided to hold annual show Jan. 16; Messrs. J. Dixon, Wigton, J. Stanger, A. Holden, W. Reid, A. Brown, J. Riseboro, J. Hands, H. Seely and T. Dixon were nominated as judges. Election of officers: Mr. W. Gowand, chair.; Mr. R. Coates, vice-chair.; and Mr. J. H. Elliott, Sec. and Treas., 3, Jubilee Terrace, Edomsley, Durham. Decided to reduce annual sub. to 4s. for old members, with 1s. entrance fee for new members. We give a hearty invitation to any fancier in the district to join. Our society is standing well financially, and with these well-known fanciers at the head of affairs this promises to be a successful year for the Beamish C.B.S.—Peart and Cresswell, Secs.

PAISLEY O.S.

A social meeting of members and friends was held April 11, in Hutton's Hall, Moss Street; Mr. Robt. Neil, chair, and a good turnout. During the evening the chairman called on Mr. David Kennedy, who in a very neat and appropriate manner presented Mr. John Kelly, late sec. to the Paisley and District Ornithological Society, with a handsome gold watch and a gold brooch for Mrs. Kelly. The watch bore the following inscription: "Presented to John Kelly, Esq., by the members and friends of the Paisley and Dis. O.S., after 20 years' service as sec., 11th April, 1914." Mr. Kelly suitably replied on behalf of his wife and himself. An excellent programme of songs and readings, also selections on the violin, were given by Misses Neil and Donnachie, and Messrs. Sanderson, Montford, Donnachie, Wm. Neil, Brown, and R. Neil. Miss Hart ably presided at piano. The gathering was voted by all a great success, and hope expressed that it would be renewed.—A. M. Baird.

GLASGOW (West End) C.B.C.

Meeting and table show of British birds, Co-operative Hall, St. George's Cross, April 10, Mr. A. Hendry presiding over a good attendance. Entries for table show of British birds were a little back on last year, but the quality was excellent. Mr. C. Campbell judged, and gave every satisfaction. Principal prize winners: Messrs. G. G. Henderson, Peter Allan, and John McGarry. Unanimously decided that the meetings of May, June, August, and September (when there is not much business of importance to be transacted), be open and devoted to questions bearing on any subject, also friendly debates on Canaries and wild birds, the keeping, feeding, and moulting of same. Lectures, etc., may be arranged when time is found convenient. Members are therefore asked to invite a friend or friends to accompany them, when they will be made very welcome at any or all of these meetings. Next meeting, Co-op. Hall, St. George's Cross, May 8, at 8.—Wm. S. Proudfoot, Sec. and Treas.

About 50 members and friends attended a very successful smoker in the Crown Hotel, Lothian Street, Edinburgh, April 11. Mr. James Winter, the genial President, occupied the chair, and was accompanied by Messrs. D. Kinlayside, A. Hoyle, Henderson, and several other well-known gentlemen. Visitors were a little slow at coming forward at the outset, but once the ball was set rolling everybody settled down for a good night's enjoyment. After the Chairman had proposed the toast of "The King," the entire company sang with great gusto "God Save the King." A telegram was read from Mr. James Hutchieon apologising for not being present owing to having been shipwrecked on Holy Island. The Chairman also informed the meeting that he was sorry to say that Mr. John Brown, of British bird fame, was lying dangerously ill, but expressed the hope that he would pull through and soon be up and amongst them again. The toast of "The Scottish National C.B.S." was proposed by Mr. David Kinlayside, and in his remarks he said that the Scottish National had reached high-water mark, and that it was the duty of every fancier to try and keep it up to that level. He thought a great deal of the Society's success was because they had in Mr. Meikle a secretary second to none. In fact, he thought he was the premier sec. of Great Britain, and he hoped he would long be at the head of affairs. Mr. Kinlayside said that many more exhibitors should become members of the Society. He noticed a great number, even some with ten entries, who were non-members, and he counselled all present, whether they kept birds for a hobby only, or for exhibition, to be connected with the Scottish National C.B.S. He had great pleasure in coupling the toast with the name of their worthy secretary, Mr. Meikle. Mr. Winter, in replying on behalf of Mr. Meikle, thanked Mr. Kinlayside and the company for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast. He was certain that as long as Mr. Meikle was in the position of secretary they would have no cause to fear that the society would cease prospering.

The meeting all through was of a most harmonious and enjoyable nature, plenty of talent being readily forthcoming and the following gentlemen very ably kept things on the hum: Messrs. J. Charlton, J. Easter, J. Hay, J. Stormont, A. Napier, Ferguson, Low, C. Matthews, J. Noble, and Robertson.

After a long programme had been gone through the President proposed a hearty vote of thanks to all those who had helped to sustain the harmony, and the meeting broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Members are requested to invite their friends to this meeting.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. Jackson, Jun., Cockermouth.

To Mr. John Jackson, the popular secretary of the Cockermouth F.S., we extend our cordial sympathy in the sudden death of his eldest son, a promising and respected youth of 20 years. His genial disposition and upright life had made him popular alike with his employer, his comrades, and his fellow members. He was a genuine all-round fancier, and the ready manner in which he gave his services at show time especially prompted the last general meeting to give him, though so young, a seat on the committee. He had been ailing a short time, and on being brought downstairs preparatory to removal to a nursing home for an operation, he collapsed and died on the 9th inst. His funeral on Easter Sunday was very largely attended, the Society, in addition to sending a wreath, being largely represented. Amongst those present were Messrs. Oglethorpe (chairman), Simon (vice-chairman), J. Ellwood (treas.), J. W. Ellwood, W. P. Deacon, W. Gorley, Johnston, Bulman, J. Sewell, W. Reay, R. Jennings, R. Litt, etc.—Geo. Oglethorpe, Chairman.

A choice little consignment of Gouldian Finches (Reds and Blacks) has just been received by Messrs. Collingbourne and Co. (East Sheen), we are informed.

Illness of Well-known Edinburgh Personality.

We regret very much to learn of the serious illness which has befallen Mr. John Brown, who may well be termed the father of the British Bird Fancy in Edinburgh. May he soon be on his feet again, hale and hearty as ever.

Yorkshire Union Meeting.

A meeting of the Council of the Y.U. will be held at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, on April 18, at six o'clock prompt, writes Mr. H. Hill, the hon. sec. Business: Halifax and Dis. show date; novice medals for 1914-15; members' fees; printing, and payment of delegates expenses.

Sensational British Bird Classification.

The L.C.B.A. has under consideration a remarkable classification for the British bird section at the next Horticultural Hall show. The National British Bird and Mule Club (whose club show is held at this fixture) has suggested 59 classes, with full prize money guaranteed in each, and Mr. Trower has offered £23 for extra prizes in open competition. Future developments of this truly sensational scheme will be awaited with great interest by exhibitors of British birds.

Please notify that the following fanciers have been elected as members of the Blaydon and Dist. C.B. Society: Messrs. J. T. Reed, J. G. Hutchinson, and S. Cawthorne, writes Mr. G. Havver, the hon. sec.

We have appointed the following gentlemen to act as judges at Forfar C.B.S. open show: Mr. A. Chalmers (Norwich), Kirkintilloch; Mr. J. Auld (Borders) Bannockburn; Mr. G. Marlin (wild birds), Hamilton.—D. Kerr, sec.

Numbers of Nightingales are already singin the Ripley (Surrey) district.

Robin's Eggs in an Old Boot.

A pair of Robins have built their nest in an old boot hanging in a shed on the allotments at Tolworth, and are now hatching six eggs.

Leicester C.B.S. New Headquarters

The Leicester C.B.S. have changed their headquarters from the Bull's Head to the Hare and Pheasant, High Street, writes Mr. J. Hardbattle, the sec.

Blackbird's Nest on Embankment.

A pair of Blackbirds are nesting in the Embankment garden near the Hotel Cecil, London, and the cock bird sings daily on a neighbouring tree.

Social Evening for Dublin Fanciers

The first annual dinner and social of the South Co. Dublin C.B.A. will be held in the Popular Café, Kingstown, April 29; dinner at 7.30; tickets 3s. 6d., which can be had from me, writes Mr. D. Smyth, hon. sec., 14, Tivoli Terrace, N., Kingstown; or from the hon. secs. of the Dublin societies (Mr. Holley or Mr. Lattimore).

Rare Sunbirds Safely Landed.

I have brought back a beautiful cock Malachite Sunbird from South Africa—landed yesterday, April 7th—writes the Hon. Mrs. Bourke. Unfortunately I lost the hen, owing to the terrific heat in the tropics. I also brought a pair of Lesser Double-collared Sunbirds, and these are doing well. I received Cage Birds each week while I was away, and always look forward to the day it comes out.

British Birds and Eggs Offered to the City.

Mr. Robert S. Mitford, C.B., has, through the Lord Mayor, offered to the London Corporation for their museum at the Guildhall his collection of British birds, together with a cabinet full of eggs and a number of nests with eggs in them. The birds are stuffed and set up in 66 cases. They are all authentic British specimens, and the collection of small land birds is practically complete. The collection was formed by Mr. Mitford's father, Mr. Robert Henry Mitford, of Hampstead.

The Patronage of Specialist Clubs.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following clubs should apply to the respective secs.: Northern Border and S.F.C.C., M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle; Welsh C.B.C., A. E. Brown, 66, Clare Street, Merthyr Tydfil, closing date April 18; Midland Counties Y.C.C., W. Wells, Helmside, Erdington, Birmingham; Norwich P.H.C., F. Cunliffe, 19, Lark Street, Burnley; Northern C.C., Geo. Dobson, 103, James Street, Blaydon-on-Tyne; Southern Border F.C., F. W. Burton, 91, Forest Road, Dalston, N.E., closing date April 27.

THE MIND OF A BIRD.

By ALLEN SILVER.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—When your Mr. Law wrote me on Monday to fill in the gap of what would doubtless have proved an interesting evening, I was somewhat at a loss to hit upon a subject to talk about, and I hope you will bear with me for this evening if I confine myself pretty largely to the subject of the minds of the creatures we keep. This, however, will not prevent us from making the discussion which usually follows a general one—i.e., it need not necessarily be confined to the subject of my paper.

Not being an anatomist, I do not intend to bother you with details of the external and internal structure of birds; and it is also needless for me to remind you that inside a bird's skull is situated its brain, which is intimately connected with the spinal marrow; and that also, as in many other creatures, the brain, spinal cord and nerves form the nervous system. This telegraphic system is the bedrock of every movement and impression of the creature. Through it the eyes, nose, tongue, skin, ear—in fact, all the organs of perception—are able to receive or transmit those sensations of which the creature may be perceptible.

A Wonderful Nervous System

Irrespective of whatever beauty may be attached to any other part of the constitution of the creature, this nervous system is highly complex and wonderfully adjusted. The rapidity of flight and quickness of movement, the instant recognition of danger, are all put in motion by this system, a system which often may execute its work without the creature being conscious, although, of course, not without some stimulus.

We will now briefly deal separately with the several senses, taking first Sight. The power and accuracy of sight are in birds well developed, and sight is a sense upon which depends a great deal. The various telescopic arrangements which facilitate the rapid changes of position evidently work in wonderful harmony.

Hearing is another sense which in birds, generally speaking, is of necessity very acute, and sounds which may not be readily heard by the normal civilised human ear seem often to be instantly recorded on the tympanic membrane or ear drum of birds.

The tongue in birds, as you know, is very variously formed, and in some, where the structure is delicate or very fleshy, certain sensations of pleasure possibly may be perceived. As most birds use it solely for manipulation of food, and many birds gulp down whatever they pick up or shell, probably very little pleasure is derived from the process. It is just possible that birds with a prominent crop may feel a kindred sensation there.

Although the tongue of birds is said to be rich in sensory bodies, these are imbedded in and beneath a horny sheath, and if birds spent time enjoying a process of mastication in the mouth, if such were possible, I am afraid it would not serve a very useful purpose. The somewhat laboured process of breaking up a mealworm and consequent chewing to make it "swallowable" should not be confounded with our own process of mastication.

The olfactory glands in birds may not be as useful to them as in the case of many other creatures, and in many cases I am inclined to think that the sense of smell is of much less importance to them than are those of sight, hearing and touch. One group of birds, the Kiwis or Apteryx, have the nostrils situated at the end of the bill, and it is just possible that they can smell the creatures they probe for. Whilst feeding, the bird is said to make a snuffling sound, but that is feasible if the nostrils are situated at the end of the bill, and this is plunged in mud to the base.

The Sensitive Bill.

The sense of touch is probably more highly developed. The sensations of touch in birds are mostly received through the medium of the bill, and the nature of objects and articles of food are tested by contact with that organ. Outside the great diversity of size, form, elegance of structure and colouring of a bird's beak or bill, it is often an object of the greatest beauty from a structural point of view. In some birds—for instance, Snipe, Sandpipers, and Curlew—the fifth pair of nerves extend their filaments to the tip of the bill, which in a skeletonised state presents a honeycombed appearance. Whilst grubbing in mud and slime the bird is able to determine the nature of the obstacles it encounters and which are out of sight.

Glycerine for Egg-Binding.

If a hen Canary is egg-bound and a fancier hesitates to steam the bird, a good plan is to put a little of equal parts of glycerine and water in a tea-spoon and give some to the hen. Put also some drops in the drinking-water. This will often bring the egg away.—Mary H. Scott (St. Andrews).

A Quill Hand-feeding Implement.

Fanciers who are compelled to assist in the feeding of youngsters, or in rearing wild nestlings, will find the following a very useful help. Get a goose feather, cut off the quill, just a handy length, and make a stick to fit it (after pop-gun fashion). Fill the quill with soft food, hold it between your two forefingers, with your thumb on the stick, and the least pressure forces out the food. There is no waste, and it is both cleanly and a time-saver.—J. T. Coombes, 18, Bangor St., West Hartlepool.

Rice Cake Highly Recommended.

If fanciers will try stale rice cake with the egg-food (easily crumbled) they will be more than satisfied with the results. In fact, I have reared youngsters on it alone, when "trustworthy" eggs have been bad to get. The birds are all fond of it, and never waste any. It is a cheap, as well as a wholesome food.—J. T. Coombes (West Hartlepool).

A Substitute for Egg Food.

Now that the breeding season is here, fanciers will be looking out for a suitable rearer, egg-food being despised by many. I beg to suggest a food which I have tried with success, namely Lactol. This will be found to be very convenient for mixing, will keep indefinitely, and when used with bread previously soaked, the birds cannot resist it.—T. Harrington (Gillingham).

Nest Boxes for Foreigners.
Winner of Half-Crown Prize.

Pretty nest boxes which are much more attractive, and have a more natural appearance than coco-nut husks, can be easily made as follows:—First make a box the required size of three-ply wood, with a movable top, of course. Make a round hole in one end for an entrance. Make some cement by using half each ordinary cement and sawdust, and with this line the bottom of the box; shape it hollow with a spoon, so that the eggs can rest in same without rolling about the bottom. Now cover the exterior of box with rustic corkwork, as sold by any ironmonger, filling in the cracks with some of the same cement as used for the nest bottom. The hole for the bird's entrance can be cut in the cork, over the one previously made in the box, and filled around with the cement as well. These nests well repay one for the trouble of making, and several hung in a large aviary give a prettier effect that the stiff and formal looking coco-nut husks lack. The piece of cork-work that covers bottom of box could project in front to form perch for birds on entering or leaving nest.—G. J. Munday, 37, Leat Street, Tiverton, Devon.

A Novice's 30s. Weekly Profit from Canaries.

This very interesting lecture was given before a large number of members and friends of the Tong and District C.B.S., on April 7, by the president, Mr. L. Hodgson.

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Fanciers: In giving you my views on the Breeding and Management of Canaries, I shall especially direct my remarks to our novice members and those who are not acquainted with the customary methods of Canary breeding. It is now over thirty years since I bred with my first pair of Canaries, and I have been in touch with the Fancy ever since, so that if experience teaches us, I think I should give you something worth listening to, even by our older members. Of course, Canary breeding is, like many other hobbies, attended with good, bad, or indifferent luck, and however careful we may be, frequently our calculations are upset in the most puzzling way, while the most complete success sometimes attends on the most unlikely effort. This, in my opinion, makes it the more interesting. If success attended every effort, there would be no honour in producing our desired object.

The Canary is popularly termed "The Home-bird of England," and is to be seen more frequently as a song bird than any other species, being easily kept and bred. Being such a popular bird then, it is not surprising that the demand for Canaries is immense, the breeding and rearing of them forming no inconsiderable item in the minor industries of the country. There is scarcely a town or village from Land's End to John O' Groats but where we find the bird cultivated for either song or exhibition purposes. In Yorkshire it is being taken up very extensively for exhibition purposes. As proof of this we have only to refer to the Yorkshire Union Handbook, or the handbooks of the specialist clubs. Last year we had 27 societies affiliated to the Union, which comprised a membership of 1,030. So providing each member keeps twenty birds, and we add a third for the fanciers who are not connected with the Union, we get a total of nearly 29,000 birds in the districts covered by the Union!

The Canary is the poor man's saving's bank. From my experience a man for a hobby cannot have anything more remunerative or interesting than that of Canary breeding. To make them remunerative, apart from breeding, you must learn the art of judging and buying the right specimens when opportunity occurs. I could instance many cases during the past year where fanciers have speculated and netted £4 or £5 in as many weeks. Long before Christmas, one novice fancier told me candidly he had then sold over £80 worth of stock from what he had bred, and I assure you he had some good ones left then, and not a few. Well, now, I think to net 30s. per week out of a hobby is very nice; it should be one well worth cultivating.

The way in which a pair of Canaries set up house-keeping and order their household is enough in itself to give the bird a strong claim on our sympathies. Other birds will under favourable conditions occasionally breed in confinement, but the Canary has established itself in our families as one of us, and regardless of prying eyes or inquisitive curiosity builds its little home and treats us to all the interesting details of bird-life which cannot be seen elsewhere. There is a strange fascination in a bird's nest. It is not often that, with all our care and watching, we are able to observe the whole of the daily routine of such a little household, or learn how, without copy or design, and without having seen a model, a bird constructs its home after a pattern peculiar to its kind. Our friend the Canary brings much of this home to us, and shows how the thing is done. For my own part I spend many happy hours with the birds during this part of the season.

Interesting all the Year Round.

There are three interesting periods connected with the Fancy, which keeps us well occupied nearly the whole of the year round. The first is the breeding season, then comes the moulting season, then the exhibition season. The first is to form the basis of this evening's programme, and before we begin I want to ask you to bear these few lines in mind:

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows along like a song;
But the man worth while, is one who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong.

I want you to bear this in mind for the simple reason that unless you have plenty of patience and perseverance we cannot make you into a genuine fancier. I think that many of those who join the Fancy are lost simply through lack of patience and perseverance. If you enter with a firm determination to achieve any desired object, and smile at either success or failure, you are sure to be in the end amply repaid for your trouble.

Commencing with the cages, I am not going to tell you what you have, or what you have not, to get. I shall merely tell you what I have, and leave the rest for you to decide, according to your room and circumstances. I use what are termed double-breeders—that is, a cage of two compartments, each 18in. square. I consider this a nice size, allowing ample room for exercise. The centre division has a good sized hole through which the birds can pass with ease and comfort. The cage can thus be used as a small flight for four or five birds when required. All my cages are of uniform size, which gives a neat appearance, and such are much more easily arranged than those of different sizes. By this all the water glasses are under each other, thus avoiding the water dropping into the seed boxes.

Something Worth While Knowing.

My cages are gone through twice a year—before and after breeding. The inside I do out with whitening, mixed with a little thin flour paste and dissolved camphor, about the size of a nut. The latter acts as a disinfectant and preventive to the red mite. The outsides I generally do with black lacquer, or first paint black and then varnish. A capital thing for the outsides is also the following: Get 1lb. of fat (cost 3d.) and 2d. worth of camphor. Dissolve in jug or bowl, then mix with 1 pint of paraffin. If you have not had this "wrinkle" before, I can assure you it alone is worth the trouble of coming to hear as a positive preventive of the red mite.

No. 637.
To Circumvent the Red Mite.

Sent by B. Hatton, 27a, Gurdon Road, Charlton, S.E.

In large cages fitted with sliding partitions it is often a trouble to move the slides, through the sand or sawdust used on the floor of cages getting in the grooves and causing them to stick. Red mite also accumulates in the top grooves when slides stick tight. To prevent these two evils, mark off portions of slide that fit in grooves at top and bottom, and cut away with saw. Next take four pieces of cage wire 3 inches in length, bend round in the form of a staple, fix ends A, A, into slide at B, B, allowing bend of wire to project equivalent to portion of slide cut off. The slides will then work easily, and cannot stick; and, not fitting tightly at top, cannot harbour red mites. It is also a good plan to round the edge of slide that fits against back of cage, a possible hiding-place for our old enemy.

No. 638.
An Easily Removed Perch.

Sent by W. S. Parsons, Elm Cottage, Northborn Road, Farncombe, Surrey

The sketches show an idea for fixing a perch so as to allow of its being easily removed. Cut the perch about half an inch shorter than the length of the cage. Obtain two wire nails about an inch long, cut off the heads, then beat them out flat, and drive partly into the perch ends. Cut two little slits in the sides of the cage, small enough to ensure that the flatness of the nails will prevent the perch from twisting round. You then have a perch which is easily removed for cleaning, and which does not harbour red mite.

Breeding Linnet-Canary Hybrids.

WHEN your birds are in breeding condition, the Linnet will be singing loudly and bouncing about in his cage in fine style, swagering his feathers and calling all the time to his mate, who should be kept in a cage so arranged that the Linnet cannot see her. The hen Canary if ready for breeding will be acting in a way similar to the Linnet, only calling instead of "singing," of course.

If your Canary acts in the above manner you may place a little nesting material between the wires of her cage, and if she pulls some out and starts carrying it in her beak about the cage, looking for some place to put it in, you know she will soon be ready for breeding. It is now best to wait a few days to make doubly sure that both your birds are in proper breeding condition. If they both seem to be in proper order you can place a felt lined nest pan in the Canary's cage and introduce the Linnet to her.

There will now be in all probability a fight, but never mind, as the two birds will soon be friends. Increase the nesting material, and watch the Linnet does not pull out the felt lining of the nest pan. This can be prevented by sewing or gumming the felt lining into the nest pan. If things seem to be going on favourably you will soon see the Linnet doing the necessary part to produce fertile eggs. If he fails you have mated your birds too early, so take my advice and don't mate your birds too early.

When you see your birds mate with one another you know you will soon possess some eggs. I have not said anything about the Canary building a nest, as I find hen Canaries are as a rule poor nest builders. You should now keep a close eye on your hen Canary at nights, as she may be ready to lay on any following morning. The night before she lays she will usually be found on the cage bottom, especially if she be a young hen; but never mind, do not disturb her.

The First Egg Arrives.

The first thing next morning there should be an egg in the nest-pan, with the Canary looking on as happy as can be. You gently and carefully remove the egg to a place of safety, and substitute a pot egg for the one taken away, until all eggs are laid. She will usually lay four eggs, so on the evening the third egg is laid arrange the nest-pan nicely and place in the three eggs, taking away the pot ones.

Next morning she will have laid her fourth egg; now remove the Linnet, as she will sit closely without him, and he is rather liable to peck the eggs if left with her. If one prefers to leave in the Linnet it is best to let her sit on her eggs in a very dark nest box, not too dark for discomfort, however. She will enter the dark box fearlessly to her eggs, but the Linnet it will be seen will be afraid to enter.

Preparing for the Advent of Young.

You can now gradually give the Canary a less rich diet, say plain Canary as staple, with a little rape, and, of course, a small amount of egg-food occasionally. Do not forget to provide her a bath, and also give her a little green-food.

The eggs will usually hatch, if all goes well, on the thirteenth or fourteenth day of incubation. On the twelfth day give your hen Canary plenty of egg-food, with a richer diet all round as she commences to feed her young. On the thirteenth morning look to see if any young are hatched, and remove any egg-shells if left in nest. If the eggs don't hatch on the thirteenth day wait a few days longer.

When you get chicks you will hear them make a kind of whistling noise under the Canary's wings. You must now give the hen Canary as much egg-food as she will consume, plus her seed diet, as the chicks will grow very rapidly. As for egg-food I find the kind sold in tins is quite good, and when I was in England I saw a kind which seemed to be very good. The birds ate it with great relish. I advise you to mix egg-foods with milk instead of water.

As your birds get older they will become more and more restless, and at about three weeks old should be out about the cage. The hardest time of a Linnet-Canary Hybrid is at this time, i.e., when you commence to wean them on to hard seed. The best way I find to do it is at first to supply your youngsters with scalded Canary and rape seeds. As you see them eating it gradually give them a little lightly crushed seed, and afterwards a mixture of crushed and uncrushed seeds, and they will soon learn to crack their own seeds. Of course, you must still give them a little egg-food until you find you can discontinue it.

A Bit Harum-Scarum at First.

When you cage your youngsters off they will usually be a trifle wild at first, but take no notice as they will soon steady down. The best menu at this time for your birds is as follows: 1 part Spanish Canary, 1 part summer rape, ½ part teazel and linseed. A limited supply of the usual wild seeds before mentioned can also be given sparingly, and also give a small amount of green food to them. A pinch of hemp seed can also be given very moderately.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

BIRDS SEEING EACH OTHER (V. P.).—(1) There is no reason why the birds should not see each other that is of any moment. If they are in very robust health and desirous to mate, it may possibly incite the hen to lay an occasional egg during the summer, which, of course, would be useless and could be thrown out at once, but this is not likely to have any serious effects at all in such a case as yours. (2) It is not very unusual for a cock to cease singing when placed near or in sight of a hen just at this season. It is generally due to a desire to mate diverting the attention from singing. It may be only temporary, and the song be resumed in a week or two. But if you wish the song to go on now you should put the birds in cages with wires in front only, and hang them on the same side of the room. This, of course, will prevent them seeing much of each other, but it is unavoidable if you want the song to go on.

UNFERTILE EGGS (Anxious Amateur).—You should try another cock with these hens, and leave the pairs together permanently, at least until the hens have begun to sit. The cock you have might possibly do for one hen, but get a vigorous cock between one and two years old for the other, and keep them in separate pairs. Give each bird half-a-teaspoonful of egg food with about half the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and sesame, mixed in it daily, and also a small growing stool of dandelion fresh daily. In the water you may add six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day for a week.

EFFECTS OF REMOVAL (Doubly Anxious).—The moult is only what might have been expected to result from the removal of the birds from the warm room to a cold one. It is quite possible you may be able to get one or two broods from them this season. Give each bird half-a-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed daily. Every second day give a small growing stool of dandelion, gathered fresh, and on the alternate days a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, and teazle. In the water add six drops of tincture of gentian, and three of tincture of steel two days in every three until the feathers cease dropping. As the birds are already casting feathers it is too late to attempt colour feeding them.

A TRIO (E. V.).—(1) Considering the age of this bird, her last protracted moult, and that she is evidently in a much weakened condition, I cannot advise you to breed with her again this season, nor, indeed, any more at all unless she should show a very great improvement, recuperate well during the summer, and have a good moult next autumn. In the latter case you might try her again next spring, as her age alone will not necessarily prevent her breeding successfully. Add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn to her drinking water every second day for a week, and after this give 20 drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight or so. (2) I fancy the panting is due to over-feeding. Try the following treatment, and if it is not wholly successful write again at the close of it and refer to this reply, when I will advise you further. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only for a month. Once a week give a small pinch of summer rape, and on one other day a morsel of bread and milk, not larger than a hazel nut, sprinkled with maw. Give a liberal allowance of green food daily. In the water add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and in the next week give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid and six of tincture of gentian every second day. In the third week repeat the first week's dosage, and in the fourth week give 20 drops of chemical food daily. (3) If you had a clutch of half-incubated eggs there could be no objection to putting them under a hen that was only just beginning to sit, and thereby shortening her period of sitting, provided, of course, the eggs had not been dangerously chilled. But how are you going to get the first half of the incubatory period performed if you wish to adopt the same practice with all your hens? Personally, I see no advantage in tampering with the natural course of events in this way.

EATS HIS FEATHERS (C. E. S. H.).—(1) The diet is not altogether suitable. Give a staple of a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give separately every second day a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, black rape, teazle, and a morsel of banana. On the alternate days give a little green food, either chickweed, flower-buds of groundsel, watercress, or dandelion, in the order named. Add to the drinking water every second day for one week six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny piece, and in the next week give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. A mealworm a day would be beneficial if you have any available. Limit the diet to the above for a few weeks, and stop giving linseed, sugar, and all other dainties. Allow the bird to bathe freely. (2) The present time is an excellent one to commence breeding with either the Roller or any other variety of Canary, but it is very late to buy hens. You ought to have done the buying a few weeks ago.

THE COURSE OF LOVE (W.W.).—(1) The answer to this query is that the process varies somewhat according to the vigour and temperament of the individuals concerned. At one time the action of the tender Dove may be suggested, and a certain amount of billing take place beforehand, and at other times it may be the rush and vim of gay chanticleer, when the "kiss" comes after, or not at all. Not infrequently there will be much more "scrapping" than "kissing." (2) There is no fixed time in which to expect eggs after putting the birds together. The time it takes them to settle down depends upon the condition of the birds themselves—it may be only little over a week, or it may be a month, or even two months. See reply to "Italia" in last issue. Your birds appear to be progressing all right, but have not been together quite long enough yet. You should get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our Manager would send you for 7d., post free, to help you over these little difficulties through the season.

Owing to the intervention of the Easter Holidays a number of Queries were not received until Tuesday last, and we cannot, of course, get these answered in this issue. They will be dealt with, however, next week.—Editor.

A BROKEN LEG (Marker).—You have probably failed to get the ends of the broken bone into their proper position before binding on the quill, and I fear the portion of the limb below the fracture will slough away. It seems as though mortification had set in, in which case only amputation of the part would be of any use, and this should not be attempted by an amateur. The only interference I would advise now is in case the part has sloughed to anoint the stump daily with Lanocyllin until healed. I do not advise you to let the bird go to nest until the leg is quite sound again. If a valuable breeding bird, and she should appear to be laying in a week or two, you might mate her and place the eggs under a foster hen to be hatched and reared, but do not let her sit for some little time yet.

HEN NOT FEEDING (Miss Hellier).—I am afraid there are many of these non-feeding hens that will not be "kept on feeding" by anything you can do. Putting salt in the drinking water is of no use, neither is it advisable to do so, but if you offer the hen a bath made slightly saline by the addition of a little common salt as soon as a hen appears to flag at feeding, it will, if she makes use of it, often do good. In the drinking water you might dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea for one-half of each day for a few days. Besides this give egg-food in small quantities not less than twice, and preferably three times, a day, make it as palatable as you can for the hen, and sprinkle it with maw seed. See that it is crumbly moist, not sloppy, nor sticky. On the third day give a tiny morsel of freshly gathered green food. From this time gradually increase the quantity supplied as the needs of the growing brood increase, and about the sixth or eighth day you may add a little soaked or scalded summer rape, and on the tenth day a little cracked hemp. But remember that small quantities of fresh palatable food replenished as often as necessary are much better for keeping the hen keen on feeding than large quantities which must remain in cage until part of it becomes stale. Do not interfere with the nest or young more than is absolutely unavoidable, and if the cock was left with the hen last time, try her with him removed next time, and vice versa. If she refuses to feed then offer her a little bread soaked in cold milk, in addition to other items, and if that fails your best plan is to place them under a more natural parent with young about the same age, if such an opportunity occurs; otherwise try hand-feeding. If you can keep the young going a few days, it is quite possible that the hen will resume her normal duties, and complete the rearing herself.

YOUNG DYING (G. E. W.).—Thanks for further particulars about your birds and their management. On the face of it one would certainly think the green food was at fault. But this can only be the case in quite exceptional circumstances, such as being in unwholesome condition, or grown in unhealthy surroundings. Do you use green food in the ordinary way for the old birds, or was the little watercress you gave to the parents of the two young which died so soon after the first that had been supplied? Assuming this was really wholesome greenstuff, and the young really healthy, it is hardly likely that the result could have been so disastrous in the time named. When you have any more young do not give the egg-food with three parts egg to one of bread crumb more than one day. Reduce the egg gradually, until, by the end of the first week, it is two parts bread or biscuit to one of egg. Also try giving no green food at all to one or two broods, and with one or two others try giving chickweed, just the extreme tips with the flower-buds of groundsel, or dandelion, beginning with very small quantities on the third or fourth day, and being very careful to see that it is perfectly sound and freshly gathered, free from wet, and grown in healthy conditions. When the young are about eight days old add a little soaked rape, and a little cracked hemp at ten or twelve days old. If the hens seem to flag offer a little bread and milk, and a morsel of banana, which you may use to take the place of green-food for those hens which you do not allow to have any of the latter. I shall be pleased to hear you have succeeded better with the next broods.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

FOOD FOR SKYLARK (W. M.—All mixed food for soft-billed birds should be made just crumbly moist with either water, milk, or vegetable matter such as scraped raw carrot or boiled potato.

USING GOLDFINCH FOR SECOND NEST (Perplexed).—You can use your Goldie to the hen Canary for the second nest; it is frequently done, particularly where the fancier is anxious to get a brood of Canaries first to keep up the strain. There is considerable difference in the behaviour of Finches; some can be introduced when the young are only a few days old, others cannot be trusted. Your safest plan is to wait until the hen shows signs of wanting to go to nest the second time, then run him in; if mating takes place he can be taken out and introduced again the next day. It is just possible that your young ones will be old enough to be placed in the nursery, if so, you could, of course, leave the Finch with her. I presume they have been flying together all the winter, and are therefore quite used to each other.

BREEDING WITH GOLDFINCH (New Bird Lover).—There is no reason whatever why you should not breed with your Finches if you feel inclined to do so; in fact, I am of the opinion that breeding birds make finer specimens than bachelors. As regards teaching Greypates to sing, the proper tutor would be an old Finch or a Goldfinch-Canary that had the Finch note, but I fear you would have a difficulty in getting the latter. If you are the possessor of a good exhibition Goldfinch I would advise you not to trouble about his song; get an adult cock next autumn if you are fond of the Goldfinch note.

UNSATISFACTORY SONGSTER (W. G. Tucker).—Birds are something like human beings, some are good songsters, some very indifferent; there are even degrees of excellence among the best. If your bird sings from five o'clock in the morning until nine, you get four hours' song out of him, which is not at all bad, although I am rather surprised that he does not tune up a bit during the evening. You appear to be feeding him fairly well, so he should sing a little at other times. You had better try him in another position or take him inside for a few hours during the day, cover him up, then uncover, and hang him outside again about four or five o'clock. One of these methods may answer. It is no uncommon thing for a captive bird to sing when hung in a certain position and not in another.

VENTILATING BIRD-ROOM (C. Bonsall).—The window of your bird-room should be hung on hinges, for opening in very hot weather, and I would advise you to have ventilation openings, about 12 inches by 6, cover these with perforated zinc, and have a movable shutter to work in front of them, so as to regulate the air according to the weather. I would also advise you to put ordinary roofing felt over the boards on the inside before nailing on the lining of matchboards. You will find this will make the house much more cosy. You should also have a ceiling, this gives greater warmth, and uniformity of temperature.

THRUSH NOT SINGING (H. J. C. C.).—Try a change of food. Get a pound of good insectile mixture and give him three days a week, or purchase some best quality chicken meal, mix a spoonful of meat meal with it, and soak in hot water. I fancy the food you are giving him contains rather much barley meal, which is very heating. You had better give him a couple of doses of salts on alternate days. Dissolve as much as you can put on a sixpence in his drinking water and give when cold. Read the advice given to "W. G. Tucker," and hang your bird in another position. (2) The two Hybrids will naturally copy what they hear, and tit-bits out of Linnets' and Skylarks' song would not be bad, but correctly the Hybrid should be trained under the father, that is, a Linnet Canary under a Linnet. (3) You can procure a 'Gale soon after they come over in the spring, or wait until the autumn; get a bird properly moated off, even if you have to pay a good price for it. You may see some advertised later on.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

YOUNG GREY (A. W. A.).—I am afraid, considering all the conditions and the sum you name, it will be only throwing your money away to think of getting a young Grey, as you could only get the rawest of birds for that amount, and such are a most precarious purchase indeed. My advice is either wait till you can afford to spend double the amount you name, or be contented with a Blue-fronted Amazon; these have beautiful plumage, are good mimics, fair talkers, and generally are very entertaining, and you should be able to get a decent specimen for what you can afford to spend. Consider this reply and write again informing me which course you prefer to take and I will reply fully.

GOLDEN CONURE (Braudt).—I can only assume that the Sun Conure (Conurus solstitialis) is meant. I have seen very tame individuals, but they (all Parrakeets) vary; kindness, quietness, and attending personally to the supply of tit-bits, usually bring about the desired result. I have never heard of a talking bird of this species. Very few Conures talk, though such is not beyond their capacity. Not when once it has got over the prostration which usually follows importation. Speaking from memory (I am away from home, and my skins and books) the head of the hen is rounder and smaller than that of the male, and her beak is also a little smaller. A difficult question, as all Parrakeets screech at times, even the most tame; but so far as my experience goes, the Golden Conure is very undemonstrative, as also is the beautiful Red-vented Parrakeet. There are some beautiful small (e.g., Canary-wing) Parrakeets, which become delightfully tame, but they screech when excited.

LEMON-CRESTED COCKATOO (H. Claydon).—Give a seed mixture of Canary, white millet, sunflower and oats, one quart each; one pint each of hemp, maize, paddy rice, and pea nuts; well mix and keep constant supply in cage. Also supply any kind of fruit it will take, nuts (Brazil, walnut, and Spanish), pieces of biscuit, stale bread, and plain cake. You must also keep up regular supplies of grit, cuttlebone, and pieces of wood for the bird to exercise its beak upon, and, of course, constant supply of water. As regards cleaning, till it becomes tame enough to be allowed out of its cage, and to be then offered a bath in a large dish, you must content yourself with spraying it daily with chilled water, and the plumage will soon improve. If you attempted to tie the bird up while you washed it, the bird's temper would probably be permanently ruined.

AN AILING MYNAH (Mahoney).—After you have moistened the soft food, add ten drops of cod liver oil daily and well stir in. Put half a teaspoonful of syrup of phosphates into the drinking water daily. Supply ripe fruit and at least a dozen mealworms daily; the mealworms can be supplemented with any spiders, caterpillars, etc., you can capture for it—it must have some live food regularly, not merely when possible. Mealworms are always on the market, but in the summer time let it have anything that creeps or flies that you capture for it—it can have any garden pest it will eat. The Parrot cage will answer so long as it does not stand in a draught, but a box type cage is the better. Keep the bird in as warm a position as you can till it is fat again. Twice a week give it about an inch cube of either raw or cooked meat finely minced—add this to the soft food mixture. When you see this reply give the bird a little very weak brandy and water (chilled). If there should be no improvement, repeat query in a fortnight.

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON (Jacko).—The dietary for this species should consist of seed mixture, boiled maize, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, stale crusts, also constant supplies of Parrot grit, cuttlebone, piece of a branch, and water. A good seed mixture is as follows: One quart each canary, white millet, hemp and oats, one pint wheat, dari, and sunflower seeds, half a pint each shelled pea nuts and paddy rice; well mix the whole and keep a constant supply in cage. Give the bird a fair-sized piece of apple or banana twice daily, also offer such as walnuts and Spanish nuts at intervals. Milk and tea sops are decidedly bad for the bird, but you must not stop these too suddenly; but do not use either milk or tea—use equal parts of chemical food and chilled water to moisten either stale household bread or pieces of plain biscuit. For a month or a little longer put ten drops of cod liver oil on to the boiled maize after all water has been drained away. As regards water, they do not get much during importation, and in some dealers' shops, and to give them constant supply would mean that they would over-drink to their own hurt; let it have a good drink of chilled water two or three times daily, but after a few weeks it should be safe to leave the water constantly in the cage. Once a week put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of water, and give only this for that day. As soon as you are convinced the bird is eating sufficient of the other items, gradually give less and less of the bread or biscuit sops and finally cease supplying these at all. It is decidedly wrong to give a Parrot a bit of everything you eat yourself the items named supply an amply varied diet for the bird. The procedure is, constant supplies of the seed mixture, a portion of boiled maize, a piece of fruit in the morning, and if eaten another in the afternoon; nuts, etc., at intervals. If you carry out above treatment, you can ignore the other instructions referred to; if you should notice any unfavourable symptoms, write at once. Cover the cage, but leave at least a portion of the centre of top of cage uncovered for ventilation. The other conditions you name should suffice.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Egg-Preserving (Sands).—This week's issue of our sister journal, "The Poultry World," happens to treat especially on the preservation of eggs, and you will find therein all the information you desire.

Alpha.—We shall be glad to have details of your idea if this turns out to be a success. You should try the Blackcap Warbler. This species presents no difficulty in the keeping if intelligently fed: ripe fruit should figure largely in the diet. See "Nutshell" booklet No. 25.

E. G. S. Everard.—This matter was dealt with some time since by Mr. Fulljames in his "Cage Birds League" notes.

Norvic.—Go to your local county court and take out a summons against the man for the price of the bird. On the facts as you state them, he has not a leg to stand upon (as the saying goes), and will have to pay you for the bird and the costs attaching to the issue of the summons.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

G. Woolley.—Metis-peritonitis, resulting from rupture of an imperfectly-shelled egg in the oviduct. There was inability to expel the egg as the walls of the oviduct could not get suitable or even pressure on the egg in its soft state; rupture of the egg occurs, and its contents become septic.

WISHAW C.C.

Meeting, Watson's Hall, April 4. Office-bearers appointed for season. Next meeting, May 2, when we will be glad to accept new members. Membership fee, 6s.; five-mile radius.—D. McPhie, Sec.

DERWENT VALLEY C.B.S.

Meeting, April 4, Co-operative Hall, Low West wood. Mr. Geo. Barkess, chair. Very poor attendance. Owing Newcastle show falling on Oct. 24, we decided to put ours back for a week, viz., Oct. 31. Will members and intending members try and get to next meeting, May 2, at above hall? Mr. Thos. Fletcher, Rowlands Gill, elected a member.—Jameson and Johnson, Secs.

LEYTON C.B.A.

Meeting, headquarters, April 6, about thirty present. A very interesting egg-food competition took place, in which eight members competed, each bringing their own utensils. Three prizes were offered for best samples, time taken in making not to count. These were won by Messrs. A. B. Forse, W. Tuck, and J. A. Bartlett in order named. The remainder of the evening was taken up by a discussion on soft food and feeding in general. Meeting closed with vote of thanks to Mr. W. Dalton, who judged the competition.—A. W. Farmer, Hon. Assist. Sec.

LEITH O.S.

Meeting, Liberal Club, Hope Street, April 11, President Mr. Lumsden presiding over one of the best meetings for a long time. Sec. read a letter from Mr. G. W. Currie, M.P., consenting to become a patron of the society. Three new members were admitted: J. A. Muir (Leith), A. Shields (Edinburgh), and J. Little (Musselburgh). Judges were nominated for annual show, Nov. 14, and names will be published on getting their acceptance. Sec. was instructed to write Mr. Sykes, Musselburgh, to see if he would arrange a ramble for the members to some convenient place in his district.—George W. Brown, Sec.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S

Meeting, April 7. Mr. Gibbins presided over a large attendance. The principal business was distribution of special prizes for most points at table shows. The chairman complimented Mr. Henney, the winner of the rosebowl, on his success, he being a first-year novice. Decided to purchase two more trophies to be competed for at table show. Date of N.F. show was fixed for June 27. Schedule drawn up by committee was adopted. Mr. J. Allen gave a very entertaining and instructive lecture on Heating and Ventilating Birdrooms, illustrating the best methods by some clever sketches. Questions were invited, and good discussion followed. The usual vote of thanks closed the meeting.—A. Freestone.

DUNFERMLINE C.B.S.

Meeting, Co-operative Hall, Mar. 29, G. D. McGaven presiding. Full report of the Fife League meeting was given in by Mr. Wildridge and the Secretary, and after the points were discussed the delegates received instructions how to vote on the various subjects at next League meeting. Agreed to give three classes at the next table show, April 25, Bunting or Finch H.M., ditto F.M., and Mule or Hybrid. Mr. Alex. Robertson, Cowdenbeath, will judge. Nomination of judges for next annual show was taken, when several prominent fanciers were put forward. The question of rings (closed) was fully discussed, but decided to let that stand open to the members. Vote of thanks to the Chairman terminated the meeting.—Robert T. Campbell, Sec.

NORTH WEST LONDON F.A.

Enjoyable Dinner and Concert.

There was a record gathering at the Stag's Head Hotel, Hawley Road, N.W., April 4, when 40, including ladies, sat down on the occasion of the first annual dinner; Mr. G. Gardner in chair. Since its formation the society has met with marked success. The speeches were commendably short, but all to the point, and proved clearly the popularity the society has attained. "The North-West London F.A." was proposed by the secretary, J. R. Young, Mr. G. Gardner responding. "The Ladies and Visitors" were very warmly welcomed by Mr. B. Cresswell, responded to by Mr. H. J. Suker. The success of the evening was in no small measure due to the caterer, Mr. T. J. Lewis, and the musical director, Mr. A. Clewley. The very bright musical programme was contributed to by Mmes. B. Cresswell, Elsie Donovan, Messrs. A. Clewley, B. Cresswell, Bros. Randell, Riddel, Ruby, and Duby. Many congratulations were given to the accompanist, Mrs. B. Cresswell, also the artistes. During the evening a silver cup was donated for most points taken during the coming season.—W. Sutton, Assist. Sec.

NEW CROSS C.B.S.

Meeting, at headquarters, April 2nd, Mr. H. C. Humphries in the chair, supported by a good number of members. Mr. T. G. Crutcher, vice-chairman of the London Federation, was present to explain the objects of the Federation, which he did in a very able manner. It was decided to go more fully into the matter at our next meeting. Mr. Meades was then called upon for his lecture on cage-making. We had all been anxious to see what Mr. Meades had in his numerous parcels, and they proved to contain every requisite for making a cage. Mr. Meades soon got to work, and proved himself to be no novice at making cages. He first of all showed us how to mix and use the paint, carefully explaining each process. He next proceeded to make a Norwich show cage, showing us what to do and what to avoid, also telling us what wood to use, and where it can be bought, finishing up by explaining how the wire fronts are made, all of which proved to be most interesting and instructive. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Meades, who suitably replied, and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close by Mr. Fuller, who, in spite of feeling unwell, spoke at some length on the advantages such lectures as these are to the Fancy. Next meeting May 7th; lecture by Mr. Norman.—Burton Bros., Hon. Secs.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

Meeting, headquarters, "Reindeer Hotel," Rye Lane, Peckham, April 7, Mr. C. H. Grindell chair. A lecture was given by Mr. J. Hazell, Primstead, a member of the society, upon the rearing of young birds. There was a good attendance, and Mr. Hazell gave a very good lecture, which was from his own methods of management, from which good results have followed. The members enjoyed a very pleasant and interesting evening, and were very pleased that Mr. Hazell had been able to assist them; a hearty vote of thanks was given him. Mr. Hazell has promised to let me have his paper, which I will duly forward to the Press. Next meeting April 21; egg food making competition; all welcome.—A. G. Cant, Hon. Sec.

MIDDLETON C.B.S.

Meeting and lecture, Old Boar's Head, March 30, Mr. Furniss presided over a good attendance. Mr. J. Sharples, Oldham, gave a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead. Mr. Sharples said he would read his paper through, and then start on the different items from the beginning. He specially advised novices to buy the best birds their money would allow from a reliable breeder, say, about 3 cocks and 4 hens, and to get plenty of size and colour in the cocks, and type and quality in the hens. If he found a pair failing on the same point, he would try to counterbalance them. He advised all members and friends to see that no mice got into their rooms. He only took two or three nests from each pair, and he ran the young into a flight to strengthen them; any likely birds should be boxed off in pairs or separate. In conclusion, he hoped members or friends would ask questions. Several took advantage, and the lecturer answered all satisfactorily. A vote of thanks brought a most instructive and enjoyable evening to a close.—Jas. Hulton, Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

General meeting, Old Mossley Arms Hotel, Manchester, March 28. Only a moderate number put in an appearance. In the absence of Mr. John Garner, who, we were sorry to hear, was seriously ill, Mr. John Rukin was in the chair. Sec. read balance sheet, showing balance in hand of over £4, which sum will be spent in buying specials, as per rule, for champions and novices, also for runners-up in Lancashires and Lizards. The following officers were elected: Pres., Mr. J. Garner; Treas., Mr. J. Swalwell; Vice-Pres. and Committee (have not the names at hand, will give them in my next). Owing to the shortness of time it was decided that Messrs. Rukin and Lord be appointed auditors of balance-sheet and report on same at next meeting. Mr. Martin having decided to resign, it was unanimously decided that John Rukin become Secretary, and after some pleasant things being said, Mr. Rukin promised to take it on for a period of 12 months. Decided to have a tea and social, same to be left in Secretary's hands. It was considered advisable to write all members not present asking each one to subscribe one shilling towards defraying the loss on the Lizard classes at Preston, and Lancs. and Lizards at Nottingham. After a long deliberation it was decided that we have only azure blue in Lizard standard show cages in future, the same to do both for Silvers and Golds. It has been felt for some time that the fact of having two colours, and in some cases a double set of cages has been one of the reasons for keeping the Lizard in the background. So fanciers please note that the standard inside colour is now Victory brand azure blue enamel, and black for outside, as usual. A rule was carried that any loss on guaranteeing Lancs. or Lizard classes in future come from the funds of the society. These two rules are subject to confirmation at next meeting. Will all members make a note of the date, April 18? Time and place will be sent to Fancy papers, as there is a difficulty of a room to be got over, though it will be in Manchester. I shall be pleased to hear of any new members. Subs. is 5s., no entrance fee.—John Rukin, Hon. Sec., 44, Hall Carr-rd., Rawtenstall.

TYNESIDERS ENJOY A GREAT FEAST.

Dinner, Social, and Prize Distribution of the Northern Specialist Clubs.

Three of the Northern Specialist Clubs joined together to have their prize distribution, and incidentally a good dinner—the Northern Norwich P.H.C., the Northern Yorks. C.C. and the Northern B.B. and M.C., and a right down jolly night they had. The rendezvous was the Princess Restaurant, Groat Market. Members and friends sat down to an excellent dinner served in tip-top style. After dinner an excellent programme of music was rendered by Mr. Walter, "P.C. 49"; Mr. Will Renolds, "When the Ebb Tide Flows" and "Beware"; Mr. Luke, "Monarch of the Wood," "The Song that shall live for Ever" and "Good-Bye, Sweetheart." Mr. Rudd gave several selections on the concertina, which were much applauded. Duet by Mr. Luke and Mr. Walton, "Larboard Watch, Ahoy!"; Mr. Tindale, "For a Girl" and "Two Sparkling Eyes"; and a short recitation by Mr. Crawhall, "The Road to Warham." Mr. Mather, Gateshead, accompanied. Mr. Crawhall presided and distributed the prizes for the Northern Yorks. and Northern B.B.C., whilst Mr. Topping did those of the Northern Norwich. The following were the prize-winners: N.N.P.C silver cup and gold medal, W. H. Butler; gold-centre silver medal, D. Lindsay; silver medals, Messrs. W. McGinn, J. Wood, J. G. Hodson, J. Lumley, R. Hope. Northern Yorks. C.C. champion trophy and silver medal, T. C. Crawhall; gold medal and silver medal, Miss E. E. Pyman; challenge cup and silver medal, Mr. M. Wigglesworth; Ramsden's cup, Crawhall cup, gold medal, Mr. Cattell's boots and silver medal all went to Mr. Thurston. A beautiful clock, the novice trophy for the year, was won by Mr. Mirley, who also won a silver medal. Cattel's special (table shows) was won by Mr. Hedley, also a silver medal. Other silver medal winners were Messrs. Deighton, Cattel, Kennerson, Studholme and Smith. The winners in the Northern B.B.M. and F.B.C. were: Mule cup, Mr. W. H. Butler; British cup, Mr. J. Scott; Foreign cup, Mr. T. Almond; silver teaspoons, Messrs. Butler (2), Almond (2), Pettersen, Bertram and Waters. Bronze medals, Messrs. J. Scott (2), McGuire, Davison, Christer.

The Chairman proposed the toast of the Northern Specialist Clubs, and said he was glad to see such a representative gathering, not only of Newcastle men, but Sunderland, South Shields, Wallsend, Jarrow and other places were well represented. He coupled with the toast the names of Messrs. Cattell, Pettersen and Topping, as chairmen of the various clubs. These gentlemen suitably replied. Next the Chairman gave the local societies, coupling with it Mr. Smith (South Shields), Mr. Holden (Gateshead), and Mr. Reed (Newcastle). These toasts were enthusiastically drunk, and all replied but Mr. Holden, who was too bashful in so large a company. Mr. Smith regretted that South Shields were unable to hold an open show; but, being one of the oldest societies in the North, he thanked them for being so kindly reminded in the toast. Mr. Reed, on behalf of the Newcastle Society, extended to any present who were not members a hearty invitation to join the most progressive club in the district. A hearty vote of thanks to the artists and the Chairman brought to a close one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent.

In the Courts.

Cruelty to Wild Birds.

The Woking Police Court presented somewhat the appearance of a bird fancier's store, when Frederick Mansfield and Clarence Sherwood, Byfleet, were summoned for having taken wild birds by means of a net, at Byfleet, on January 18th; and, further, for having cruelly treated two birds at the same time and place. A number of fluttering and chirping birds in cages were produced. P.C. Hagley said he saw defendants in a field belonging to Mr. Locke-King. There were two large nets on the grass and eight cages containing birds close by. Two of the birds were fastened to sticks placed at the side of the nets, and they were fluttering. Defendants said they were catching birds. Mansfield said the things did not belong to him, and he had only just come out there. Sherwood said they were catching Linnets, Bullfinches, Goldfinches, and Redpolls. Witness took possession of the birds. The two fastened to the sticks were tame, and, in witness' opinion, they were being cruelly treated.

Supt. Marks said the birds on the sticks were used to attract others. Mansfield said he knew nothing of the matter, and Sherwood said he bought the Linnets in Kingston market and had had them for six months. Mansfield, who had previously borne a good character, was let off with a fine of 2s. 6d., the second case against him being dismissed, but Sherwood was fined 10s. for the first offence, and 20s. for the second, and allowed six weeks in which to pay.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

Well-attended meeting held at headquarters, April 8. Secretary reported profit of 27s. on the two evening shows already held. Hearty vote of thanks given to Mr. Skinner for judging. Next show of cage birds, May 13.—A. Wasey, Hon. Sec.

ALTRINCHAM (Open) C.B.S.

Meeting, April 8, Station Cafe, Mr. T. Harrison presiding. A discussion took place, opened by Mr. Hickson, on the Feeding of Young Birds; various methods of making egg-food were dealt with, and the use and advantages of green food were discussed by Mr. Hickson and the chairman, Mr. Harrison, and the discussion was very instructive. A good many questions were put, and at the close a vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Hickson for his interesting advice. At next meeting, April 22, Mr. Robinson is to give a lecture on the Norwich Canary, when it is hoped that all members will be present if possible. The meeting will also be convenient for members to give in their names, who wish to join in the country ramble, May 9.—Chas. Bailey, Hon. Sec.

GT. HORTON (Good Intent) O.S.

Meeting April 4, Grange Schools. After business we had a diagram competition, this being drawings of Canaries. We had 7 of the Yorkshire Canary, and as these had been judged previously by Mr. A. Morley and his awards placed in sealed envelopes, it caused some amount of amusement to see how the members present placed the drawings. We put the drawings on the wall and then gave each member 5 minutes to judge them. After all members had judged them to the best of their ability, Mr. Morley pointed out the faults and good points of the birds portrayed on the drawings and why he had placed them in the order he did. Mr. J. W. Salt came nearest the judge, only varying from him with 2 birds, which were the 1st and the, the other 5 he had right. Mr. A. Holden was 2nd with 3 right; Mr. W. A. Brown 3rd with 2 right; other members getting only 1 and some none right. Next meeting June 6. Lecture on British birds, by Mr. P. Jowett, at 7.30. All fanciers interested in British birds, whether members or not, are invited.—A. Firth, Sec.

CLAPHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

Meeting April 6. A letter was read from Mrs. Askew, in which she referred to the serious illness of Mr. A. C. Askew, and it was resolved to send her a letter of condolence. On the other hand the meeting was attended for the first time since a long and dangerous illness by Mr. H. Yeomau, and he was accorded a hearty welcome. His numerous friends will be pleased to hear that at the meeting he was in the best of health and spirits. Letter read from Southern Border F.C.C., giving the classification conditional to the extension of their patronage; resolved to adopt that classification, and to make formal application for the patronage. Resolved that prize money at open show be 10s., 5s., 3s., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., and card for 7th; entry fee 2s., members 1s. 6d. Sec. reported that the Mayor of Wandsworth had given a second cup for competition among members, and produced a trust deed expressing the conditions upon which it is given. Resolved to have an outing to Effingham, May 24. Next meeting we shall probably have a lantern lecture by Mr. Baily; if this can be arranged it will be announced later.—A. R. Coe.

MANCHESTER & N. COUNTIES O.S

In place of the usual general meetiug, April 6, members and friends had the pleasure of hearing a very instructive lecture on "British Birds," which was illustrated by some grand limelight pictures. The lecturer was Mr. W. Cutmore, Liverpool, and he was ably assisted by Mr. J. Coatesworth as lantern operator. The pictures thrown on the screen covered a very wide range of British birds, their nests and eggs, including the Robin, Dartford Warbler, Bottle Tit, with nest, and various owls and hawks. Great interest was taken in pictures showing the nesting habits of Sand Martins, and several slides depicting young Cuckoos removing eggs and young from Hedge Sparrow's nest, in which they had been hatched. In speaking on the natural enemies of wild birds and causes of their destruction, the lecturer pointed to a very fine picture of hundreds of migrant birds flying round in the glare of a lighthouse lantern. At the close of the lecture, a number of questions were put to Mr. Cutmore, in replying to which he remarked that it gave him great pleasure to invite our members to question him, as their questions often opened up fresh lines of argument, and were instructive to both lecturer and audience. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Cutmore and Mr. Coatesworth terminated a very pleasant and interesting lecture.—F. Hayward, Hon. Sec.

THE "FILUP" FEEDER.

Hand-feeding can now be done with the greatest success. Save all young birds hatched. Hundreds of testimonials have been received from fanciers who are delighted with it. See CAGE BIRDS Annual. Can be obtained from all dealers, or 1/3 post free by return from sole manufacturers.

SHETTLESTON C.B.S.

Meeting, Johnstone's Hall, April 8, Mr. Wood presiding over a good turn-out of members. Mr. Livingston again gave a very interesting lecture on Canary Breeding and Management. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Livingston for his kindness and for the manner in which he answered the many questions submitted to him. Three new members were enrolled and three proposed for next meeting, May 13. Business, appointing judges for F.F. show, July 11.—A. Berry, Sec.

Correspondence.

A Goldfinch Fifteen Years in a Cage.

Sir,—I thought it might interest Cage Birds readers, which paper I have had each week for eight years now, to know that I went to my native home last Thursday Stratford-on-Avon), and found my sister-in-law with a Goldfinch, singing lovely, which has been in its cage for fifteen years. I am sorry to say it is now almost blind. How can any person with any sense call it cruelty to keep a bird as a pet? If a bird was not happy, it would not sing, and live for fifteen years in a cage. Sir, what such persons would like to do is to take the beautiful birds away from us and drive the working man who looks after his pets into the public-house—that is my view of it.

A Parrot Performs in a Tram-car.

Sir,—The following I read last week in "The Scotsman," and I venture to send it you, as likely to be of interest. "While I was travelling in an Edinburgh tramcar on Thursday evening, a tall, well-groomed, French-looking man entered and took a seat three or four places farther up on the opposite side. I did not observe him until he was passing me, and then in a mechanical, sub-conscious way I noticed what I took to be the corner of a dark green coloured neckerchief, projecting above and behind his collar on the off-side. When he turned and sat down, I was, however, surprised to observe that what I had taken for a silk scarf was a Parrot, which he was supporting on his right shoulder. The car was almost full, but the bird was quite unconcerned, and after turning its quick, restless eyes several times upon the passengers, it began caressing with the side of its head the cheek of its owner. After half a minute or so of this affectionate attention, the bird endeavoured to insert its beak between the lips of the man, and when he opened them slightly, it tapped his teeth. I presume it is a fair inference that the Parrot had been trained to feed on morsels held between its master's teeth. Following this, the Parrot was lifted down and placed on the curved handle of the man's walking-stick, which he then revolved quickly in his hand, the Parrot clinging on firmly and appearing, if anything, to enjoy the rapid, circular motion. The last act of the exhibition which I was privileged to see, was a whistling performance of fair merit, in which the Parrot responded with a clear, but not over-loud piping to his master's low whistle. At this point I had to leave the car.

The Clashing of Show Dates in Fife.

Sir,—I hope you will bear with me while I state the case as honestly and briefly as possible in the interests of Kirkcaldy, of which I have the honour to be secretary. My last letter, to which Mr. Foster replied on April 4 in the fashion so characteristic of the manners of the man, I had posted in time for a direct reply to his previous letter four or five weeks ago, but, as you, Mr. Editor, made me aware, this letter was withheld owing to pressure on your space, and I expect that for the same reason you printed it somewhat abridged [Mr. Foster's letters also have been abridged—Editor]. This time, however, I would feel obliged if you could afford me the space as full as I wish it, also to correct what I expect was a misprint, re Dysart and Kirkcaldy. What I did say was: Does Mr. Foster think it would be a proper thing for Dysart to fight Kirkcaldy for a date they left quite voluntary? All the same, when he says I had to thank my stars that Dysart did not fight Kirkcaldy for a date, I can understand what he would have liked to see. I may tell Mr. Foster that so long as we are in the right, we will not be bullied by any society, or by any veritable Solomon like himself. I suppose, Mr. Foster, your letters will be your own composition, without the help of any stick-in the mud fanciers of the strife-making fraternity who sometimes advertise their renowned strain, from which all champions come, and sometimes take a show to judge, and when the time arrives are afraid to go. Concerning me writing your President about a judging engagement, at the time I wrote him nobody other than a madman would have imagined but what you would have shifted to another date. My committee left it in my hands to find a judge for their approval should the judges already nominated at our meeting be engaged. Your President should keep his confidence to himself; it is not wise of him to trust you with it. But what has this—or how, when, or where I judged—to do with this question? It is a fact that Buckhaven have taken the date Kirkcaldy has held two shows on already, which is very bad grace indeed. Your personalities are entirely outside this dispute, but you cry, can't I fight fair? Where have I been unfair? Have I not told the truth from my very first letter to you? I am telling it still. You who cry about fairplay are the very kind who give least fairness. Had Kirkcaldy taken Buckhaven's date you would have made a mighty fuss about it, wouldn't you? If I advised you to stick to a date that Lochgelly took from Buckhaven, that does not justify Buckhaven taking Kirkcaldy's date. If you had acted up to the good advice when you got it, it would have been better for you to-day. Instead you have wandered over nearly all the dates possible in Fife, and been a nuisance to several societies and made a mess of it at the finish. There were open dates in Fife when I advised you first of your mistake, but your stubbornness would not allow you to accept advice, and now open dates are no use to you, since you have your judges, etc., all engaged. Concerning your "first-class" set of fanciers, is their action towards the Kirkcaldy fanciers like the conduct of first-class fanciers? The entry at your coming show will be the best opinion. Yes, there were purely cage-bird shows in Kirkcaldy before you or your adviser were born. Nobody has grumbled more about this same branch line than the Buckhaven fanciers who exhibit outside their own district. There is delay on all branch lines. I can assure all fanciers of this, that had Kirkcaldy been the aggressor, Buckhaven would have made the most of it. I am sorry to write of matters of such a personal kind, but I do not think it wise for the good of the Fancy generally to allow any society to ride rough-shod over another which is in the right, and which has provoked no quarrel whatever. Nor do I think it right to allow a society's official to accuse me of being unfair. When I wrote him in the most courteous manner possible, making him aware of his mistake, the reply I received from him was curt enough indeed.

The Loss of a Noted Scottish Fancier.

Sir,—Like Messrs. Rennie and Young, I can say without fear that all those who have met Auld Hughie will be very sorry to hear of his sad loss, and will be willing to do what they can to retain him in the Fancy. It only wants a right start to be made to accomplish it, so I would suggest that all show committees take the matter up and collect a little from their members, and send it on through their secretary to the editor of the leading Fancy journal, viz., Cage Birds, and that week by week the Editor acknowledges the sums, and thus show what many giving a little can do to help. I would also suggest that in places where a show or society has ceased to exist, some fancier try to see the other fanciers in such districts, and collect what he can, and send it on to Cage Birds. I would further suggest that any fanciers who have cages they could do without might kindly send them on to Mr. Rennie, sec. of Falkirk Show, 13, Pleasance Square, Falkirk. Let me also give a hint to the trade: Here is a good advertisement. Send on a cage each, and Hughie will be able to say they are good cages. I, as secretary of Whitburn C.B.S., enclose P.O. for 12s. 6d., as collected from the members; the following are names and amounts:—Wm. Love 1s., Wm. Lambie (No. 1) 2s., Wm. Lambie (No. 2) 1s., Wm. [We have also received 2s. 6d. from Mr. J. Steel (Dalkeith), and 2s. 6d. from Mr. G. E. Weston (London).—Editor, "C.B."]

Sir,—With reference to the subscription opened to help Mr. Moreland, of Falkirk, with whom we have much sympathy. If Mr. Rennie would care to canvass the members of the Falkirk and Dis. C.B.S. for orders for the Filup feeder, he may keep the whole of the money received to go towards the fund, and on receipt of the names and addresses of the purchasers, the Filup feeder will be forwarded to them direct, free of all cost. No doubt you remember we did the same thing for the Gateshead Society last year, through Mr. Curry, Hon. Sec., which resulted in over 30s. being added to their society's fund. I am mentioning this to show that the Falkirk members can help their old comrade in a substantial manner without being out of pocket themselves a penny.

Prize-money at Bristol C.B.S. Show.

Sir,—Mrs. Pool's reply in your last issue referring me to the report of the show of the Bristol C.B.S., as given by Cage Birds, is really no explanation of the matter under discussion. It is true Cage Birds in its report only credited me with vhe, but I take it that this is accounted for by the fact that my number was given in the catalogue as No. 1, and No. 1 was vhc. But my cage label was altered by some official at the show from No. 1 to No. 2, and the prize cards which returned with my exhibit were also made out for No. 2. If the prize cards were fixed on my cage in mistake, as Mrs. Pool says, will she please say why my cage label was altered from 1 to 2, and why was a note scribbled on the inside of lid of my case, saying "Sorry a mistake was made in your No. on ticket"?

Now according to the rules in the schedule, this particular class should not have been allowed to stand at all. The second paragraph in the rules and regulations says:—"Three money prizes will be given in each class." Rule 2 says: "The committee reserve the right to cancel any class not being sufficiently filled, in which case they will return the entry fees. Prize-money will be paid in full." This class contained two entries only, and was allowed to stand, 3rd prize only being awarded, and then a blunder made in the numbering! My contention is that the class should have been cancelled according to rule. No exhibitor is going to pay entry fee and carriage to and from a show for a third prize, and the rules of this show plainly led one to suppose that nothing of this sort would take place. These are the things exhibitors remember. Mrs. Pool's last reply appears most courteous. Is it accounted for by the fact that the Bristol C.B.S. fixture is now appearing in the dates fixed column? It is greatly to be regretted that this courtesy did not manifest itself much earlier in the case. I wrote her three times and enclosed a stamp for reply, but my enquiries remained unanswered, and since my first letter to Cage Birds, other exhibitors have made similar complaints regarding this same show.

HAS A BIRD A CONSCIENCE? CAN IT REASON?

Sir,—In reply to Mr. Coe's letter in your issue of April 4th, I must ask him to allow me to leave unanswered that part of his remarks which relates rather to theology than to ornithology ("man is the only creature who is answerable to a higher power for his actions"). His other statements are two: (1) that a bird has no "reasoning intelligence," and (2) that it has no "conscience or free will to violate it." Now, if my statement that a bird has a conscience is regarded by Mr. Coe as "extraordinary," his statement that a bird has no reasoning intelligence has surprised me at least as much. I sincerely hope that he is a beginner, for, if aviculture has not taught us this much it certainly has taught us very little. One cannot hope to even scratch the surface of such a complex question in the small compass of a letter in a correspondence column, but I will just mention two little incidents out of hundreds, and ask Mr. Coe what he makes of them.

The Strategy of the Seed-Eater.

A few years since a hen White-throated Seed-eater in my aviary was much harassed by an Alpine Accentor. Twice she built and laid, and twice the Accentor looted and destroyed the nest. Then she cast about for some means of protecting her nest, and this was the idea she hit upon. One of the large doors which closes one of the divisions of the aviary, measuring 8ft. by 8ft., and constructed of wire-netting stretched over a light wooden frame, generally rests against, and is secured to a wire-netting partition. At the bottom the door and the partition had become lashed together with bindweed. In other places the two surfaces were either touching, or there was an interval of only a few inches between them—at all events not sufficient space for even a small bird to use its wings. Between the door and the partition this brave little lady constructed her nest at a point one foot from the bottom, and seven feet from the top. To descend to the nest she had to perform a gymnastic feat, which possibly, no bird had ever performed before, gripping the netting on each side with each foot alternately, just as a man might stand between two parallel ladders with a foot on a rung of each. It took her several minutes to descend and even longer to ascend, and yet she carried all the materials for her nest to this most inaccessible position, built her nest, and laid and incubated her eggs in perfect safety and secure from all interference. I may add that I have a photo of this nest and eggs which is quite at the disposal of our Editor.

The second instance is that of a performing Siskin. Occasionally I amuse myself by designing a mechanical model suitable for a bird to work. This particular one I call the "Twopenny Tube." It is an inclined plane a foot long, the top and bottom of wood, the sides wired, just wide enough to allow a small model railway truck to run up and down on rails, and is fastened to the front of an ordinary cage. On the front of the truck is a metal screen with a hole in the centre, large enough for a Siskin to pass its head through, and at the far end of the "Twopenny Tube" there is a corresponding hole, outside which is hung the seed-box. I took a wild-caught Siskin from the aviary, and in two or three days taught it the ordinary water-bucket trick, and then placed a little seed in the truck. The following morning I placed some hemp-seed in a little box half-way up the inclined plane and watched the result. As soon as the Siskin espied the hemp-seed he jumped into the truck, took hold of the chain winding gear, hauled himself and the truck (which is more than double his own weight) up the "Twopenny Tube," helped himself to hemp-seed, turned round, released the gear, tobogganed down the plane, and jumped off neatly just before the truck struck the terminal buffers. If Mr. Coe has any doubt as to the reasoning intelligence of this little Siskin, he has only to make an appointment with me and I shall be pleased to show him the bird working his little railway truck as a professional engine-driver.

Birds that mete out Justice.

Now as to the existence of a conscience in birds, which subject also I have not space even to skim. Let us take two families only, which from their conspicuous size have been better observed than the smaller Passerine birds, namely the Corvidæ and Herodines, and let us refer to one bird-book only, which is probably in the possession of most of our readers, "Stanley's History of Birds." If Mr. Coe will refer to pp. 189-194 he will find that most of the species belonging to these families have regular annual meetings and meeting-places, where not only are prospective events discussed, but any individuals which have offended against the moral code are tried and executed. The Raven's Parliament in Iceland is a well-known event. Rooks have an assembly every spring at which nesting sites are allotted, and if any Rook ventures to build anywhere else it is generally put to death, and the nest destroyed. (This common event was witnessed in a friend's garden near here last spring.) Another offence against the moral code is mixed marriages. A case is on record of a Rook being put to death for mating with a Jackdaw; and a very interesting case of a Stork whose nest and consort were taken from him by a rival. The injured husband called a meeting of his neighbours who put the guilty pair to death. This occurred only a few years since, and was well attested.

The above instances prove, I think, the existence of a moral code amongst birds, and I have seen very many instances where a bird that has infringed the moral code has shown by his guilty demeanour that he had a guilty conscience, frequently allowing itself when detected in the act to be put to flight by another bird of half its size.

A NOTED SIBERIAN BULLFINCH.

Some Topics of the Hour in Scotland.

Sir,—That energetic body, the Fife Cage Bird League, has outlined a scheme which will have the blessing of all fanciers, viz., a combined appeal on the part of every bird club to the various railway companies to abolish that stupid rule which demands that a passenger conveying a bird, or birds, shall book and pay for same as live stock, and, as such rateable at 50 per cent. in excess of ordinary luggage. Yet a very slight knowledge of the ways of the companies, as exemplified in the scant mercy shown to a similar and largely signed petition of a few years ago, convinces me that there is only one argument effectual in gaining concessions in the way of reduced fares, freightage, or facilities, viz., that it will benefit the company financially. This can be claimed, inasmuch as the loss entailed on the packages would be covered times over by the increased sale of return tickets to exhibitors who would, in the event of being permitted to convoy their birds home as personal luggage, visit the shows. Stress should be laid on the fact that they, the companies, would still get the single journey rates on the exhibits, as at least 90 per cent. of their owners are of the working class, and are thereby precluded from conveying their birds to the show, and as judging starts at about 10 a.m. the majority have to be dispatched the day previous.

The benefits to the shows which such a concession would promote, I need scarcely mention, but I will quote an example which I verified during the past season as an example of the bad effects of the present system. An exhibitor sent a case of four birds to a show distant under 30 miles, and visited the show. His expenditure was: Entry money 3s., carriage of birds to show 1s. 9d., return fare for himself 3s. 2d., catalogue 6d., gate 6d., booking for return 1s. 4d.; total, 10s. 3d. Prize money, one 1st (class not full), 5s., two 2nds, 10s., one 3rd (C.N.F.), 1s. 3d. Deducted for prize cards, 4s.; balance 12s. 3d. Total gain four prizes, 2s. Now, it must be admitted that few exhibitors can achieve such success, and I could not blame this one for voicing his hope that he might be——if he showed or visited a show while the present scale of railway charges obtained!

Apropos of the charge of 1s. each for prize cards, I am convinced that many fanciers will rebel against this deduction. Some of these alleged "models" make me wonder if the designer had been conforming to that scriptural injunction which forbids the making of an image of anything in the air above or earth beneath, etc. I enclose one which will perchance amaze friend Norman; also a common-sense sample, which cost 2d. I have looked in vain for some up-to-date society to replace these "model cards" with aluminium tokens; they are very cheap now, and would, I am sure, be appreciated by reason of their durability and less bulk.

I enclose my mite (2s. 6d.) towards the subscription for that grand old fancier, Mr. Moreland, and can vouch for his being deserving of the best efforts of all fanciers to, in part at least, replace his stock. (See other letters this week.—Ed. "C.B.").

The Albino Blackbird hen I offered last week, went to Mr. W. Bush, of Newport, whose letter I enclose, also one from Mr. W. G. Martin, of Hexham-on-Tyne. I will let readers have the results after the breeding season.

J. Steel.

A Breeder of Rare-feathered Birds.

Sir,—In my aviary I had a white Blackbird (cock) which I kept for breeding, but failed to get a hen. The bird I presented to the Newport Corporation for their aviary at the Park. Should you feel inclined to send the hen bird you have, something ought to be done this season. Evidently you take an interest in breeding albino birds, and might be pleased to know that I have at the present time a white Thrush sitting on eggs in one of the class rooms at this institute (the Technical Institute, Newport). I have several white Sparrows, mostly, if not all, hens. I have also white and cinnamon Starlings. I hope to breed with them this season.

William Bush.

Pied Blackbirds Bred for over Ten Years.

Sir,—Seeing from your letter in this week's Cage Birds that you are interested in albinism, I may say that I have two very fine pied cock Blackbirds, one nearly all white, the other about half and half. I caught these the first week in January of this year and both are now in song. Unfortunately, I am leaving my house here for a larger one in May, otherwise I should be glad of your offer. In the nurseries here owned by a friend of mine, Mr. G. Ross, pied birds have been bred for over 10 years, and I am hoping that a nest, which now contains eggs, will have pied youngsters in it. I shall handrear these and see how they turn out. If it would interest you, I should be glad to keep you informed of the results. If at any other time you got hold of a pied hen (assuming I am unsuccessful this season), I should be very glad to have her, and try the experiment, as I am having the garden (about 200 sq. ft.) in my new house netted in.

W. G. Martin (B.Sc., F.C.S., L.C.P.).

Are We Dissatisfied with the Winning Norwich Plainheads of To-day?

Sir,—I think the Norwich Fancy must be suffering from an invasion of German measles, or some other insidious complaint. Fanciers are for ever finding fault with the type of Norwich, instead of trying to breed some which come within measurable distance of the present-day standard. If Mr. Floyd and the others who criticise will go to a show and look for nothing else but the long-sided, heavy-tailed and lashed birds they will find them; but neither he, nor anyone else, will make me believe that he has seen winners in anything like strong competition "with Crestbred quite clear, coppy running down the neck, many of them all feathers, long winged, long and heavy-tailed, chests like 4d. rabbits, and legs scarcely able to carry them." I am a bit given to exaggeration of speech myself, but I reserve that for occasions which call for less seriousness, such as when I happen to have stayed out longer by an hour on the one night out my better-half allows me, else it takes longer to straighten things out than it takes to replace the hairpins in a bride's hair after five minutes in a tunnel. Chests like 4d. rabbits! Is he sure he hasn't been suffering from ptomaine poisoning, or some other obnoxious malady which has blurred his eyes and made his seeing indistinct? These fanciers—whom no one ever hears of except when they want a standard altered—are for ever trying to belittle the birds which are winning, and the judges who give them the prizes. Instead of trying to climb the tree themselves, they content themselves by casting exaggerated aspersions on any birds which are nearer the standard than their own, and using all their powers of persuasion to bring the standard down to their own level. They are victims of their own ineptitude in the breeding-room, and when their results are not as they anticipated, they imbue themselves with that spirit of antagonism which criticises everything which isn't as their own, and everybody who doesn't think as they think.

If we were to adopt as a standard the bird depicted by Mr. Floyd we should be going back twenty years. The type is all right. Nothing, or little, can be said against it; but it is too small. It is a type we look for in our breeding hens, a nice medium size; but as a show bird and a cock bird, well, it's three-quarters of an inch too short, and almost half an inch too thin in check. Many of our present-day winners are two inches—or almost—in depth, and that, without length, long tails, and browiness. Certainly there are birds with the faults he enumerates, but they are generally cardless, if there is any competition at all. If Mr. Floyd will breed a Norwich on the lines of his model, but just a trifle larger, he will see that the judges will find it all right. They will not put birds above it with chests like 4d. rabbits!

The Capture of Summer Migrants.

Misleading Descriptions of Birds.

Sir,—Following on my letter of protest and warning against dishonesty amongst some bird sellers, may I be permitted to protest also against the capture of summer migrants just as they arrive from their long journey to nest with us? I am an ardent aviculturist, but I like fair play; and it does not seem to me to be that, when we trap and seize on our native migrants, ready if we leave them in peace to nest and sing around us. In a small garden I once possessed in the Eastern counties, the Nightingales sang outside my windows day and night, and I watched them hopping on the lawn in early mornings of springtime, but it never occurred to me to capture them, but only to protect them from being captured—and they returned year after year. Neither are the people who trap our summer visitors of a class which could give their prisoners the necessary comfort; the very fact of their doing it for pecuniary gain means that they could not afford to give them surroundings helpful towards happiness; only probably miserable little cages.

I am all for birds as pets, provided they can be really happy, and there are, of course, bird dealers who do their best to make them so; but they are those who really love the birds, and who have taken up dealing in them because of that; yet I fear such ones are in the minority. I hold no brief for them, but I hold for honour where honour is due. My thoughts, recurring to what I wrote last week on "Misnomers and Misrepresentations," I feel that a black list should be started against dealers who deliberately cheat, inventing euphonious names for birds which have nothing to do with such titles, (if the cheating can be proved!), selling wild caught Thrushes, Larks, Starlings, etc. (wild as Hawks) as hand-reared, and all the rest of it; and when they sail too close to the wind, lest their leaking boat should capsize, they tack by changing their names, and sometimes too their addresses!!

THE STOCK BOOK

Compiled by G. E. WESTON.

Simplifies the operations in the Bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. It affords facilities for the recording of the complete pedigree of all your birds; of your experiences during the season; an account of every bird reared. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird and Show Registers of simple and unique character; Cash and Profit and Loss Accounts for the year. Gives valuable hints for times of emergency during the breeding season.

The Shows.

Menai Bridge.

Seventh annual show, held Easter Monday, in the Council Schools, a good room with plenty of light and space. The entry which was not expected to be large, the show coming just at the commencement of the breeding season, was well up to the average. Quality was excellent and in many classes competition was very keen, especially in the two Goldfinch classes, where some tip-top exhibits were on view. These birds are very popular in North Wales, and many fine specimens are caught in the vicinity. The Greypate class was exceptionally fine; the two leaders were stormers and should have a future; we could be quite happy with either. The Mule or Hybrid class also contained several delightful specimens. The pick of the Canary classes was undoubtedly the winner in Buff Norwich, a bird of grand size and type, with feather of the finest quality. Judging was over in good time, and awards promptly fixed. The committee consisted of Messrs. R. W. Roberts (chairman), O. Jones (treasurer), W. H. Williams, A. W. Huxley, J. Wilson, H. Hughes, E. Gallichan, W. Jones, T. Harrison, J. Kershaw, J. Jones, W. Williams, W. Hughes, and T. Wood. A keener set of thorough fanciers it would be hard to find. At the helm as Hon. Sec. is Mr. W. Nolan, a very hard-working official, who has every detail at his finger tips, and left no stone unturned which he thought would add to the success of the show. We trust his efforts were crowned by a good gate. Mr. Arthur C. Brotherhood judged and appeared to give every satisfaction.

FOR SIXPENCE YOU OBTAIN

information that is practical and most valuable, in the 192 pages of this wonderful bird-keeper's encyclopaedia. No matter what variety of birds you keep, whether novice or old hand, just glance down the list of contents and you will find there something of interest to you. Each article is written by an expert, and in their experiences of failures and successes, you will find the way to the top of the ladder. What chance do your exhibits stand on the show bench? Are they worth sending at all? "Cage Birds" Annual will tell you. Another fact of note is that "Cage Birds" Annual contains the only full list of judges of cage birds, and should therefore be in the hands of all Show Officials. Remember, we had to disappoint many fanciers last year, as the entire Edition was sold out in 3 months of date of publication.

Get your copy NOW from your Newsagent or Local Nutshell Agent, or fill up the Coupon, enclose 8d., and send direct to these Offices, and your copy will be sent by return.

THERE are simply wonderful profit-possibilities in Canaries at the present moment. Every day more people are buying these golden money-making home pets. Bigger prices are being paid for birds. Thousands of pounds more are being offered in prizes.

An ever increasing number of our readers are paying their rent with the extra money they are making. There is a splendid chance for readers to make quite large sums rearing Canaries for Sale and Exhibition. By following the advice in "Our Canaries," ladies, as well as men, are able to add considerably to their incomes. It is a "hobby" that is especially suitable for the gentler sex—free of hard work and exceedingly fascinating and remunerative.

The easily-understood language in which "Our Canaries" is written makes it simple for the merest novice to understand. Everything is clearly explained—from choosing the parent stock, right away to the time when the young birds are fully grown and ready for the show bench, or for sale at good prices to buyers.

For just 1s. down this splendid 5lb. weight volume of money-making information will be sent to you at once, so that you can start right away making big money with your Canaries. The balance is payable at the trifling rate of 1d. a day for a few months.

You can read more about this great work on Canaries in an interesting illustrated 20-page brochure that has been specially prepared. It tells you of the splendid 133 illustrations and the 32 beautiful coloured plates in "Our Canaries." Shows you the quickest way to increased pleasure and profit with Canaries. "Information most valuable and practical."

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the safe delivery of OUR CANARIES from you.

I should like also to say that I am very satisfied with it. I think that all lovers of Canaries should be in possession of a copy. The information it contains I consider to be most valuable and practical to all bird fanciers, as a guide and help in keeping their birds in a healthy condition. I am going in for Norwich Greens, and feel quite safe while I am acting according to the advice in the book, especially when I see the names of all the leading judges and fanciers in the country.

Thanking you, I beg to remain,
Yours faithfully,
ED. JONES.

Makes a Novice an Expert.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit system should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—It the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified or its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for satety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4. IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6. GOODS ALREADY SOLD. If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7. TRFSH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a [illegible] transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8. GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9. PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE. The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock tor a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the tact that they are thoroughly healthy.

R. H. D. Keeling, Elift Hotel, Pwllheli, N. Wales.

"I have read your great work on the Breeding, Feeding and Management of Canaries, Hybrids and British Birds, and I have found it from beginning to end a most useful and instructive book which should be in the hands of all lovers of birds, and I think that no bird room is complete without it."

G. Bannerman, 85, Rose Street, Glasgow.

"I thank you very much for sending me a copy of your valuable book on Canaries, Hybrids and British Birds. It is brimful of information. I find it most useful as a guide in the proper mating of the birds and on the points required in an exhibition bird."

A. H. Nichols 36, Brunswick Street, Maidstone.

"Allow me to congratulate you on the wonderful piece of work on the different species of work which you have written about. I have been a great follower of Natural and Bird Life, and have also read books, but have never seen nor read such a book as this one you have just issued."

DON'T MISS THIS FINAL CHANCE OF THE FREE MODEL.

FILL IN THE COUPON BELOW & GET the BOOK WHICH EXPLAINS.

CANARIES: HYBRIDS, AND BRITISH BIRDS.

This complete encyclopaedia of everything there is to know on the hobby, is written by Mr. John Robson, edited by Mr. S. H. Lewer, and contains special chapters by bird specialists of world-wide renown. Consequently, it is far and away the best guide any man could possibly have on the hobby. There is nothing in regard to the subject that is too small to be overlooked, and every leading point is dealt with in plain terms and fullness of information. It is the most authoritative work on the subject ever issued; its 41 practical chapters being the result of many years successful experience. If you want to put your feet on to the high road of profits, prizes and perfect birds you must get this work; its 160 illustrations, including 26 exquisitely coloured plates will be a revelation to you. The work is described in greater detail in the charmingly illustrated FREE BOOK, which is also exceedingly interesting and decidedly informative. You should certainly not delay in sending for a copy.

READ THESE IMPORTANT PARAGRAPHS.

The remarkable free gift offer is rapidly coming to a close. THE LAST PRINTING of these valuable Dissectional models was made before Easter, and a large number was applied for; a fair quantity, however, remain, though rather fewer than the average applications in response to an advertisement, so these will very quickly go, and then your chance will be lost for ever, as WE SHALL NOT REPRINT, however many excess applications come.

You must not delay or most certainly you will be too late for one of these valuable and instructive models, which, for educating a fancier in the anatomy of the CANARY is unsurpassed.

Remember to send in your application to-day certain—don't wait till to-morrow—send to-day and make sure. Be ahead of the other fellow and assure yourself of a splendid gift.

This fine anatomical model of the Canary is neatly bound and fully explained in the accompanying letterpress.

This model will prove to be of lifelong use to the Canary lover. It instructs, guides, and helps at every step. It is printed in true-to-life colours, and the five distinct plates of which the model is composed, and the 105 named and numbered parts, gives accurate insight into and familiarity with the construction of every part of the CANARY. Nothing could be more enlightening

The models have been fully described in these columns, further details are unnecessary.

What is important is that you should send in time to get one, The only safe time is NOW.

'PHOSTO'

The greatest discovery of modern times. Bird breeding made easy. This remarkable food imparts new life in your birds, and gives vigour to those which have seemed played out. Bad breeding hens is really only insufficient energy. "Phosto" is priceless to hens. Remember, "Phosto" has never been known to fail. Let me prove to you that hens will feed after using "Phosto"; young ones benefit from it and will come off the nest sooner and stronger. It has made quite a big stir amongst the well-known fanciers. These are not wild statements, but genuine facts. Test it yourself and you will be loud in its praise. Don't be tempted into buying something else valueless, insist on having "Phosto." Sold in tins 1/-, 2/6, and 4/6. The Norwich Specialist, Judge Silk, Whitstable.

MEDICINES.

"AILING Cage Birds and How to Cure Them," "Nutshell No. 6," an account of the troubles which beset captive birds, with the treatment and list of medicines to restore our pets to health. This will save you much discouragement and money, and costs only 2½d. post free.—From "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Or 2d. from agents (list frequently published).

Not Singing

and in the soft moult. Special notice to all bird fanciers: are you being troubled with the above complaint? Are your birds that you have been depending upon for the breeding season going off song or into the soft moult? If so, we guarantee you a perfect cure; we have the grandest medicine ever introduced for soft moult and for getting birds into breeding condition; we guarantee to return every penny paid if our medicines fail to do as we advertise. Mr. Hatton, Atherton, writes: "Your medicine for soft moult is excellent stuff; it has cured my four birds; they are now in full song." Mr. Fletcher, Chademoor: "Have used your tonic drops for 18 months, and they have never failed to do as advertised." Mr. Harris, Dorchester: "The effect of your tonic drops is marvellous." Mr. W. Reid, Greenock: "Your medicine has been a great success, for both my birds are now singing." Mr. Chappell, New Mills: "Your tonic drops have worked wonders on my Roller, after being stopped singing from July until December. I was astonished at so quick result. He is now better than he was last year." Mr. Simmons, Southend-on-Sea: "You have got a genuine remedy, which no fancier should be without." Mr. Roberts, Bayswater: "Your medicine for egg-binding is marvellous stuff." Mr. A. J. Gamble, Royston: "I find your tonic drops the most reliable medicine I have ever used." Mrs. Warren Vernon, Lamancha: "I have reared many birds this season through having your tonic drops at hand." Fanciers, we want a trial; we have confidence our medicines will please you. They are not a catch-penny, but a genuine remedy, which can be given with absolute confidence to all classes of cage birds. Our medicines are supplied to the London Zoo. Ditchfield's tonic drops are made up in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles, and can be fully relied upon as a cure for not singing, soft moult, going light, egg-binding, feather-plucking, and inflammation of the bowels. For young birds going light this medicine is invaluable. For bronchitis, wheezing, and hoarseness, get Ditchfield's special lung tonic, the grandest medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For cases of constitutional weakness and debility get Ditchfield's famous Revivo. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick me up for birds before and after showing, Revivo is absolutely unequalled. In 7d., and 1/1 bottles. In cases of severe diarrhoea use Ditchfield's famous diarrhoea powder, in 7d. and 1/1 bottles. It is perfectly safe, and can be relied upon. When ordering medicine, kindly mention for what complain, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free. As an advertisement, we will send two 7d. bottles of any of the above medicines for 1/-, three for 1/6, or two 1/1 bottles any kind for 1/9, three for 2/6. The 1/1 bottles are treble the size of the 7d. bottles. All medicines are sent post free, per return. All bottles broken in transit replaced. Also two valuable seed recipes: How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for Song, given free to all purchasers of our medicines. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed: Frank Ditchfield, Bird Specialist, Oldham. (1555)

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING

2,000 BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIRDS

in stock. Beautiful Green Budgerigars, 6/- pair; yellows, 8/- pair; Bramblefinches and Greenfinches, 2/- pair; extra large muling Linnets, guaranteed to Mule and in full song, real beauties, 2/6, 3/6, and 5/-. Linnets from the same place as the champion of the world, 1/6 and 2/-, singing hard; one of these birds have been lately sold for £5—it was bought off me at my stall in the Leeds Bird Market. Linnets taught by the champion Linnet of the world, will sing anywhere, indoors or out, with new cage and a packet of special singing mixture, 3/6; and a few champions, with quality notes, right for contest singing or catching, 5/-. I challenge the world with this class of bird. Larks, singing daylight and gaslight, as straight as arrows, and as steady as rocks, perfect in feather, they are singing with full voice, 2/- and 2/6; a few hand-reared ones, will sing anywhere indoors or out, 4/6, and one, a real champion, right for contest singing, with quality notes, a treat to hear, 6/-, he is a topper, with new cage 1/6 extra. Muling pairs, and can be seen, building their nests; Linnet and Canary, 5/-; Greenfinch and Canary, 4/-; Redpoll and Canary, 4/-; splendid cock Canary, 4/-; Redpoll and Canary, 4/-; splendid cock Goldfinch, with beautiful blaze, with hen Canary, 7/6; beautiful cock Siskin Mules, Goldfinch Mules, Linnet Mules, Greenfinch Mules, 10/6, 12/6, and 15/-. These birds can win at any show; they are the right sort, and they are constantly singing all the day through; they are all good birds. Pure Seifert Roller hen Canaries, the real blood, 3/6 and 5/-; beautiful Yorkshire Canaries, 15/- a pair; beautiful Norwich, large birds, 15/- a pair; they are grand birds, and they are winners at open shows. The best Birdlime in England, 1/8 a pound; if you find better throw mine away and I will return your money. The original Linnet whistle, 6d. each. My book of secrets, 1/-; it tells you how to make Nightingales sing, Siberian Goldfinches, and English Peatfree Goldfinches, how to make Larks, Thrushes, Blackbirds sing in five days, how to make Linnets sing with their wings down at one another, how to train them for contests, how to moult them, the cause of soft moult, and the only cure and the proper food for each bird I have mentioned, and the proper rules under which the champion Linnet of the world won all his prizes. It saves thousands of birds from dying. It is acknowledged to be the best book published of its kind. Will be sent by return of post for 1/-. 2,000 birds in stock. Post-card before birds. Testimonials every post. Only honest dealing done with me: Harry Allen, The Real British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 44, Beckett-st., Leeds. (154

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

Gentlemen,—I have won all the English championships, including cup. I have the finest strain of song in England, acknowledged by all good judges who have heard my champion. Now I have a grand lot of finger-tame cock Linnets, running and turning like German Rollers, real quality masters, and will sing anywhere, 3/6, 4/6; also a few not quite so long in runs, still can win, no harsh notes, 2/6 each; I have also a few real bulldog breed, extra loud voices, sing in a minute anywhere, suit time singers and catchers, 1/6, 2/-, 2/6 each; also a few coming on full loud song, 1/- each; giant muling Linnets, best in England, and fit for show, 2/- and 2/6 each; real giant Siberian hen Bullfinches, best ever seen in Hull, 4/6, 5/6 each; and two stormers, 7/6 each; Siberian cock Greenfinches, 2/6; large Mealy Redpolls, in fact the largest I have ever seen, 2/6, 3/6; Lesser Redpoll, gem, 1/6; giant yellow cock Siskins, well laced, good bibs, 3/6, 4/6 5/6, and the best ever seen in a cage, 7/6; hen Siskin, a gem, can win, 2/6; giant cock Hawfinches, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; cock Bramblefinch, a stormer, 1/6; cock Larks, on pure wild notes, 3/6; cock Thrush, good, 3/6; I have some grand talking Parrots, 25/- each; dog collars, any length, 7d. each; Linnet cages, 6d., 9d., 1/-; box cages, 1/6, 3 for 4/-, 6 for 7/-; send at once; thousands of testimonials; largest stock in the North; 7 days' approval (longer if required); cash or deposit; I make no bluff, boast, or bounce, but merely say I have probably sold more winners than any three men alive: Fred Allen, Direct Importer, Porter-st Aviaries, Hull. Something Really Special.

Entire Exhibition and Breeding Stock, purchased from a fancier who has spared neither trouble or expense. They are all of special merit, and when bought were, most of them, on first round of eggs. They can be offered as pairs as they stand; which means breeding winners at first start, as they can scarcely fail to do otherwise, or any can be purchased singly. Such an opportunity to secure some of the best Norwich going has perhaps never occurred at this time of the year before. The birds are large, plenty of substance, and mostly good in feather; further particulars on application, or state wants. For all others and other varieties, apply for detailed current Illustrated Price List.

Remember! I Invite You

to come on any day but Sunday and inspect my stock. You need not announce your visit. Come at any time. You will be sure of a hearty Yorkshire welcome, and whether desiring to purchase or not, will be shown round my rooms and stock.

I have 14 large rooms full of grand stock and exhibition birds, also First-class Songsters, in every variety; all in the pink of health and condition.

As regards the quality of my stock, I need only say that during the show season just ended they have secured 76 Specials, 89 Firsts, 74 Seconds, and 60 Thirds, and have been shown in open champion classes only, in hottest competition at all the leading shows. They have also won the N.P.C. Champion Trophy, the O.N.P.C. Champion Trophy, 3rd in Y.C.C. Competition, also several Silver Cups and Bowls, Gold and Silver Medals, Diplomas, and numerous other trophies, finishing at the Crystal Palace Show with 4 Firsts, Silver Cup, and other honours.

I have also supplied birds that have won highest honours for my clients, including winners of this year's Palace show, in very strong classes. I have letters filed here for anyone to see in proof of this; also a large number of letters from fanciers who have bred winners from stock bred and sold by me.

These are FACTS, needing no comment. They speak for themselves, and they cannot be disputed. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/-, per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain of winners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand cobby hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, with good position and in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each. Erect racy hens, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched breeding pairs, personally selected and ready for immediate breeding, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- per pair. Also a few special pairs bred from open winners and personally matched by me for breeding winners, at 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. I am in a special position to give amateurs a good start with the best blood in the Fancy, or to supply the old hand with good stock birds, either Cocks or Hens, at a reasonable price.

CRESTS AND CREST-BRED.

Crested Cocks:—10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Crested Hens, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Crest-bred Cocks:—8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Crest-bred Hens: 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Matched Pairs:—15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- per pair.

PURE SEIFERT ROLLERS.—See my Special Announcement under Rollers on this page.

MULING HENS, FEEDING HENS, ETC. ETC.

Grand, healthy, Sib. hens, for muling, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each.

FEEDING HENS.—Good sound healthy feeding hens, 3/-, 3/6 each. No breeder should be without.

Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases.

I have also a splendid selection of Border Fancies, Scotch Fancies, etc., etc.

KINDLY REMEMBER that any fancier requiring stock is invited to come and make his own selection. To those unable to come, I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the kingdom at my sole risk. I guarantee every bird to be untried. I will send on 7 or 10 days' approval anywhere, and will guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer, or cash returned in full.

EASY PAYMENTS can be arranged to suit the convenience of genuine fanciers who are not in a position to pay cash. Send a postcard for my free illustrated catalogue, containing much useful information concerning the cage bird hobby.

JOE THOMAS,

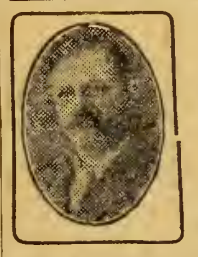
AMBLER THORN, HALIFAX.

Established over 35 years at same address.



Have you heard one of my BANDMASTERS?

The following is a fair sample of the numerous letters I am receiving every day from satisfied clients:—"Castlewellan, Co. Down, April 18/14. You will be pleased to hear the bird arrived here quite safe on Thursday. He is in splendid health and singing beautifully. The Station Master and clerks had quite a delightful time with the wonderful little bird, which entertained them from 1 o'clock till 3.30, when I called for same. I have had a good number during the last 4 years, but your bird is without doubt the best I have ever heard.—J. Harland to Joe Thomas." Large numbers of recent letters similar in tone to above are filed here for the inspection of my visitors.

I have now in stock nearly 300 cocks in full rolling song, with many changes of tours. They have been imported by me direct from the rooms of some of the best breeders in Germany. They have not been picked over, and include some exceedingly good birds that will give satisfaction anywhere. Kindly note the following prices:—Cocks, specially trained and in full rolling song, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Pure Seifert Hens, guaranteed from same pure strain, 3/6, 4/-, 5/- each. I have also a few very good hens, B.R.C.C. rung, and bred from the best winning strains, at 7/6 and 10/- each. I invite any fancier requiring Rollers to come and hear them sing and make his own selection. To those unable to come, I am prepared to send one or more birds on 10 days' approval to any address in the kingdom, at my sole risk. I guarantee absolute satisfaction to everyone, or cash returned in full.

by rearing your birds on

SPRATT'S

COD LIVER OIL CAGE BIRD FOOD

THERE IS EVERY REASON WHY you should use this Food in preference to the old-fashioned egg and biscuit preparation.

It is much more efficacious.

It is more easily prepared and keeps sweet much longer.

It is far less expensive.

It improves the size of the bird's fed upon it, assists them to feather quickly, and greatly increases their stamina.

For many years the most up-to-date Canary Breeders have regularly used Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Cage Bird Food, not only as a food for fledglings, but for a number of other purposes.

IT IS INVALUABLE

(a) For feeding during the Moult. (b) As a medium for giving Colour Food. (c) For feather producing. (d) For weakly birds requiring a Tonic. (e) For Winter-feeding of Adult Birds.

Club Reports.

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.C.

Meeting and British night, Village Schoolroom, Alexandria, April 7. President Gillies, chair. Agreed to engage Co-operative Hall, a much better hall than public hall for annual show. Judges were voted upon, and will be written to in due course. Village schoolroom was also engaged for F.F. show, judges to be appointed at next meeting. Mr. Hannah having handed in the awards, was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Best exhibit, McLean, Goldie-Bullie, new member; most entries, Mr. W. Hardie; BRIT. GOLDF., Hardie; BULLF., Storrie; GREENF., M. McEwan; LINNET, McLean; SISKIN, M. McEwan; M. REDPOLL OR TWITE, Hardie; LESSER REDPOLL, J. McEwan; A.O.V., Daw; SOFTBILL, McLean; A.V. HEN, McNab; FOR. GOLDF. OR BULLF., McLean; MULE OR HYB., McLean.—A. H. McLean.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Meeting, headquarters, April 7, Mr. T. Down presiding. A very large and enthusiastic attendance. Table show of British was held, 39 being staged, the majority having passed through the past show season with honours. Mr. Beswick (Stockport) judged, and a stiff task he had, a good many of them testing his ability to the utmost; afterwards he pointed out the various good points in the specimens, which proved of great interest. The tips he gave will no doubt prove of value to members when selecting future specimens. Balance-sheet for 1913 showed a profit of £21 7s. 3½d. on the year's workings, after paying full prize money in every class at the All-England show, and without drawing on the guarantors. This, indeed, was a great achievement, but the greatest of all is a bank balance of £69 after four years' working. All table shows, N.F., and members' shows have had fixed prize money in addition to numerous specials. —J. A. T. Woodall, Press Corresp.

HENLEY F.S.

Meeting, Oxford Temperance Hotel, April 6, Mr. Dearlove presiding over a fair attendance. Five new members were enrolled. At next meeting, May 4, at 8, Mr. Lovegrove has kindly consented to give an exhibition of bird-washing. G. Machin, jun., Hon. Sec.

NORTH LIVERPOOL C.B.S.

Meeting, April 1, Mr. Holden presiding before a moderate attendance. Mr. Geoff. Benson gave a very interesting lecture on the Pairing of Birds, and dealt with Yorkshires, Norwich, and Borders, and many useful hints were learnt, various questions being asked. Mr. Benson very ably dealt with same. A hearty vote of thanks was carried with acclamation. We thank the Wallasey C.B.S. for the invitation extended to our society to join them in their ramble, May 3. Will any of our members who intend going please drop me a card, and I will let them have particulars. Messrs. Marland, Percival, Huyton, Southwood, McCready, Lobb, and Pengelly, were elected members. Edgar S. Broadbent, Hon. Sec.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Meeting, Y.M. Halls, April 18, Mr. Bandell presiding. No special business being on, we decided to discuss Mr. Haston's proposal to add a decorated cage class at annual show. Agreed to add the following class: Decorated cage, open to any boy or girl under 14 years; entry money 3d cage; prize money, 1st, 5s., given by Mr. Haston; 2nd, 2/6, by Mr. Kerr; 3rd, 1s. 3d., by Mr. Kennedy. A cup was promised by a member to take the place of novice medal, which was won outright last year; cup to be won by novice not having won more than 2 1sts who gains most points at annual show. To be won three times before becoming own property. Next meeting, May 2nd, fixing judges for annual show. —Allan Thomson, Sec.

BIRTLEY, CHESTER-LE-STREET AND PELTON FELL (Amalg.).

Meeting, April 11, at Pelton Fell, Mr. Lindsay in chair. Letters read from judges re terms, etc., for N.F. and annual shows, and the following were chosen for same: Chester-le-Street N.F.S., July 4, Mr. H. Seely, Choppington; Birtley N.F.S., July 18, Mr. W. Reid, Sunderland; Pelton Fell N.F.S., Aug. 1, Mr. J. Riseborough, Sunderland; Chester-le-Street annual, Nov. 7, Mr. Riseborough; Birtley annual, Dec. 5, Mr. H. Seely; Pelton Fell annual, January 2, Mr. Wm. Reid. Moved that we run table shows at our meetings in future, up till our first annual show, for British, Can. and For. All Canaries to be young birds and to wear closed rings. Medals will be given for most points throughout table shows. Mr. Wm. Davidson has promised medal, value 15s., for most points in Canaries. Canary fanciers have promised medal, value 15s., for most points in British, etc.; so fanciers come and join us—the progressive club—and win one of our medals. Annual subs., 7s. 6d. and 1s. entrance, which covers all shows mentioned. Mr. Forster showed a sample of Mr. Leclair's open rings and his charpie nesting. Next meeting, Chester-le-Street, April 25, at 7, when a table show will be held; points to count for medals, etc. Linnet or Twite, Siskin or Redpoll; Softbills not larger than Thrush; Bunting, any variety.—Wm. Forster, Sec.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

First meeting of the new Council April 18, Market Tavern, Bradford, Mr. Wm. Cruise (pres.) in chair. There was a splendid attendance of delegates, only two societies not being represented. The President thanked the delegates for the honour they had paid him in electing him to that most important position. Mr. Cruise said that he had an experience of something like 26 years in the Fancy, which had been not only profitable, but from which he had derived much pleasure, and he trusted that all would experience a pleasant year. Dwelling on the novice question, he said that from the time he won his novice medal the Union had given upwards of 110 medals, and he much regretted the fact that many of these exhibitors, after achieving that object, seemed to him to drift out of the hobby altogether. He expressed a desire that some scheme would ultimately be devised which would retain these novice medal winners in the Fancy. The first question after the confirmation of previous meeting's business was as to whether Halifax and Dist. C.B.S. should be allowed to have the first show date and judge allotted to the Halifax Society before the split. This had been referred back to the members of the Union societies from the previous Council meeting, and by a unanimous vote the Council decided to grant them this application. The delegate representing the society thanked the Council very heartily. Sowerby Bridge and Dist. C.B.S. made an application for membership, and this was also granted by a unanimous vote. A letter from Manningham C.B.A. in respect to their open show was allowed to lie on the table pending further important developments. The Bradford National Show Committee made an application for the support of the Union at their next show, Dec. 4 and 5, and the Council granted that all the Union trophies, novice medals, and other competitions should be competed for at that show. The Council decided to give eight gold novice medals at Union shows during the season, six for Yorks section and two for Norwich. Annual subs. for all members returned to the Union was fixed at 8d., payable on or before May 1. Decided to write to various firms to tender for the printing of Union handbooks, show rules, etc. Following were elected on the sub-committee to deal with any urgent business:—W. B. Atkinson, J. Horsfield, W. H. Symes, G. White, W. Hellas, F. Hodgson, and A. Brown. The Pres., in thanking the delegates for their attention, hoped that they would attend as near to the time stated for the meeting to open as possible. Anyone desirous of having an advertisement in the Union handbook can do so by applying to me; 7s. 6d. full page, 3s. 9d. half-page, 2s. 6d. one-third, 2s. quarter, 1s. breeders' cards. Secs. of affiliated societies should note that all members' names and addresses, also payment for same, should be sent in to me by May 1. Novice members' names being marked with N; also state headquarters of society, when meetings are held, and what time they commence.—H. Hill, Sec., 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Bradford.

WALLSEND MID-TYNE C.B.A.

Meeting, April 8th, at the Station Hotel. We have fixed our show on Nov. 7 instead of Nov. 14, as stated previously in CAGE BIRDS. This is to avoid clashing with Blaydon. I think when societies are fixing their show dates they should see they do not take other clubs' dates. Since Wallsend was a society its annual show has always been on the second Saturday in November, so Blaydon has taken our date. Their usual date is the first Saturday in November; last year it was the third Saturday. I think they should have altered their show date, not Wallsend; it would not have meant loss to our Society, because we are having a members' show. I hope another year societies will keep their own date and not clash with others. Members elected: Mr. Blakey, Wrekenton; Mr. Doughty and Mr. Coutts, Byker; Mr. Affleck, Wallsend.—G. Greenwell.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Meeting held April 6; very poor attendance of members. Mr. W. Bowyer, Leek, appointed judge for young bird show, June 20; the same classification as last year in the members' section was adopted, and as the open classes we put on last year were very poorly supported, it was decided to defer them for further consideration. Mr. Blower (Stoke) and M. Hartley (Hanford) were elected members. Mr. Ousman submitted sketch and estimate for some staging for use at shows, and if we can raise the necessary funds to purchase same, I am sure it will prove most useful. I purpose giving a china tea service for competition amongst the members at the N.F. and annual members' shows, but only those members whose annual subs. are fully paid up, previous to the first show, as per rule, to compete. I hope to see a better attendance at the next meeting.—J. Pitchford, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN BRITISH M. & F.B.C.

Annual meeting, March 28, Chairman Mr. C. Petterson presided over a large attendance. Decided to ask Mr. Nicholson, of Stockton, to become President, and the following gentlemen Vice-Presidents: Messrs. T. Holmes and R. Davidson, Carlisle; T. Porteous, Hexham; T. C. Crawhall, J. Mackenzie, J. Bertram and R. Tindale, Newcastle, and W. Butler, Stanley. Officers elected: Chair., Mr. Petterson; vice, Mr. J. Mackenzie; auditors, Messrs. Mackenzie and Hamilton. Decided that all members act as committee instead of local members as in previous years; also decided to hold meetings on fourth Saturday in every month until further notice. Mr. Tindale, who was present, promised a cup to be competed for at our table shows next season. In connection with the meeting the last of the series of six shows was held. Mr. J. Maddison judged.

LINNET: 1, Jobling; 2, Voutt. GREEN.: 1, Petterson; 2, Jobling; 3, Hamilton; 4, Hooper. BULLF. or GOLDF.: 1, 3, Jobling; 2, Hooper; 4, Voutt; 5, Petterson. BRAMBLE or CHAFF.: 1, 2, Bertram; 3, McGuire. SISKIN, REDPOLL or TWITE: 1, Jobling; 2, Hooper; 3, 4, Petterson. A.O. BRIT.: 1, Jobling; 2, Bertram. PAIRS for HYB. BREEDING: 1, 2, McGuire; 3, Hooper. FOR.: 1, Voutt; 2, 3, Petterson. Special toilet set given by Mr. Petterson for the three highest birds, Mr. Jobling; 2s. 6d. by the Sec. for the second most points, Mr. Bertram. Vote of thanks to Mr. Maddison for judging brought a pleasant and instructive meeting to a close.—W. Curry, Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting, April 18, Newmarket Hotel, Shudehill, Manchester, with a fairly good muster from Rochdale, Glossop, Denton, Manchester, Oldham, etc. We had the pleasure of making Mr. G. Naylor, of Rochdale, a member, and were interested in noticing that he took an intelligent part in the various questions put before the meeting. Mr. Stansfield made a very sporting offer to guarantee prize money at our next club show under certain conditions, which will be more fully gone into at some future meeting. We had sad news from Mr. Bradley's brother that Mr. John Dewsnap is in a very critical condition, and also in regard to Mr. E. Fuller, our old friend being once again the victim of gout. No better news was to hand in regard to Mr. John Garner, who is still in a very bad way. Decided that sec. write letters of condolences to the gentlemen mentioned, with hopes for a quick recovery. Decided we have tea and social at Mr. Clarke's, Volunteer Inn, George Street, Oldham, May 9. Tea at 5, tickets 1s. 3d. It will assist the sec. in making arrangements if all intending to be present will send names not later than May 2, so that proper arrangements may be made. Messrs. Fitton and Swalwell kindly undertook to see after the entertainment part, and also the ordering of the teas. There was a strong feeling and determination on the part of the members present to make a big effort to place Lancashires and Lizards at the front, where they ought to be. Sec. was instructed to write the winners of club trophies, to know what they want as specials, so that Mr. Swalwell can get them in time for social, when it is proposed to present the prizes as follows: Champ Lanc. trophy, G. Litton (runner-up, A. Beattie; champ. Lizard trophy, W. P. Barnes, runner-up J. Rukin; champ. Novice Lizard trophy, E. Lord, runner-up C. L. Bosworth. No novice competed for Lancashire section. Where are all the novices, with specials going begging for this? There is evidently plenty of room in the L. and L.F.A. for novice Lancashire breeder and exhibitors. One of the best meetings for some time was brought to a close with a vote of thanks to chair.—John Rukin, Hon. Sec.

HORNSEY, WOOD GREEN, C.B.S.

Table show of British birds, April 7, Nightingale Hotel, 16 birds being staged in the pink of condition. After judging, Mr. H. Norman gave a lecture on the birds, and said it was one of the finest table shows of British birds he had judged. There were birds amongst them that could hold their own in open competition, which speaks well for the rapid strides we are making for so young a society. Three new members elected.

GOLDF. (6): 1 Stephen; 2, Miss Smith; 3, Griffin; vhc, Hetherington, hc, Day; c, Bates. BULLF. (5): 1, Stephen; 2, Pettit; 3, Day; vhc, hc, Bates. REDPOLL (3): 1, hc, c, Bates; 2, 3, Stephens; vhc, Pettit. GREENF. (4): 1, Stephens; 2, Griffin; 3, Pettit; vhc, Bates. LINNET (3): 1, 3, Stephens; 2, Griffin, vhc, Hetherington; hc, Pettit. BUNTING (4): 1, Hetherington, 2, 3, vhc, Willis. CHAFF. (3): 1, 2, Stephens; 3, Pettit. BRAMBLE (2): 1, 2, Stephens. HAWF.: 1, Stephens. HENS: 1, Stephens. TITS, ETC. (3): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, Willis. A.O.V. (2): 1, Hetherington; 2, Willis. Special best 1st and best 2nd, Stephens; best 3rd, Griffin.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting, Wentworth Cafe, Mr. F. Jones (Pres.) in chair. Balance sheet for 1913 was read by Sec. This would have been given earlier, only Mr. Hobson has been waiting for members to bring in ticket money. If they will kindly oblige in this respect in future it will make his work ever so much easier. The report shows a profit in both the nest feather and annual members' shows, and it rests with the members to make the shows this season even a greater success. Sub-committee's report re rung birds created a great deal of discussion. The schemes as proposed by the committee were adopted, viz., that there be prizes for each section, the four highest rung birds to count; also a special for the best rung bird in each section; rings to be got from the Assist. Sec. Decided to have a competition for nominated birds, the details left to sub-committee. The first ramble of the season fixed for June 6, to Ridgeway, Mr. Curley to be the guide and make arrangements for refreshments. A vote of condolence was passed to Mr. Beven in his sad bereavement, he having suffered the loss of his mother, who died very suddenly. The rest of the evening was taken up by questions. These proved very interesting, and many useful hints and suggestions were given. May meeting, lecture on Norwich by Mr. A. H. Waters, and egg-food making competition. This should be very instructive. Fanciers invited.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

WALTON AND EVERTON C.B.S.

Meeting at 3, Priory Grove, Mr. M. E. Wilson chair. Six new members nominated. A discussion arose as to nest feather shows, and it was decided to hold two night N.F. shows, which will count for season specials. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe promised a cup for same. The Chairman was sorry to inform the members that the President, Mr. J. C. Crowe, was seriously ill; a vote of sympathy was accorded, wishing him a speedy recovery. A deal of business relative to specials, show regulations, etc., was left in the hands of the Committee to go into and report at May meeting. On behalf of the Wallasey C.B.S., Mr. H. Alston invited the members to their ramble, May 3. Liverpool men meet at Central Low Level, 9.45 a.m. train for Bidston. All fanciers are invited; please don't forget time and date. We are endeavouring to get the best known authority in the North of England to speak on "Mendelism" at some future date. Secretaries were instructed to write to the North Liverpool C.B.S. to go into this lecture, with a view to getting a large hall. Mr. W. Young gave his lecture on "Which was the most interesting and profitable Canary to keep, the green or the clear?" Mr. W. Young advocated the green, while Mr. H. Alston, Egremont, took up the cudgels of the clear. It was a wonderful debate, being taken up by all present, who must have learnt something. A vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer, who suitably responded.—Robinson and Burns, Hon. Secs.

UPPER RHONDDA C.B.S.

Meeting April 8th, Cardiff Arms Hotel. Mr. Powell presided in the absence of Mr. Curtis. Decided to hold two F.F. shows, June 11 and July 30. Sec. was instructed to write to judge re first show. Decided not to be affiliated to the S.W. and Mon. Federation, the chief argument against being that members had to compete at mixed shows, and that South Wales wants a union for Cage Bird Societies only. Members are reminded that subs. are due. After business Mr. Bees was called upon to give a lecture on "Sweating Hens." Mr. Bees said his intention in reading the paper was to start a discussion in which we might learn from one another, so he would give his own experience of 19 years' bird keeping, during which time he had seen many funny things happen. He always tried to prevent trouble by keeping his stock birds in good robust condition, with plenty of muscle and energy; during winter he gave them plenty of flight exercise, and fed on plain canary seed and apple. When he had a hen in a fat, sluggish condition while sitting, he gave half-a-teaspoonful of oatmeal in two ounces of water, and for bad feeders lettuce twice a day with dandelion once; he believed the latter was a good blood tonic. He never forgot to hang on the bath. After Mr. Bees had answered many questions a hearty vote of thanks was accorded him. Next meeting Mr. Powell will read a paper on Egg Binding.—E. Richards, Sec.

THE "FILUP" FEEDER.

Hand feeding can now be done with the greatest success. Save all young birds hatched. Hundreds of testimonials have been received from fanciers who are delighted with it. See CAGE BIRDS Annual. Can be obtained from all dealers, or 1/3 post free by return from sole manufacturers.

We hear that Redruth F.S. Show is fixed for July 1. Mr. W. G. Poole, Stratford-on-Avon, will judge cage birds.

Mr. J. C. Barnes, Sheffield, has, we hear, been elected to judge the first open show of the Burslem and Dist. C.B.S., Dec 12.

I have undertaken the duties of Assist. Sec. and Press Correspondent of the Poplar C.B.S., writes Mr. F. H. Marhoff, 1, Stanfield Road, Bow.

Mr. Boothman, Manchester, will give a lecture on Norwich Canaries at our next meeting May 6, at 8, at headquarters, Wareing Dining Rooms, writes Mr. G. Lord, sec. Radcliffe C.B.S.

At a meeting held April 19, with a good attendance, Mr. J. Hands was elected to judge cage birds at annual show, writes Mr. Wm. Robinson, sec. W. Stanley Empire Workmen's Club F.F. and C.B.S.

Wallasey and Dist. C.B.S. are having a ramble on May 3rd, writes Mr. W. Hodgkins, sec. Meet at headquarters 9.30. Meet Birkenhead and Liverpool fanciers at Bidston Church, 10.30. All fanciers invited.

Mr. Arthur Wake having resigned hon. secretaryship of Middlesbro' and Teeside C.B.S., Mr. J. Swinsco, 125, Ayresome St., Middlesbro', has been elected in his place. All communications should be addressed accordingly.

The members of the West of Scotland have a treat in store at their May meeting in a lecture from Mr. R. Davidson, Mossend, on "The Study of Nature in Relation to Man and Birds." Mr. Davidson will also have present his cases of seeds, pressed plants, etc., comprising 500 specimens, many of them collected in his 12 years' rambles in India; a large turnout is requested.—W. Hutchison, sec.

OBITUARY.

Mr. John Williams and Mr. J. C. Crowe (Liverpool).

It is with sincere regret, writes Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, that I have to inform you of the death of two well-known Liverpool fanciers. One is Mr. John Williams, the old-time celebrated "Mule King." There must be hardly a fancier who does not know, or who has not heard of the sensations that Mr. Williams used to cause when he staged his teams of Mules and Hybrids, and he took an interest in birdy circles locally. Mr. Williams got in very feeble health towards the end. The other good fancier we have lost is Mr. J. C. Crowe, who was only ill four days with pneumonia. Practically only a young man in the Fancy, he made his name a household word in this district. He was the main supporter, financially, of the late Anfield Society. He had not an enemy in the Fancy. We in Liverpool have indeed lost two good friends. At the funerals the local societies were represented by Messrs. J. C. Cutmore, J. W. Metcalfe, W. C. Robinson, J. Burns, M. E. Wilson, J. C. Caine, R. Folland, and I. Dickinson. There was also a procession of his Masonic brothers.

The quarterly statement of accounts of the City and Suburban A.C.B. shows a very healthy state of affairs, the cash balance in hand being £27 4s. 11d. Mr. V. Wynn (the hon. sec. and treas.) and the members are to be congratulated on their strong position.

On Monday next, April 27, Mr. C. E. Weston has promised to have a "chat" with the members of the Highgate, Hampstead C.B.S., on Mule breeding and birdy topics generally. The meeting is held at 8 p.m. in the Spencer Hall, Dartmouth Park Hill, N.W. (near tram and 'bus, also the Tufnell Park Tube Station). Friends will be heartily welcomed.

The following well-known fanciers have been appointed to judge at Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A. annual open show, on Nov. 14, writes Mr. A. Dickson, sec.: Scotch Fancies, T. Merrilees, Broughty Ferry; Borders, H. Wilson, Bannockburn. Yorks., J. Reid, Cowdenbeath; Crests, J. Veitch, Lochore; Norwich, J. Adams, Dundee; Mules, Brit., and Foreign, J. Steel, Dalkeith.

Quite a few members of Fife Cage Bird League have written me to alter the date of the next meeting from May 2 until the 9th, writes Mr. Jas. Cordery, sec., as they would like to attend the presentation to Messrs. Richardson and Jamieson, in Edinburgh on May 2, and as our lecturer is likely to be one of them I hope I won't be doing any harm by making the meeting a week later than usual.

Bradford East O.S. are having their annual fanciers' service at Park Chapel Schools, New Cross Street, on Sunday, May 3, at 6, writes Mr. W. Cruise, sec. The Rev. Hereld Parish will be the preacher, assisted by the members of the society. Master Cyril Hammond will be the soloist, and will render "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and "Nearer, my God, to Thee." A hearty invitation given to all.

Blue Robins for England.

An effort is to be made this spring to introduce the American Blue Robin to the list of British birds. It is insectivorous, has a lovely song, and is coloured a deep azure blue on head, back, wings, and tail, with a red throat and breast. If the experiment is successful, this species should make a lovely addition to our native avi-fauna.

South Wales Fancier Honoured.

It must be very gratifying to Mr. Gordon McLueas to have had conferred upon him such an honour as was done at the annual meeting of the South Wales and Mon. Federation at Swansea on Easter Monday. He is the founder of this body and has worked very hard in its interests, and with the help of a body of good workers has been the means of bringing it to the success it is at present. For the purpose of retaining his services as sec. and treas. the delegates present passed a resolution that he should be elected permanently. We understand there is a good balance in hand, and seven cups are for competition for the coming season, with 31 societies affiliated.

The Patronage of Specialist Clubs.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following clubs should apply to the respective secs., stating date of show, number of classes, and judges: Northern Border and S.F.C.C., M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle; Welsh C.B.C., A. E. Brown, 66, Clare Street, Merthyr Tydfil, closing date April 18; Midland Counties Y.C.C., W. THE MIND OF A BIRD.

A Chat with Members and Friends of the L. & P.O.S.

THE bill, therefore, may be summarised as a highly specialised organ, and may be used for pricking fruit, rending flesh, climbing and hammering, or it may act as a fly trap, a decorticator, a lance, a vehicle for various purposes, a comb and brush, or, as before explained, a highly sensitive indicator, so much so that its damage may mean death or slow starvation to its owner.

Having alluded to the actual organs of sense connected with the brain, we will get back to this central "office of works" and the general behaviour of birds, which has its origin therein, and from which the entity of the creature emanates.

The brain is an excellent example of the law that this organ requires to be of a certain size independently of that of the whole body. We find the brain cavity varying much in size apart from the size of the bird, so much so that the brain of extremely tiny birds is relatively very large.

Lives only in the Present.

Viewing the intellectual development of a bird apart from the organ itself, we shall not only (compared from our own standpoint) find great variation, but we shall also find great variation in the capabilities of individual birds of the same species. We know that there may be no fundamental difference between ourselves and birds as far as the various specialised mental faculties are concerned, but it is obvious that the difference of the degree of mental complexity must be enormous. A bird is probably able to think "of" a thing, but not about it—i.e., memory is as essential to it as to any other fairly high form of life, but memory should never be confounded with the power of reviewing a situation, with deduction or induction.

Mr. E. Kay Robinson very rightly in his "Religion of Nature" deplores that system of nature-writing in which the authors (both here and especially in America) build up a fairy-story of the life-history of a creature, endowing it with a complete set of human emotions. He says it pays better than other kinds of nature-writing, which I believe to be a fact.

The average individual not trained in zoological pursuits likes to devour these tales, and prefers to hear about a creature endowed with human attributes, however distorted, rather than try to analyse the situation from an unbiassed view. A view of the situation can only be truthful, and an investigation can be only valuable when personalities are not involved, as in the case of a political argument. Deal with the measure and not the man, and, on the other hand, consider the behaviour of the creature and not your own emotions.

We will now consider what goes on in the mind of a bird. That a bird must have a mind of a sort none can hardly question. We must, however, remember that the ego of the bird is probably a very different thing to that of a mentally developed animal like man—the difference must be immense. A bird can be conscious of its surroundings, but not necessarily self-conscious. A great number of its actions must be largely automatic, and, judging from a great number of investigations, there is nothing whatever to lead us to think that such a creature can infer anything but the most simple sensations of its own existence and environment. I would go so far as to say that a bird cannot think of its past or its future, or review its situation outside its purely animal sensations.

The Power to Feel Pain.

The contemplation of happiness or anguish is evidently outside its scope, except for the purely animal (as apart from the intellectual) power of feeling pain or experiencing vague signs of displeasure. The power to feel pain or other unpleasant sensations is highly useful to any creature, otherwise a part of such creature might become irreparably damaged without the brain being conscious of it. This is quite a different thing to the mental discomfort that can arise in the mind of a human being through contemplation, and which in some highly strung individuals may almost equal the actual process itself.

The power to feel pain is much less developed in the purely animal and uncivilised man than it is in the highly civilised, and to both, when animal sensations are in a state of great excitement, a fairly bad injury may at the time pass unnoticed. Many lower creatures receive wounds which would cause human beings to collapse, and shortly after will dress them and exhibit little or no discomfort, whereas the highly developed, mentally nervous system of a man may be set in a state of extreme agitation at the mere thought of having the part touched. I will not bother you by illustrating these points, as they can be amplified during the discussion.

Beware!

Now that the Cuckoo may be heard on a country walk it behoves one to be careful. Tradition has it that the thing you are doing when first you hear the Cuckoo's note will be the thing you are to do most frequently throughout the year. Also, if you are unmarried, you may take note that you will remain single just as many years as the Cuckoo, when first heard, utters its call.

Jackdaw which Follows a Little Boy.

A Jackdaw belonging to a cottager in Seward's Court, Tiverton, has become so fond of Alfred Vickery, its owner's eleven-year-old son, that it follows him about wherever he goes. It flutters after him when he goes to school, and has on many occasions flown off to meet him after school was over. When the lad is sent on errands it almost invariably accompanies him. Recently it followed him to a football match and remained perched on a tree until play was over, when it fluttered off home after the boy. Recently Jacko, as he is called, was hopping round the boy while he was playing marbles in the street. The bird does not at all love other boys of the neighbourhood, and will often peck them while at play. It used to be fond of Alfred's older brother Edward. One day, however, Edward, finding that the bird was too persistent in its attentions, took it home and locked it up, and since then Jacko has had nothing to do with him.

A Great Success.

The full record of the magnificent clear Greenfinch-Canary Mule, belonging to Mr. R. Heggie (Glasgow), illustrated on our front page of April 11th, is first prizes at Lochgelly, City of Glasgow, Kelty, Kirkcaldy, Glasgow and Dist. Cowdenbeath, Queens' Park and West of Scotland Shows, and second prizes at the Crystal Palace, Scottish National, and Gateshead Shows.

The "Speckled Beauty" as a Cage Pet.

By FRED. HOBART (Upper Clapton).

Some Good Practical Hints Concerning the Song Thrush.

THE Song Thrush is a bird very well-known to everybody as a splendid songster. He is bold and vivacious in manner, readily adapts himself to cage or aviary life, and will sing as well in a cage as when perched on the topmost branch of some tree. In a crowded city street the Thrush is equally at home, and its surroundings have little effect on its song if it is kept in a good-sized, clean, well-sanded cage. It is a remarkably cleanly bird in its habits, and delights to keep its plumage in spick and span condition.

Life in the Wilds.

The Thrush when at liberty is an early breeder, commencing at the end of February or the beginning of March. Its nest is usually found in shrubberies, hedgerows, and among the dense undergrowth of coppices. In most cases it is low down, and a large, well constructed and neatly finished abode. Moss, grass, root fibres, very fine twigs, and pieces of decayed wood are chiefly used in its external structure, whilst the inside is lined with leaves and well plastered with clay and cow's dung. The eggs, from four to six, are greenish blue in colour, with small blackish-brown spots. Season after season a pair of birds visit the same locality, often building in the same shrub.

Now for one or two hints as regards keeping the Song Thrush in a cage, etc. To sex these birds is exceedingly difficult, the only difference in them at all, in my opinion, being that the breast of the hen is a little paler in colour. But some hens are quite as heavily spotted as the male birds. The song, of course, is the one safe guide.

To be successful in hand-rearing, one must be extremely careful in the feeding. A good preparation I have used is the same egg-food as for Canaries, with the addition of a few ants' eggs. I mix one hard-boiled egg, grated fine, with about two Osborne biscuits. For the first two days the young want feeding about every hour, afterwards every two hours will be quite sufficient. The young birds should have a good feed at night as they have a long while to wait for the next. They may also be given pieces of garden worms, also mealworms and small slugs. A little raw lean meat should be scraped and given to them not more than once a day. This has also saved the life of an ailing young Canary. One cannot, however, be too careful to see that the meat is quite fresh; should it be the least bit "turned" it is very harmful.

I always cage the young ones off separately as soon as they are able to feed themselves. You will then soon be able to find out which is Mr. and which is Mrs. Thrush out of the batch, as the cocks will quickly begin to warble. The hens might as well be given their liberty, unless you want to keep them for breeding experiments. You have the advantage of perfectly tame birds when they are hand-reared. A really good show bird requires to be extra large and shapely, with a bold full eye, rich colour, and chest markings distinct and clear, not running one into the other.

A First-class Dietary.

A good stock mixture for fitting birds for show (though far from being the cheapest) is as follows: Ground chicken meal six parts, ground silkworm pupæ, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each. Raw carrot or finely chopped lettuce, chickweed, water-cress, or cold boiled potato should be used to damp it. Vary these frequently, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg-flake or half a hard-boiled egg, finely chopped, occasionally. Give some mealworms daily, and any other live insects you can find them; also ripe fruit and berries frequently. Blackbeetles are very much liked; so are snails. This procedure I obtained out of the columns of CAGE BIRDS, and I have found it excellent. As an ordinary staple diet, any good packet Thrush food is excellent, varied by a few insects, snails, and such-like tit-bits you happen to come across.

Never have Cages too small.

The cages for Song Thrushes should be large (never too small), and should have only the front open. The front should be made of wooden rods, or wire. The cages should have the feeding and drinking vessels outside. A small stone should be placed inside for the bird to break the shells of the snails on, as he is quick to detect anything on which to smash up his victims. A bath is also appreciated daily, and this should also be hung outside. Another very important thing is to see that all feeding vessels are kept clean.

Satisfactory and Economical.

I will here mention a cheap recipe for a prepared staple food for those who do not care about packet foods, which can be used if preferred: Take six parts of fine chicken meal, and add six parts of fine crissel. Pour enough boiling water on the daily portion to thoroughly soak it, and give it to the birds when cool. Give this to the birds three or so days a week, and on the other give the following: To 4 parts ground Osborne biscuits add one part each of dried flies, ants' eggs, meat meal (or fine crissel); also a few grocers' currants in the winter. This should be mixed crumbly moist each day, not more being moistened than will be eaten. These foods should be kept in tins.

Remember to give your pets room to open their wings and expand their lungs, good food, clean cages, and kindness, and they will live long to liven you up with their merry song and engaging ways.

TIMELY ADVICE ON CANARY BREEDING AND REARING

Points from a Lecture recently delivered before the Leeds C.B.S. by Mr. A. Chew.

DANDELION leaves are excellent conditioners for both cocks and hens, and a little egg food given every third day is also of great value as a conditioner, likewise a teaspoonful of mixed seed two or three times per week. My staple diet is plain canary seed. The mixed seed that I give is composed of 1lb. hemp, 1lb. niger, ½-lb. linseed, ½-lb. maw, ½-lb. gold of pleasure, ½-lb. white millet, ½-lb. red millet, ½-lb. summer rape, ½-lb. winter rape, and ½-lb. teazle, which will cost you about 1s. 8d.

By March 21st I have generally got my birds started nesting, as I believe in getting an early start. I think it repays you in more ways than one; you have your birds ready for the early shows, and the early birds are, in my opinion, always the best. Whether the birds are ready you can easily tell by putting a few bits of cow-hair between the wires; the hen will run about with a few pieces in her beak, calling to her mate.

Materials for the Home.

I use the earthenware nest pan, with a felt lining fastened in, made from carpet felting, which is easily cut to the shape required, and is much cheaper than the ordinary nest linings. For nesting material I give cow-hair. If nesting material is not given, the hen may take to pulling feathers from her mate, and once having learned the habit, she may remember it when she has young ones, and pluck them also.

If the hen is seen about this time sitting with her feathers puffed out, and looking listless, you may expect her to lay the next morning. If in the morning she should not have laid, and it is seen by her appearance and actions that she is probably egg-bound, catch her and hold her gently, taking care not to damage the egg, the shape of which in the abdomen may plainly be seen; if broken it will be almost certain death to her. Have some hot water in a dish, and bathe the abdomen with a soft sponge for about five minutes. Have a little olive oil at hand and dip your finger into it, and rub gently over the abdomen and vent. Then place her back on the nest, where she will probably soon lay, and be as lively as ever.

Take the eggs away as they are laid, and keep them in a receptacle containing bran for them to rest on. On the evening of the day she lays her third egg, place the eggs in the nest and let her sit. Fasten a piece of cardboard on the wires in front of the nest, so as to hide it a little, as the hen will then sit more comfortably when you are attending to your duties in the room. Do not give egg food or mixed seed during the period of incubation, nor any green food, as it is apt to induce the hen to stop off the nest too long, the eggs thereby getting chilled.

The Egg-Food and its Making.

Place some egg food in a dish the night before the eggs are due to hatch, so that she may feed her young as soon as they need it. My method of preparing egg-food is to boil a new-laid egg about fifteen minutes, then press it through a sieve. The sieve I make in a very simple manner; nail four pieces of wood together, as if making a box and fasten a piece of perforated zinc to the bottom. To the egg I add one tablespoonful of fine sugar, one tablespoonful of ground rape seed, ½-lb. of stale bread, ground into crumbs, which I make crumbly moist. The egg should not be passed through the sieve until it is cold. Mix well together, and it will keep wholesome for a few days, if kept in a cool place.

Some, no doubt, will be troubled with non-feeding hens, and will have to do a little hand-feeding. I get a 4½d. syringe from the chemist to do this with, and I find it answers very well. If the hole in the end should be a little too small, all you have to do is to grind it down a little. As soon as my birds are able to feed for themselves, I put them in roomy cages, always running a few together, as I find if there are half a dozen or more together they seem to get on better. I also believe in giving them water both to drink and bathe in when they are leaving the parents. I believe a lot of young ones are lost each year by withholding water from them.

The Questions and Answers.

Mr. Chambers: What would you do in the case of the hen only laying one egg?—Mr. Chew: Take it out, give the hen a rest for a few days, and let her go to nest again.

Mr. Mennard: Does Mr. Chew believe in more egg than bread, and why does he grind the rape seed?—I believe in most bread, as I think too much egg is not good for them. Besides, it would cost too much if you had a lot of birds up. I grind the rape seed to get it to mix with the food better.

Mr. Mennard: Does Mr. Chew think it would be wise to make a staple diet of half canary and half rape seed, seeing that canary seed is so dear?—I always have a glass filled with rape seed in the cage, but it mixed I think that they would throw it about too much.

Mr. Dobson: How long is the cardboard left in front of the cage?—Until I take the young away.

Mr. Chambers: Do you use any oils in the egg-food?—Not usually, but I find cod liver oil emulsion is very good.

Milk-Sop and Cod-Liver Oil.

Mr. Mennard: Do you believe in milk sop for young ones, if unwell?—I do not use a lot of milk sop. I prefer cod liver oil emulsion in the egg food.

Mr. Norton: What number of hens do you use for one cock?—One cock to one hen, as far as I can, but it is best to keep a few spare hens in case of any going wrong.

Mr. Mennard: Do you believe in giving green food to the young after leaving the parents. I do, myself, for I find that if you feed with green food in the nest, no harm will occur, if you continue afterwards?—Mr. Chew's reply was, No.

Mr. Laughing: I do not believe in cow-hair for nesting, as I think that when the chicks are only a few days old they are apt to get their feet entangled in it, and being so weak are not able to get up to feed, thus getting starved. I am a great believer in milk sop for young birds. I give them as much as they will eat, and always do well with it. What advantage do you find, Mr. Chew, in crushing rape seed for your young ones?

Mr. Chew: I crush all seeds for young birds for a few weeks, as I think they get on better; they do not always get their fill when they have to crack it themselves, it being too hard work. I may say, gentlemen, that by following the methods I have just related to you, I have during the last fifteen years never averaged less than three and a half young ones for each hen, so you will see that I have been fairly successful.

Mr. Farrar: How do you steady Yorkshires?—Mr. Chew: By running them into the show cage as often as I can, but some I find impossible to steady.—Mr. Laughing: I believe in pedigree breeding for steady birds; I find if you have steady parents you get steady young, and vice versa.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Chew, this bringing a very instructive evening to a close.—E. Norton, hon. sec.

Why is the Hedge Sparrow's Egg Blue?

"Why is a Hedge Sparrow's egg bright blue?" A writer in "Countryside" gives the following explanation. The factors of the case are, I take it, that the Hedge Sparrow's nest is always remarkably well hidden, but that as soon as the covering above it is disturbed the eggs are startlingly conspicuous. Now the nest is almost invariably built under the branches of a bush, so close to the ground as almost to rest upon it, and at the time when the Hedge Sparrow nests the herbage under the bushes is growing fast. A great danger to the nest, therefore, is that some grazing animal, thrusting its head under the low branches in search of the growing herbage, might push the shelter aside and destroy the nest. The bright colour of the eggs would startle the intruder and cause it to withdraw; for grazing animals need to be very nervous about things which have conspicuous colours because these generally mean that their wearers are dangerous. This utility of bright colour, coupled with the tendency of the life-force in all creatures to produce excellence and beauty, suffices, I think, to explain the bright blue of Hedge Sparrows' and other birds' eggs. I do not think that Natural Selection could produce the colour, though, of course, it would help to fix it, if useful.

The Home Club Comes First.

Sir.—Mr. Walter S. Wilson, of Hamilton, has refused the appointment to judge Leith show, the reason being that Hamilton show falls on the same date (Nov. 14) and Mr. Wilson, being vice-president of the Hamilton O.S., considers it would be unfair to both club and exhibitors to be absent from duty at Hamilton. Show secretaries will understand, however, that Mr Wilson is open for other dates. George Marlin.

A Twenty-Year Old Goldfinch Mule.

Sir.—We note in last week's issue a correspondent writes saying that a Goldfinch had been kept in captivity 15 years. It may interest you to hear that a friend of ours who uses our Finch Mixture wrote us the other day saying his Goldfinch Mule was in his 20th year. We think this to be an interesting instance of longevity in a cage bird, and that we may justly feel proud of our Finch Mixture being the food for this long period. Pink Eyes in Cinnamon-Coloured British Birds.

Sir.—A few weeks ago in Cage Birds, in a few notes at the foot of your report of Birkenhead British Bird Show, sent by the sec., he mentions that Mr. Barker, of Wallasey, exhibited a Cinnamon Skylark (not for competition) most fanciers agreeing the bird to be pink-eyed. I have examined this bird very closely, and have come to the conclusion that it is not pink eyed. But I would like some well-known authority to examine this bird, as no doubt it has always been admitted that cinnamon-coloured birds are pink eyed. Mr. Barker will be pleased to let any authority examine it by appointment. I only write to see if any fanciers have come across a similar case.

W. Young.

[It certainly does not necessarily follow that cinnamon coloured British birds, or Mules and Hybrids, have pink eyes. I have possessed, amongst others, a cinnamon Greenfinch, Linnet, Goldfinch, Redpoll, Robin, and Hedge Sparrow, and none of these was pink-eyed; my cinnamon Greenfinch and cinnamon Linnet Canary Mules were also black-eyed. On the other hand, I have had cinnamon plumaged British birds which have been pink-eyed.—Editor, "C.B."]

The Wryneck and its Nesting Troubles.

Sir,—The following item is taken from a letter recently sent by J.R.T. to "The Times," and I think it will be read with interest by my fellow fanciers. J.R. says: "Surely the Wryneck is not a very shy bird. It will nest quite close to a house if it finds a suitable place and is not evicted by the Sparrows. Some years ago a pair reared a brood in the hollow of a tree standing within 10ft. or 12ft. of the front door of a house I occupied in Hertfordshire. Later, in another garden in the same neighbourhood, I attached a nesting box to a post standing within some 30ft. of the front door of the house. From my study window I enjoyed a full view of this box and watched for several days the really touching efforts of a pair of Wrynecks to make a lodging there. First came the male bird to inspect. He examined the box, and apparently finding it to his liking he perched himself on the top of the post and began uttering his peculiar cry. This soon brought his mate to his side, and they proceeded to examine the box together. Then began the most industrious spring cleaning, which lasted for a day or two, for apparently the box had been previously occupied by Sparrows, and they had left it in a sad mess. Out came straws, feathers, and all sorts of litter, and then the Wrynecks settled in, but they had reckoned without the Sparrows. In a day or two they were ruthlessly evicted—though one would have thought a Wryneck was more than a match for a Sparrow—and I saw them no more. On another occasion I found in the same garden, a little farther from the house, two Wryneck's eggs deposited on the ground at the foot of a post to which a nesting box had been affixed. I can only suppose that a lady Wryneck had taken lodging there, but returning from a foraging expedition found the box occupied by Sparrows, who had bolted the front door against her. Then, being in a hurry, she deposited her egg on the ground, though how there came to be two eggs I have never been able to understand. I hardly think the Sparrows can have turned the eggs out of the box. It would have been a very difficult engineering feat, and the eggs would almost certainly have been broken by their fall to the ground. But there the eggs were, and they were intact."

A Precocious Young Canary.

Sir,—I have only been breeding Canaries for two seasons, but I think the following will interest your readers. I have a young bird which is now just three weeks old. When only 13 days old it left the nest covered with feathers, having a tail half-an-inch long and wing feathers one inch and a quarter long. Yesterday (April 19) when just three weeks old it started feeding itself. I think this is something of a record for such a young bird. It is about three inches in length. I should like to hear what your readers say about it.

Has a Bird a Conscience?

Sir,—I was reading Mr. Teschemaker's letter on Sunday morning, and, being the morning after Saturday night, I had to feel at my head to see if I had really made a mistake for once. No, my head felt all right, so I had another look at the letter. The passage which accounted for my topsy-turveydom was this: "Rooks have an assembly every spring, at which nesting sites are allocated, and if any rook ventures to build anywhere else, it is generally put to death and the nest destroyed." Now I happen to have been reared and have lived the whole of my life, almost, underneath a Rookery, and have often noticed the assemblies, but it never occurred to me that they may be for allocating nesting sites. It is quite a socialistic idea, when you think of it. I suppose they must draw lots for the places; kind of a raffle. Evidently prize draws are not contravening Rook law. I have often noticed them quarrelling, but I always supposed they quarrelled much as other animals do; in fact, much as the human animal does. This much I do know—which Mr. Teschemaker omits from his letter—that from my own observation Rooks only use two kinds of sticks to build their nests with. I think I remember once reading in a children's fairy tale book that Ravens hold an annual parliament in Iceland. But I had always looked upon the Raven's parliament in Iceland as a fairy tale Still, one has never finished learning. The last paragraph interested me very much. It refers to birds having infringed the moral code being chased by birds half their size. Anyone who who has kept pigeons will often have noticed one being chased through the air by a Sparrow. Now he will know that the pigeon must have been making love to Mrs. Sparrow. 'Tis a weary world! T. Johnson.

A 15-Year-Old Skylark's Adventure with Pussy.

Sir,—Thinking it might be interesting to readers of Cage Birds, I venture to send you particulars of a Skylark, belonging to a friend of mine at Tillietudlem Station. This bird was brought from a nest and hand-reared on ordinary egg and biscuit food, and scraped raw beef, turning out a fine bird. It became a great favourite, being such a beautiful singer and so very tame. It was fed afterwards on plain canary seed, a little hemp, ants' eggs, and occasionally mealworms. About two years ago, when hung on the wall outside, he escaped from his cage and flew into the garden. The cat happened to be in the garden at the time, and she, thinking the bird had no right to fly anywhere but inside the house, the Lark was caught and carried back, in pussy's mouth, to the kitchen. The Lark, none the worse, was put in his cage, and was singing shortly after. "Jackie," as he was called, was cared for like one of the family, and will be greatly missed, as he died last week, having almost reached the age of fifteen, being taken from the nest in July, 1899. I think this quite a record for a Skylark.

The Deposit System Recommended.

Sir,—Having read with interest in Cage Birds of March 28 a reference to the two maiden ladies "Miss Nomer" and "Miss Representation," I should like, in view of my own recent experience, to warn innocent and honest fanciers against sending P.O.'s, instead of taking advantage of your Deposit System in dealing with those whom they have had no opportunity of judging. I am personally inclined to "trust all men," especially when the name has become familiar from advertisement. One argues business must be done if such advertisement can be afforded. But I have discovered how it can be done. Such a simple way! Just keep your customer's money and also the birds sent back "not approved"—that is if your customer lives far enough away. A very limited number of birds would go quite a long way. Mine went back, and no acknowledgment of any kind has yet reached me, nor has any notice been taken of two or three reminders. Possibly the bird is still travelling around representing this firm—if so he must be quite au asset. I trust my words may make my brother fanciers a bit cautious.

The Sad Loss of a Noted Scottish Fancier.

Sir,—I was very pleased to read in Cage Birds of last week a letter from Mr. John Young, hon. sec. Scottish Crested C.C., re the sad loss of our old respected friend and veteran fancier, Mr. Hugh Moreland, of Falkirk; but a much sadder loss, I am very sorry to inform you, falls to be added, for within a few days of the catastrophy to his birds, Mr. Moreland was bereaved of one of his sons. With this doubly sad loss, I am sure, as Mr. Young has already ably said in his letter, that the sympathies of all our brother fanciers are with Mr. Moreland at this time. Since he (Mr. Moreland) has done so much for the Fancy in Scotland in assisting with that warm and whole-hearted spirit (which is always to be found in a true fancier) to bring it to the high standard of to-day, I have much pleasure in endorsing both Mr. Young's and Mr. Rennie's appeal to brother fanciers in aid of a grand national testimonial to help this old, respected fancier, and set him up afresh in his favourite hobby, so that it may brighten his leisure moments, and prove to him the respect in which he is held by his brother fanciers throughout Bonnie Scotland. I trust that such a testimonial may be got up, and meet with the success it so rightly deserves.

THE CHAMPION HEAVY-WEIGHT OF THE BRITISH WAGTAILS.

Also Some Notes on the Size of their Eggs.

Sir,—With regard to the fighting powers of the Pied and Grey Wagtails my experience is quite the reverse of that of Mr. W. E. Teschemaker. I have often seen the Pied Wagtail chasing the Grey Wagtail, and no further back than last autumn I saw a Pied chasing a Grey several times. I saw a White Wagtail and a Pied having a tussle twice. Victory lay with the former in the first combat, and victory lay with the latter in the second. I cannot, however, say they were the same birds; and as Mr. W. E. Teschemaker remarks "The Pied and White Wagtails seem very evenly matched."

A Robin once took possession of a small heap of manure in front of a window where I was working and any of its own species which ventured near was quickly driven off, while the House Sparrows met with a hot reception. A pair of Pied Wagtails frequented the heap and the Robin attacked the hen bird several times, but the latter was always victorious. The Robin never attacked the cock bird. That was forty-five years ago. Since then I have had a lot of experience with British Wagtails in their wild state.

It appears to me that the song and call notes of the White Wagtail are just the same as those of the Pied Wagtail, but the call notes of former are sometimes rather softer. The Grey Wagtail is the next best songster, and the Yellow Wagtail fourth. I have no experience of the Blue-headed Wagtail, but I recognised it at Paisley Bird Show.

In an article on Wagtails Dr. Butler stated that the Grey Wagtail has the largest egg. When I pointed out his mistake (that the Pied Wagtail has a larger egg) he said "I have in my possession a Grey Wagtail's egg as large as that of the Pied Wagtail." But that was not a satisfactory answer. It either showed that his observations were imperfect or his experience limited, as the average size of the Pied Wagtail's egg is decidedly larger than that of the Grey Wagtail. The Pied has a heavier body than that of the Grey, which accounts for the egg being larger. Dr. Butler also stated that he saw a Grey Wagtail's nest with eggs in the furrow of a ploughed field. I cannot help thinking that it was a Yellow Wagtail's nest, as I have seen a Yellow Wagtail's nest in a similar position. A gentleman whom I knew saw a pair of Yellow Wagtails in a ploughed field. He made several holes and the pair of Wagtails referred to selected one of them to nest in. In all my experience I have only seen the Grey Wagtail three or four times in an open field. The Grey Wagtail is often mistaken for the Yellow Wagtail; but it was the opposite, of course, with Dr. Butler.

Wagtails do not readily approach their nest when any person is watching them, as I have often had reason to know. I watched a pair of Pied Wagtails, with food in their bills, day after day. They built their nest in an old quarry in the town of Beith. But it was no use, and I found out later on that I was too near the nest. That was fifty-three years ago. The Pied Wagtail usually builds in quarries, or near dams, or ponds, or other sheets of water. I have only seen one nest of this species at the side of a stream. Five eggs are usually laid to the clutch. The Grey Wagtail prefers to build in rocks where there are quick running streams. Five or six eggs are usually laid. The Yellow Wagtail generally builds in hay or cornfields, and five or six eggs are usually laid.

Two Eggs Joined Together.

Sir,—I am a breeder of the Norwich Plainhead Canary, and on Sunday last, April 19, I found, to my great surprise, one of my hens had laid two eggs, joined together by a very thin shell. Both of the eggs contained a yolk, etc. I should be pleased to know if any other fancier has had this experience. Thanking you for all the valuable information I have received from your splendid paper, Cage Birds, which I wish every success.

Fifteen Years of Cage Life.

Sir,—It might interest your readers to know that we have just lost a pet Goldfinch in his 15th year. His owner was Miss Gray, formerly of Sandwich, Kent, and he was known to a good many that way.

The Goldfinch was one of a nest of five taken at Eythorne, near Dover. He was a very typical bird, and his plumage was perfect to the last, always a brilliant colour. His singing was splendid, and as good as ever until two years ago, since when he has been blind. It seems a wonderful age for a bird, but he was always well looked after.

How a Reader Got Rid of Red Mite.

Sir,—I have been taking Cage Birds for some time and have found many good hints in it which have come in very useful. There have been several letters about red mite lately. I had experience of them several years ago. I did not know what they were until I built a new wood house 12ft. x 6ft. x 7ft. high, with a galvanised iron roof, and a nice big window, with netting in front so that I could open it for ventilation. It was in the garden. I thought it was all right for bird-keeping, but the next breeding season I began to find out what red mite were. The birds were much pestered with them, so I began to think that I had made a great mistake. I found the house varied too much in temperature. I had another house at the kitchen end of my dwelling-house, which had a thatched roof. Thought I, before the next breeding season I will try them in there, and put an end to all red mite. So I took a big bath of water and put it on to boil. 1lb. of Lifebuoy Soap and four balls of camphor tar were put in the water. When these were dissolved, I put each cage in the boiling water for some minutes and left them a day or two to get dry, then whitened them with lime, when they were placed in the new house. From that day to this I have not seen a red mite. I find that my present one is the most even temperatured house that can be got. My birds are healthy, and I have now three nests of young birds, two fours and a three, and several more hens sitting. I hope you will think this worthy of being put in your valuable paper, so that it may be of some help to brother fanciers.

Who is Liable for Special Prizes at Shows?

Sir,—I thank you for your reply to my query under the above heading, which, in my opinion, is more than a surprise, especially as regards the private donor. In these days of competition, show committees make a big effort to get as many specials as possible, which are in the very great majority of cases given by private donors, and if the private donors are going to shirk their moral liabilities it will mean a big loss to societies, in fact, ruination in some cases. It will also mean that show committees will relax their efforts in getting specials, and the result will be loss of entries, as one cannot get away from the fact that a good list of specials is a great inducement to exhibitors to make entries, and helps to make the show a success.

You have pointed out that show committees can evade their liabilities by inserting a clause in their schedules that "they will not be responsible, etc." Good advice; and no doubt it will be acted on. At the same time, I shall be very sorry to see it in any schedule, as to my way of thinking it is unsportsmanlike, and will not be beneficial to the Fancy. But this is only my personal opinion, and I should be pleased to see other fanciers' views on the subject.

Now, as regards the particular special in question, there appears to be a doubt in some quarters as to the special being promised, and as the donor has not come forward with any statement it lends itself to the view that there is a certain amount of "swank" attached to it; but this is not so, and I will state the case briefly. Meeting the person in question one day I mentioned that the B.R.C.C. were going to run a show on their own, and he said he would be pleased to give a special of a plated teapot value £1 1s., and that it would be the value. I thanked him very much, as one does not come across £1 1s. specials every day, and not canvassed for at that, and on behalf of my committee I wrote and thanked him, also sent him a schedule of the show. He has admitted his liability in writing since, as you will see by the copies of a letter and postcard (enclosed) written by him to the winner of his special. I think under these circumstances that there is a strong case for the donor to be sued successfully, but one does not want to do this kind of thing, and it has been a most unpleasant duty for me to have to write about the affair at all, and I appeal to the donor, as a fancier, to redeem his promise in some shape or form. I thank you very much for the information you have given on this subject, which I feel sure will be of great benefit to the Fancy in more ways than one.

Irish Club News Wanted.

Sir,—Knowing that the annual general meeting of the Y.C. and C.B.S. of Ireland was to have taken place last month, and the officers for the present year elected, I would like to know if there was any meeting held, as I have seen no report in Cage Birds.

A Mannikin-Zebra Finch Alliance.

Sir,—A Pied Mannikin has mated with a cock Zebra Finch in my aviary and laid three eggs. Perhaps this may interest readers of Cage Birds. I should be interested to know whether anyone has heard of young birds being reared from this strange combination. The Zebra Finch was bred in my aviary some four years ago.

How to Distinguish the Roller Tours.

Sir,—I desire to thank you for the insertion of my letter which appeared in our much-esteemed Cage Birds under the above heading, it having been the means of introducing me to a fellow fancier in Leeds who has promised to call on me during the coming summer. My sincere thanks are also due to Mr. Tomlinson, whose article was the cause of my letter being written, and from whom I have received a very kind letter informing me that he has arranged for me to visit Mr. Oldroyd, of Wakefield, which I hope to do at some future date. The interest shown by the above-mentioned gentlemen proves that there are yet some fanciers who are willing to give a little spare time to the cause of the novice in our hobby. Therefore I desire to express through your columns my best thanks to these gentlemen for the kindness shown, and at the same time once more express the desire for any Roller fancier coming this way (Skipton) to call upon me for a chat on our hobby.

The "Napoleon" of the Canary World and the Novices.

Sir,—I feel sure the writer, "W. McK.," in Cage Birds of April 11 hardly expects I can possibly be alive this week to tell the tale; or, at least, if I have managed to survive the interval between the publication of my few remarks regarding novices and the appearance of his own letter, I shall, no doubt, now have been driven to my kennel, beaten and dejected, with my tail down! Otherwise, he surely would not have hastened to so freely extend his forgiveness for all my sins! In mentioning his "few novice friends" he asks: "Am I only pulling their legs?" Well! Well! It does not want a very long stick to touch someone who has had both legs pulled—and badly, too! No, W. McK., what I really intended to say, and which I unfortunately omitted when dealing with the novice question broadly, satirically, and even humorously, I hope, was that a reader such as "W.McK." was not included in my remarks; for instead of my winter boots awaiting him, I should be pleased to pat him on the back, tell him what a good boy he is, and give him a sponge cake and a penny to go home with. This, if nothing else, should help his mother to soothe him to slumber; also to allay his fears regarding the "Bogie" man taking him if he doesn't. Are there any more readers like "W. McK."? If so, next please!

E. M. Allsopp.

Sir,—I read "W. McK.'s" letter with pleasure. It is quite time someone put a spoke in Mr. Allsopp's wheel. I notice that "W. McK." says "he is getting used to speeches from Gallant Little Wales." Mr. A. does not belong to Wales: much nearer "Limehouse" than "W. McK." thinks. And "W. McK." is mistaken if he thinks all Welsh fanciers are like this. What has Mr. A. bred since living in Cardiff? Only one, "The Welsh Queen," 1st Plymouth, commended at Manchester and died the very next day of a broken heart. So he must breed a few "weeds" as well as the

A £10,000 WORK for 10/- DOWN.

Birds of the British Islands

By CHARLES STONHAM, C.M.G., F.S.C.S., F.Z.S.

All students of the Birds of this country will be glad to hear that they can now obtain Charles Stonham's great work, "The Birds of the British Isles," for a first payment of a few shillings only, the balance being paid by small monthly payments. Over £10,000 has been spent, and no less than five years have been taken up in the production of the work, and it is justifiably claimed that it is far in advance of anything of the kind previously published. The work is, in fact, well known to be the recognised authority, and covers every detail of the subject. Every species of British Bird is treated with full description of its habits, foods, nest, eggs, and plumage—in fact, every detail that can be of value to the student.

In describing each species, the author has endeavoured to afford such information concerning the habits and plumage as the ordinary reader will require. No pains have been spared to verify the statements made when the matter treated of has not come within the author's personal knowledge, or has not come under his observation.

Magnificent Illustrations.

The work is particularly notable for the variety and beauty of its many illustrations. There are in all over 300 full-page photogravure plates, constituting the most scientifically accurate and artistically beautiful collection ever offered. Particular attention has been given to the proper representation of the actual proportions and plumage of each bird. In many cases the reproductions are actually life size.

Where the sexes differ in any appreciable degree separate drawings are given. Further, there are additional plates of those nestlings and young birds (for example, some waders and gulls), whose appearance and plumage call for special illustration. The same plan is followed in regard to any particular points of plumage, such as the outspread wing or tail which the ordinary drawing does not show.

The illustrations are the result not only of indefatigable work in the Studio, but of constant study of the birds in their haunts, and of innumerable sketches and studies made from living specimens and their natural surroundings.

Other features of the work are a glossary of all synonyms and local names, a bibliography of books on British Birds and complete indices, scientific and English.

TWO OPINIONS.

The Westminster Gazette.

"The illustrations are the finest efforts of the kind that we have seen, and show an accuracy and delicacy of execution that are remarkable. . . . Certainly to be regarded as a veritable treasure by all students and lovers of the birds of these islands."

The Scotsman.

"A glance at the plates should satisfy the most exacting student that the illustrations realise the aim of the author of the book. They are drawn with extreme care and accuracy . . . there is clear evidence that in this handsome publication the literature of bird-lore has been materially enriched."

The Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League Show Patronage.

Sir,—Kindly grant me space to inform secretaries or those interested in the foreign section of all open shows (which are prepared to give at least six classes for foreign birds) that the League has now under consideration the matter of granting their patronage for the season 1914 15. Those desiring help in this direction should apply to the secretary before May 20, 1914. The society will in all probability be in a position at least to offer for competition four season cups and their diplomas at these shows. Applicants should send a catalogue of their last season's show, particulars of classification, and names of judge or judges.

Border Fancy Canary Club's Presentation and Smoker.

Sir,—As all arrangements are fully completed for the presentation and smoker, to be held in the Cathedral Hotel on May 2nd, in connection with the above, would all members who still have lists please return same to me at once, as we would like everything to be included in the total. We take this opportunity of thanking most heartily all those who gave such a good response to our appeal. We have in hand at the present £15 8s. 6d. A full report of the proceedings will appear in Cage Birds. The chair is to be taken promptly at five o'clock, as our late president, Mr. J. B. Richardson, must catch his train at six o'clock.

An Appeal from the Welsh Cage Bird Club.

Sir,—At the annual general meeting, time would not allow of dealing with the Club's patronage, and this matter stands over until the next meeting, so should there be any society desirous of obtaining our patronage, will they please make application to me as early as possible. The classification for mixed shows has now been altered considerably, and I shall be glad to send a copy to any mixed society. Any fancier wishing to become a member should send me the subscription, viz., 3s., without delay, which will be returned if not accepted. I will send a rule book to anyone wishing to join. Members who have not sent their subs. should do so as early as possible, to enable me to get list of members, etc., printed.

A Wail from Aintree.

Sir,—It appears to me to be quite a mystery to your correspondent, Mr. G. A. Skilling, and the Fancy in general in the Liverpool district, who "Yorkshireman" is. I will give my reasons for writing under a nom de plume. First of all, as to whether I have attended any meetings, your readers can draw their own conclusions. The secretary, Mr. Anderson, has never allowed any member to exhibit at shows unless their annual subscriptions have been paid. On the other hand he has allowed Mr. Skilling to exhibit without having paid his entry fees before judging, Mr. Skilling's instructions being to take his entry fees out of his prize-money. Has Mr. Skilling still to pay any entry fees? He makes a slight mistake in regard to the so-called silver cup; his contribution was not seven shillings, but seven pence, the amount he asked for back at the meeting. Neither the secretary nor anyone else is aware of any medals being in the club for Mr. Skilling to win. As I may wish to join other societies, of which Mr. Skilling and one or two of his associates are members, I am not going to place it in their power to object and sit in judgment upon my election, hence the nom-de-plume "Yorkshireman." Mr. Skilling asks me if I think the bird members are slow; well, Mr. Skilling, you are not slow to describe the secretary as an ignoramus, pure and simple. And you say you condemn no man, but you like harmony! The society is now wound up, and the financial affairs placed in other hands. I appeal to Mr. Skilling to be a sport and return the cup to the secretary, as it has been won by Mr. Wilkins. I could say a lot more on matters of this description; but these columns are not open to personal abuse. A little advice to societies in the Liverpool districts may not be out of place, and that is in reference to the methods adopted by societies in the election of fanciers to membership. A fancier is proposed at one meeting and elected or rejected at the next, and no reason is given. A much more satisfactory way would be to propose and elect at the same meeting. This would prevent a clique being formed to attend the election meeting to reject certain fanciers whose credentials in exhibiting are known to be honourable and above-board., which in several societies is more than can be said of the officials, and some members. A case in point is a new society in the Liverpool district, which has refused quite a large number of fanciers' membership by these methods. If the Editor will allow me to put the reasons point blank, the chief is this, if you wish to become a member of this particular society you must deal with and purchase all your birdie requirements of a certain dealer (who is an official). If you don't, you won't be elected. It is as well that these facts should become known to fanciers before applying for membership, if they wish to avoid an insult. My contention is that no dealer should hold an official position in any club. If these methods are employed, which they most certainly are, at least in Liverpool and district, it is time that fanciers took matters into their own hands, and refused to be coerced. What reason have I, or any other fancier, to go and put matters right with any dealer in birds, etc., to ensure my election to membership of any club? I maintain that this is one of the reasons why so many fanciers exhibit in the open and yet belong to no club. Every club in Liverpool has its dealer, and I will go further and make the bold statement that that dealer is an official and adopts these methods. I know, Mr. Editor, I am opening up new grounds, and I am prepared to prove my statements up to the hilt, which might result in good to the Liverpool and district societies. I should like to give my reasons through Cage Birds as to why the breeding of green Canaries is not the success it ought to be in Liverpool and district, but space forbids. I was speaking to a well-known dealer in Liverpool the other day, and he told me that if I would give him a look in in about a week's time he would be able to tell me who "Yorkshireman" was, as he, the dealer, was a personal friend of the Editor of Cage Birds. But I know the Editor better than that. I will give our friend a call, as he has promised this information to a good number of fanciers, including Mr. Skilling. My advice to all societies is: Accept all applicants to membership, and make your rules strong enough to govern all, and carry them out without fear or favour. By refusing subscriptions you are only putting obstacles in the way of the rising champions, and probably losing a few specials. I have a good stock of birds, but I would not exhibit in Liverpool under the present conditions that exist, nor would I join any club under the conditions on which they are governed.

Yorkshireman.

FALKIRK GOOD INTENT C.B.A.

Meeting, Oddfellows' Hall, March 28; appointed the judges for the forthcoming shows. Next meeting April 25th when Mr. James Muir will judge a table show of British Birds. Members please bring your exhibits forward.—Walter Clarkson, Sec.

STANLEY (Victoria Club) F.F. AND C.B.S.

Meeting held April 19, Mr. R. Peart in chair, and a very large turn up of members. Mr. W. Reed, Sunderland, was elected to judge cage birds at annual show, December 5-6. Names were booked for our char-a-banc trip. We accepted Mr. Harrison's terms for the journey; twenty names were put down, and the first payment was taken. Next meeting, May 3, when all intending going will oblige by giving their names to Sec.—W. Elliott.

CINNAMON-MARKED Y.C.C.

The annual general meeting of the Cinn.-marked Yorkshire C.C. will be held May 2, at 6, at Market Tavern, Bradford, for the election of officers, alteration of rules, etc. Last year was not a success from an exhibiting point of view, and I would like a large meeting of members and intending members so that we may devise some means to ensure that special classes at shows where our patronage is given will be better filled. Any member unable to attend meeting writing me before May 2 I will lay same before members. Our year financially is all right, but there are some members' subs. yet outstanding. I would like to receive them before our meeting, and I shall have all ready for our auditors.—R. Garnett, Sec.

OLDHAM C.B.A.

Meeting March 10, decided to hold annual ramble May 31, to be to Mottram and Broadbottoms; also to have F.F. show June 20. Mr. Fred Steeple has been selected judge. At next meeting, April 28th, Mr. Steeple is giving a lecture on the bird room management. Decided to hold back end show November 14; Mr. R. Barrass will judge. I am hoping to have a good turn up at next meeting, to hear Mr. Steeple, as I think all fanciers will benefit by his remarks. All fanciers will be pleased to hear that our brother fancier, Mr. Herbert Walsden, is recovering from his recent illness; the sympathies of every one of our members have been with him, and we are wishing him a speedy recovery. Our sympathies are also extended to our brother fancier, Mr. W. Whyatt, also to Mrs. Whyatt, in their recent bereavement, the death of Mr. Lingard, Mrs. Whyatt's father, and the gentleman who has on one or two occasions granted our society the loan of plants for decorating.—James Lope, Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Meeting Maskell's Hotel. Mr. E. A. Allsopp presided; 18 present. Sec. reported he had booked Mr. J. Walsh (Blackburn) to judge British at the open show. Messrs. W. Chidgey and F. Hopson wrote resigning their membership through retiring from the Fancy for the time being. It was with regret that the society accepted the resignations, and trusted that the gentlemen would in the near future again take up their old love. Mr. E. J. Davies was elected press correspondent, it being felt that the sec. should have some help. The table show of British hardbills was a great success, some grand birds being staged. The chief winners were Messrs. J. Pearce and E. J. Davies, Mr. Pearce winning special for most points. Mr. H. C. Smith judged. We also had questions and answers in cage bird management. On the questions being read out it was the sweating hen and non-feeder that took pride of place; the cures suggested were many, and let me whisper that if any member is troubled with a sweating hen, Mr. Jim Pearce will be pleased to let him know how to cure it. Mr. H. C. Smith strongly recommended soaked hemp, also soaked rape for feeding young. As to unfertile eggs, Mr. Ted James put the fault on the breeders, saying they were at fault in putting hens up before they were ready. For green food some swore by dandelion leaves, chickweed, and lettuce; Mr. James recommends young turnip tops. On the question of which is the best method of using linseed with colour feed, the general opinion was freshly ground and mixed with the colour food. If any member fails to get the real fresh ground linseed, our chairman will be pleased to grind linseed for anyone who will send on to him. Resolved to elect judges for the young bird show at the next meeting. Mr. W. Peterson was elected as a member. We will deal with hall for open show at the next meeting, so please all make an effort to attend.—E. Thomas, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting, headquarters, April 11, Mr. Farrer presiding. Letter read from Mr. Crawhall, accepting the appointment to judge at open show, January 15 and 16. Messrs. J. Johnston and G. Wilson were also elected judges, which now completes our list. Decided to hold N.F. shows, June 6th, July 4 and August 1, and a medal (value 5s.) be provided by club for most points over the three shows. Entrance fee, 3d. per cage, each class, at each show, to stand on its own as regards prize-money. That there be one class for each variety, including British and Mules. Mr. Farrer was elected judge. Markers were elected: Messrs. Machin and Owen, for south side of the river, and Messrs. Proctor and Johnson for the north side. As it was getting late, it was decided to take the members' classification (open show) at next meeting.—John Peacock, Hon. Sec.

PARTICK AND DISTRICT C.B.C.

Meeting and British, Foreign, and Mule Show, Foresters' Hall, April 10, Mr. J. F. Park presiding over a grand turn-out. After the routine business was completed the show exercised the members' attention, and many anxious moments were in store for the younger members of the society. Mr. George Laurie made an auspicious beginning, having out a good team that was greatly admired, and we feel certain that this fancier will make things hum down Partick way in the near future, as he is a keen fancier of British and Mules, and just the man the society was greatly in need of. Mr. Fraser was again out with a great team, and some wonderful moulted specimens were staged by him; many were greatly taken with the tone of colour of some of his exhibits. Mr. Craig judged, and also promised to give a paper at next meeting, May 1, when a good turn-out of members is requested, and friends will also be made welcome.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules, and Hybrids—H. Norman. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

BAD LEGS (W. A.).—It is quite possible for the trouble to be rheumatism, but I think it far more likely to be an enlargement of the scales on the legs due to the bird's age. Try the following treatment for a fortnight or so, and if there is not a very considerable improvement in that time, write again and describe the appearance of the swelling as nearly as you can. Catch the bird gently and bathe the legs for a few minutes daily in a warm solution of extract of Wych Hazel—a small teaspoonful of the extract in a tea-saucerful of warm water. After bathing, dry carefully and slightly anoint them with zinc ointment. Do not leave any surplus grease about the legs for them to collect dirt from the cage floor. In the drinking water dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea every second day for a week.

LAYING ONE EGG (H.G.).—(1) I suspect the hen is a rather young one, in which case the laying of only one egg is of no importance. She will probably start nesting again in two or three weeks hence and produce a normal clutch of eggs. Leave the birds together, and in addition to the staple seed diet give a small teaspoonful of egg food with a third of a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and sesame mixed in it each day. Every second day give also a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, and millet, and on the alternate days a small growing stool of crisp young dandelion. Cut off the root just below the crown, clean off the soil, and give it to the birds as it has grown. Continue this feeding for two or three weeks, or until the hen has again gone to nest. (2) It certainly is not wise to mate father and daughter without any special object in doing so. At the same time, if the birds are robust and healthy, and not the progeny of similar close in-breeding, no harm is likely to result from a casual mating of this kind. But you must not in-breed again with the progeny of this pair in future seasons.

SWELLING ON BACK (F.C.).—It is not possible to be quite definite as to the exact nature of the swelling without seeing it. The older swelling is probably a caseous tumour which might have been removed by excision some time ago, but the recent "watery" blister is just as likely to be filled with air. Try the following for a fortnight, and if the bird is not considerably better in that time, write again, and I will advise you further. First carefully prick the swelling in the watery part with a clean needle; gently press out any contents, clean, and then anoint daily with lanocyllin until the place has healed. Give bird a morsel of bread and milk dusted over with soft sugar every second day, and on the alternate days a pinch of maw, and add a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea to the water. Give a fairly liberal supply of green food—dandelion, chickweed, flower buds of groundsel or watercress, for preference in the order named.

A VOICELESS ROLLER (T.B.).—You say the bird is "fairly healthy." If this means that it is not quite healthy, this may be the clue to the bird apparently singing to itself, but making no sound. See that it is not exposed to any cold draughts, or sudden and extreme changes of temperature. Keep in a comfortable place, well ventilated, but free from cutting draught, and fumes of burning lights in the evenings, and as equable as you can command. In addition to the usual seed diet, give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar every second day, and on the alternate days a morsel of banana and a pinch of maw seed. Continue this for a fortnight, and during the first week add to the water every second day a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a small pea, and ten drops of lemon juice, and in the next week substitute for this six drops each of glycerine and ipecacuanha wine, and four of sweet spirit of nitre every second day.

ROLLER GOING BALD (J. J. P.).—It is a very common defect and one that is most difficult to cure sometimes. To stand a fair chance of success treatment should coincide somewhat with the natural moulting season, and as you cannot treat the bird successfully whilst she is breeding, you had better let matters take their own course until the end of the breeding season. The defect will in no way interfere with her breeding successfully, nor with her capacity for rearing any young that may be hatched, but whether it is really desirable to breed with a bird having this defect, is a matter of opinion. Personally, I think not. Still, some birds troubled in this way make most excellent breeders. The only objection to them is the risk of the defect becoming hereditary in the young. Do not take more than two broods from her in any case, so as to leave her with plenty of reserve strength to go through a quick and healthy moult, and at the end of her breeding write again and repeat particulars, when I will advise you how to treat her during the moult.

NORWICH WITH DIARRHŒA (Novice).—See that cage floor and perches are kept as clean as possible, also all food and water vessels. Stop all green food until the looseness is cured. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. In addition to this, give separately, every second day, half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, and teazle, and a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and dusted with carbonate of bismuth. On the intervening days give a morsel of banana and a quarter-teaspoonful of maw. If the looseness is not stopped in the course of two or three days, add to the water, in addition to above treatment, six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of tincture of opium each day, and continue this until the necessary effect is obtained.

ABNORMAL LAYING (Novice). — Another "Novice." Querists should try to invent a more distinctive pseudonym. Leave the birds together and treat them for two or three weeks the same as advised to "Beeston" in this issue. If the hen does not go to nest again and produce a normal clutch in, say, from three to four weeks hence, write again and repeat particulars.

A BASHFUL SWAIN (Trepidus).—If the cock was in good song and active when you mated him I do not think you need worry. You may find things are all right at hatching time, notwithstanding his apparent laxity now, unless, as may be, you removed him to a much colder room when you mated him, in which case he may not be very reliable. But you give no information on this point. You also seem to be interfering with the cage too much since mating the birds. You should not do anything in the way of overhauling the cages after the birds are mated. To prevent mites becoming too troublesome now, touch the ends of the perches, joints of doors, etc., with carbolic fluid twice a week throughout the breeding season, but beyond this interfere with the cage as little as possible. In addition to the staple seed diet, give a teaspoonful of egg food with about half the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and sesame mixed in it every second and on the alternate days a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, and millet. Give three or four leaves of dandelion daily.

PROLAPSUS (F.H., Falkirk).—Separate the hen for a few weeks. It is doubtful if she will be of any more use for breeding this season. Keep in a moderate-sized cage at first, so that you can easily catch her. Bathe the protruding part with a lukewarm solution of Wych Hazel—a teaspoonful of the extract in a saucerful of warm water. After bathing a minute or two, dry gently, and carefully return the part, by "coaxing" it back into the correct position with the aid of a bone knitting-pin with a blunt end; then insert a tiny piece of gall ointment, which you will get from any chemist's. Repeat the whole operation as often as the protrusion returns. It may not return at all; but, on the other hand, it may return frequently, and finally prove fatal.

SHELL-LESS EGGS (Beeston).—It is owing to the oviduct being a little out of order, due sometimes to the hen being too fat. Certainly, it is worth while trying her again. Add a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a small pea, and ten drops of lemon juice, to the drinking water daily for a week, and for a fortnight afterwards add six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight, omitting, of course, the other items. Use a good-sized breeding cage that the hen may have a fair amount of exercise. Add a sprinkling of millet to the seed. Keep well supplied with cuttlefish, and also get a little old mortar, smash it up to a coarse powder, and mix it with the sand on the floor of the cage.

"It makes Bird Breeding Easy."

Compiled by G. E. WESTON.

Simplifies the operations in the Bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. It affords facilities for the recording of the complete pedigree of all your birds; of your experiences during the season; an account of every bird reared. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird and Show Registers of simple and unique character; Cash and Profit and Loss Accounts for the year. Gives valuable hints for times of emergency during the breeding season.

Give a fairly liberal supply of green food, but limit it to chickweed, flower buds of groundsel, or watercress. Treat thus until the hen has gone to nest again, when you may find this trouble is not repeated.

SIZE OF BREEDING CAGES (Inquisite).—(1) There is no necessity to fit the size of the breeding cages to the size of the birds, so to speak. Provided you allow a certain amount of space in which the birds can move about freely and get a fair amount of exercise together, you may, if you like, use the same size for all varieties. You may take a fair minimum size for a single breeder to be from 18 to 20 inches long, 16 inches high, and from 10 to 11 inches deep, that is from back to front. Double breeders the same height and depth, but twice the length. These cages may be used for either Borders, Norwich, or Yorkshires. In the case of the Yorkshire an extra inch or two of head room above the top perches may be allowed with advantage, but this may quite easily be arranged by having the cross-bars on which the top perches are rested a little lower than is the case for the other varieties, and thereby still adhere to the same size generally. (2) From December to the end of February is about the best time of year to buy fresh stock.

LAYING BROKEN EGG (C. Hutchings).—Unless the hen had received some rough and unskilful handling the night before laying, I should suspect that the lower part of the oviduct was in a badly inflamed condition and the egg very imperfectly shelled. I doubt whether she will be any use for further breeding this season. Keep her caged alone for the present, and give her a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea in the drinking water daily for three or four days. After this give instead six drops of tincture of opium every second day until the looseness is stopped. Add a morsel of bread and milk to the diet daily for a week or so. For green food give only flower-buds of groundsel, chickweed, or watercress. If she wants to go to nest again in three or four weeks hence, treat her, after mating, the same as you will see advised to several other querists in this issue for hens laying eggs without shells.

BREEDING ARRANGEMENTS (W. Nicholson).—(1) I take it that you do not purpose separating the young birds when ready to leave the parents into a flight cage, but to allow them to fly loose about the aviary, so that they might, if they wished, alight about the cages containing the breeding stock. If this is correct, there would certainly be a little risk of them disturbing any fickle breeding hen. But with hens in really good breeding condition and normal condition the risk would be scarcely worth considering. At the same time, to be quite on the safe side, it would be best to cage the young in a large flight until the end of the breeding season, when you might allow them all, old and young, to fly at liberty together. You might also reduce any risk of disturbance by covering that part of the cage fronts in front of the nests. (2) You certainly would not be successful with breeding several varieties all flying loose together, as they would not breed pure, but mix up and mate according to their own ideas, irrespective of type or variety.

YORKSHIRE COCK HOARSE (Novice).—Your feeding is not correct, and you may, in addition, be keeping the bird in an unsuitable place. See that it is not in a cold direct draught, nor near or over burning lights in the evenings, and do not hang it high up near the ceiling. Give as staple diet a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape only. In addition, give separately half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days, give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, black rape and teazle. Give two crisp young leaves of dandelion daily. In the drinking water add 12 drops of syrup of buckthorn for three consecutive days, and after this give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days during this period give 12 drops of glycerine, ten of lemon juice, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepennypiece. Allow bird to bathe daily if it likes.

DELAYED LAYING (Puzzled).—You should not jump to the conclusion that a hen is egg-bound and begin tampering with her because she does not happen to lay just when you think she should. There may be no such trouble whatever, and in that case your treatment can only be productive of mischief, as well as much pain and misery for the hen. As long as a hen remains in a fairly active condition, it is wholly unwarrantable to begin active measures to relieve supposed egg-binding. In your case I think it not unlikely that this hen has been absorbing too much of the plentiful supply of tit-bits, and is in consequence in a rather overfed condition, which tends to reduce the activity of the oviduct and cause delayed or even difficult laying. Should the hen become really ill and ordinary measures fail to relieve her, get a chemist to mix you a small quantity of glycerine and extract of helladonna—three parts of the former to two of the latter—and, after steaming in the usual way, smear the vent with this; give two drops of equal parts brandy and glycerine in the beak; add 20 drops of brandy to the drinking water; and keep bird in a small cage in a quite warm place for an hour or two until the egg has been laid.

LIZARDS AND ROLLER (E. M. T.).—(1) Thanks for your letter. Am glad to know the Lizards are now doing well. It is a pity you did not try to hand-rear the two young of the first brood, as this should have been a very simple matter when they had reached thirteen days old. You did quite right not to interfere at all with the hen when she appeared ill the night before she was expected to lay. It is time enough to lend assistance in this way when the time is overstepped if the hen is then in real difficulty. (2) I think you may safely venture on mating the pair of Rollers. It is not unlikely that the cock will breed successfully in spite of his silence.

AVIARY MATTERS (E. E. Taylor.)—(1) No, it is not permissible to keep more than one variety flying loose in an aviary if you wish to breed pure stock. If allowed to fly together, any matings you may have arranged yourself would be ignored, and the birds pair indiscriminately among themselves. (2) Yes, any one variety you may choose, but not more. (3) Three cocks would be sufficient in the circumstances for nine or ten hens. I would advise you to have clear yellow cocks and ticked or lightly marked hens, so that any two of different sexes might make a reasonable pair of matched birds. Plainhead Norwich would probably succeed best of those you name. (4) The proportion of roost and flight space will do very nicely. (5) If the birds are in good breeding condition; have not previously bred this season; and settle down to business quickly, it is quite possible you may get three broods from each hen, but in other circumstances, or if the birds are some time in beginning, you would be much wiser to be content with two broods per hen.

NORWICH HEN PANTING (A.E.).—I assume you have taken the necessary steps to remove all exciting causes of bronchial trouble as far as possible. If not, you must certainly do so before you can expect the hen to throw off the trouble. In addition to the seed diet, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry well mixed in it every second day for a fortnight or so. On the alternate days add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky, and five each of syrup of squills, syrup of tolu, and ipecacuanha wine. Shake well together. Give a leaf or two of crisp young dandelion each day, and, if you have any, a mealworm a day would be beneficial. If this does not bring about a very considerable improvement in two or three weeks, I fear the bird is too far gone to be done any material good, and I would strongly advise you not to breed with her.

A COUPLET (Aspirin).—(1) This bird is suffering from cataract, and nothing you can do will have the slightest effect upon it in a curative sense, so you may just as well cease worrying the bird with your well-meaning attentions to its eyes. You should not breed with it in circumstances, but it will live happily enough in its way if kept caged alone for its full natural term. (2) When the first hen has gone to nest and begun to sit, you may let the cock remain with the second hen constantly until she has begun to sit. Then remove him and keep him caged until the hens are ready to begin nesting for their second broods. Leave both the hens to sit and bring up the young by themselves without the assistance of the cock. Glad you find CAGE BIRDS so useful.

SWELLING NEAR EYE (Somerset).—If the swellings appear to have any "head," after bathing for a minute or two with the warm boracic lotion, carefully prick the head with a clean needle, gently press out the contents, cleanse the part with the boracic lotion, then dry, and anoint with Lanocyllin. Repeat the anointing daily for a week or so. If there appears no "head," instead of the above treatment touch the swellings daily for three days with a small camel-hair pencil dipped in tincture of iodine. Add a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea to the water every second day for a week, and give a fairly liberal supply of green food.

EGGS WITHOUT SHELLS (Novice).—When the hen is going to nest again, get a little old mortar from some building that is being demolished, smash it up to a coarse powder, and mix it freely with the sand on the floor of the cage. Also add a little millet seed to the seed mixture you use. You may, as you suggest, give a teaspoonful of lime water in the drinking water every second day whilst she is going to nest, even if she is still feeding young. But if she is not feeding young, give instead of this six drops of tincture of gentian, and three drops of tincture of steel every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give 20 drops of Chemical Food. Of course, you will still keep a regular supply of cuttlefish on hand in addition to the above.

STARTED MOULTING (R.W.K.).—There is just a chance of your snatching one or, perhaps, two nests from the birds this season, but they will be very late in beginning. See that they are in a comfortable position, free from cold draughts, sudden and extreme changes, or fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry, and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed, daily to each bird. Every second day give also a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts, hemp, millet, and teazle, and two leaves of dandelion. Dissolve half a drachm of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in an ounce of sherry, add a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give 20 drops of this mixture in the water two days in every three until the feathers cease dropping. You may just as well separate the birds whilst giving this treatment, and it will be useless mating them again until they are in perfect plumage.

MORE EGGS WITHOUT SHELLS (F.W.C.).—See reply to "Novice" for hen laying eggs without shells in this issue, and treat your hen the same until she has gone to nest. Possibly the Linnet is not quite ready for breeding. Still, you had better leave them together now. Add a small teaspoonful of egg-food to the dietary every second day, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, thistle, linseed, and teazle. Give a little dandelion, leaves and blossoms, each day.

A WRONG JUDGMENT (C. Quaile).—Seems to me you misjudge the cock in asking if you should replace him with another. It is the hen that is at fault through not being in breeding condition. A vigorous, lusty singing cock Canary that would drive her well might possibly incite her and bring her forward a little more quickly, but this would only happen if the hen is really in a quite normal condition save for being a little backward in breeding. Therefore, if you wish to breed Mules, you had better allow the birds to remain as they are, and await the result patiently. To help in bringing the hen forward, feed as advised to "An Anxious Beginner" in this issue, but omit the medicines in the water. She will probably show more interest in the nest shortly.

YORKSHIRE COUGHS AND SNEEZES (A.W.H.).—See that the bird is kept in a comfortable position, well ventilated, but free from cold draughts, fumes of burning lights, and dust, and do not hang it high up near the ceiling. Give the seed mixture twice a week only, and also the sponge cake, minus the sherry, twice a week. Instead of the medicine you are now giving, try the following for two or three weeks, or you may stop it sooner if the bird gets all right in less than that time. For the first three days add 12 drops of syrup og buckthorn to the water each day. After this give five drops each of syrup of tolu, tincture of lobelia, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirits of nitre every second day. If she does not quickly overcome this trouble it is not at all advisable to breed with her.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

LINNET AND CANARY (Charlie Evans).—Your birds are going on all right, and the hen is evidently ready to nest, and if she had a cock Canary with her would no doubt do so at once. Canary hens are generally a little later in breeding when they are paired to birds of another species. All you need do is to continue to feed them well and keep her supplied with nesting material. She will soon go to nest, and probably will have done so by the time this is in print.

ANOTHER LINNET AND CANARY (Glasgow).—You did not enclose your name and address; perhaps you will send us a postcard with it on. Kindly read our rules. You should have no trouble with your Linnet. He should breed all right and, according to your letter, I judge he is about fit now; also the hen, which is no doubt the cause of her plucking out some of her feathers. Hens frequently do this when they are anxious to nest. I would advise you to supply them at once with a nest pan and plenty of material to build with, when the hen will probably do so. You do not say in your letter if you have given them a nest pan and something to build with; if so, it is just possible that your material is too coarse, in which case supply her with some hair and short strands of cloth or linen. These you can pull to pieces and rub them in the hands until soft and woolly.

CONCERNING BLACKBIRDS (W. G. M.).—There is no best material for covering the bottom of a Blackbird's cage. I have used almost everything one can mention, but must say I like sifted peat mose as well as anything; it is absorbent and lasts a long time. Cocoanut fibre slightly damped is also much used. With this I like to mix a handful of builder's sand; it prevents the fibre being scattered. (2) Blackbirds have bred in captivity, and to be successful you will want to let them have the aviary to themselves. They are naturally somewhat pugnacious, particularly in the breeding season, and I fear it would be waste of time to attempt anything with them in with other birds. (3) The Pine Grosbeak is not recognised as a British bird, and can only be exhibited in the Continental classes.

MEALWORMS (Sands).—Do not disturb the worms. They will change into beetles when the weather is warmer. These will deposit eggs, and when this duty is done will die. You must then wait until the eggs have hatched. Keep your box warm, but do not rake about in it. It should need no fresh feeding material until the eggs have hatched and the worms commence to grow, and then only a handful or so of meal.

SHOW CAGE FOR NUTHATCH (W. Watson).—There is no accepted correct size of a cage for exhibiting a Nuthatch in. Most fanciers follow their own ideas. A very nice size would be one 16 inches high, 14 inches long, and 10 inches deep, with wire front. The inside should be painted French grey, and then lined with Virginia cork. This should fit tight so as not to allow any space between it and the back of the cage, or the bird will be difficult to find at the show. He will not need any other perch, unless you like to put one in the centre near the bottom of the cage. Paint the outside black. The food and water vessels should be placed inside on swing doors, as in other Softbill cages. (2) A box pattern cage, 14 inches by 12, 6 wide, would be large enough to exhibit a Wheatear in. Paint the outside black and the inside and front bars a rather dark green. The food and water inside.

CHAFFINCH SINGING (R. W. K.).—It appears to me that your bird is simply a bit backward in song. He requires a little extra good food and hanging out in the air for a few hours every day. You do not say how you are treating him, but he should have something besides the usual seeds. Give him a mealworm or two every day, varying them with small caterpillars, grubs, earwigs, green fly, etc.; in fact, offer almost any kind of live food. Instead of the green food, put a handful of turnip and radish seed into a shallow dish, and keep moist until they sprout, then cut out a piece and give him a good feed of hemp about twice a week, which would assist him. Let him bathe on fine days. With this treatment he should soon be in full song.

BREEDING GOLDFINCHES IN CAPTIVITY.—Goldfinches can be bred in captivity, and a spare room with a bush in it is just the place for them. By your letter it appears to me that your hen has a fancy for the wrong mate, in which case I would advise you to either change them or remove the Goldfinch and Canary to another room. British birds cannot be managed quite in the way we do Canaries. There must be perfect harmony between the pairs put up for breeding, otherwise the cock, in a fit of jealousy, might damage either eggs or young ones. Have the bush you intend them to breed in in a quiet corner of the room, and supply them with plenty of nesting material, such as moss, short lengths of hay, hair, and a little wool, and any vegetable down or fluffy material you can collect in the fields. Disturb them as little as possible. (2) Keep the Linnet and Canary hen together, and feed them well; they will go to nest as soon as they are ready. The beak of the Linnet should be dark slaty blue when quite fit.

CANARY AND BULLFINCH HEN (Bulldog).—There is no need to part your Canary and Bullfinch hen, as they appear so friendly together. If the hen has taken to him, part of your trouble is over. Feed on plenty of wild food. I am convinced that this is the secret of obtaining fertile eggs.

THRUSH MOULTING (E. Clarke).—I fear you have hardly attended to your Thrush as you should do, or he would not be moulting now. You have possibly left him in a draught or changed him too suddenly from a cold to a warm room, or vice versa. You do not say how you are feeding him, but as you have sent for our booklet on the Thrush, you will no doubt follow the directions given. Procure from the chemist an ounce of the crystals of citrate of iron with ammonia, and dissolve as much as will cover a sixpence in his drinking water. Let him have this fresh every other day for a fortnight. Feed him on good food, a few mealworms or beetles, and let him bathe frequently. Be careful to hang his cage out of a draught. Examine him and his cage for insects.

THE CROW FAMILY (Wonder).—The birds you mention belong to the same family, but are different species. The Raven is a large bird, about 24 inches in length, glossy black in plumage, with a very stout strong beak. It is mostly found in mountainous regions, and is becoming very rare. The Crow is smaller, generally about 18 inches in length. He is a black bird with greenish reflections. He has a rather stouter beak than the Rook, and the nostrils are covered with feathers. If you see one walking in the fields he has a curious habit of keeping his beak to the ground. These birds generally go in pairs. The Rook is seen in flocks, and an old bird has a bare beak and face; the black feathers have purplish reflections. (2) I cannot say positively, but should not think the Crow and Rook are protected birds in most counties. The Raven would be.

AVIARY MATTERS (Anxious).—I have carefully examined your sketch, and I do not think you are wise in proposing to divide your aviary. I think you would do better to have all the front wire, or, if it faces the quarter where the rough winds come from, you could board up about a foot of it. If you divide it as you propose, you simply reduce the size of your flight to 3ft. 6in., because the birds will seldom go into the darkened space. (2) Softbills are not very sociable birds, and will seldom live amicably together. You could try the birds you mention, but I am afraid you will have to remove the Blackbird and keep him in a cage. The others may do, and there would be nice room for them. In a small aviary it is rather difficult for a weak bird to get away from a stronger.

SEXING WAXWINGS (C. E. H.).—There is not very much difference in cock and hen Waxwings. The hen is scarcely so rich in colour, particularly in the wings, and the wax-like appendages seldom so numerous or fully developed. She has also a smaller crest. If you have several you should be able to sex them, comparing one with the other.

SEPARATING BREEDING PAIRS (Ignorant).—You should have taken out the cock bird when the hen had laid her third egg, and left her to bring up the young ones alone. You had better take him out at once, and watch if the hen goes back on the nest; if she does all will be well, but if she calls for him and neglects the eggs you must return him, and try again until she settles down. A good time to do it is just before they go to roost. If you leave him in and remove him when she has young ones she may neglect them.

LINNET AND CANARY (A Lover of Birds).—The trouble is that your birds are not yet fit. If yours is a double breeding cage, place a bird in each compartment and feed them well until they are both ready. The Linnet should be in full song, with a dark bluish-grey beak, he should sing at the hen and feed her through the bars. She should be full of life, flapping her wings and bouncing from perch to perch and calling to him. When they are in this condition put them together again and give nesting material.

GOLDFINCH-CANARY NOT SINGING (Anxious).—Your bird is all right, it is only the change of home that has knocked him off his song. Feed him well, let him have a bath, and hang him in a light position free from draughts. If you have red mite in a cage, give it a good scrubbing with Lifebuoy soap and water, and afterwards paint the cracks with either paraffin or turpentine in which has been mixed a few drops of creosote; half a spoonful to a pint of turps.

BIRDS IN AVIARY (Castle).—You would do better if you reduced your birds to the following: Two cock Goldfinches, 1 Redpoll, 1 Linnet, and with these turn in half-a-dozen Canary hens. Give them plenty of nesting places and material to build with. If you put in all the birds you mention I fear you will overcrowd and have a disappointing season.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

GREY PARROT (Fox).—Regret to hear there is no improvement; for the present stop the Dinneford's Magnesia and put daily in the drinking water half a teaspoonful of syrup of phosphates. Try it with a little boiled maize (this only keeps fresh one day). Prepare as follows: Boil a tablespoonful of maize till it is soft, but the grains should remain whole, pour off all water, and then soak into it 10 to 20 drops of cod-liver oil. Give the ordinary diet as usual. Continue to use the honey and borax as already advised. Now the weather is so much brighter, let the bird have the benefit of all the light and air possible, but do not leave it exposed to east winds and risk a chill. Except for the above modifications, continue the treatment already advised, and report again fourteen days hence, with full details.

BUDGERIGARS AND FINCHES (W.A.).—(1) There is ample room in your aviary for two more pairs of Budgerigars, but I much fear, as the Budgies become numerous, that the Finches will suffer, thus I think you would be wiser to put in only one additional pair, and part with the young birds, when able to fend for themselves. (2) I think it is only a case of patience, and that ultimately your hen will do the right thing. It would appear that she is rather young, and as she gets older she will settle down satisfactorily. The ceres of the yellow variety are not so dark as those of the green variety, but there is some variableness with the yellows, the ceres of many being a very dark cream colour, while others are almost as dark as the greens, and there are gradations between.

GREY PARROT WEAK (S. Walsh).—If you have not our Nut bell, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free from our Manager, it would be better for you to get it; it will tell you all about general management. In the present case, put five to ten drops of Cod-liver oil, twice daily, on to a piece of cake, biscuit, or crust, or anything similar the bird will eat, and put syrup of phosphates (half teaspoonful to the ounce of water) in the drinking water. Keep the bowels moving quite freely (not watery loose) by putting one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water, in lieu of the phosphates, as occasion requires. Give it all the light and air you can without subjecting it to draughts or easterly wind.

A FEATHER PLUCKER (A. Wilden).—I am afraid the case of a bird that has been pulling its feathers for nearly two years is almost hopeless. Again, you only give me the bare fact, no details. How can I help you? I can only say keep the bowels moving freely by occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, and at other times use syrup of phosphates in the drinking water (see quantities in other replies in this issue). Confine the diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, biscuit, crusts, plain cake, and green food; supply regularly grit, cuttlebone and pieces of wood and, of course, water. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, nor any kind of animal food whatever. Also give it all the light and air you can, but do not subject it to either draught or easterly winds. Now the weather is more genial, spray it once or twice weekly with a tepid quassia solution.

SIX QUERIES (Farrier).—(1) About 30 x 18 x 18 to 24 inches high; full particulars are given in the Budgerigar Nutshell. (2) A partition is not required. (3) Same as Budgerigar. (4) Budgerigars are free breeders, Lovebirds less so, but the Black-cheek Lovebirds is very free once it makes a start. (5) A large husk or small barrel, and you must supply pieces of thin bark, leaves, etc., as Lovebirds line their nest receptacle with such rubbish. Budgerigars require no nesting material. (6) Green Budgerigars, 6s. to 7s. 6d. pair, yellow do., 7s. 6d. to 10s.; Madagascar Lovebird, 2s. 6d. to 5s.; Red-faced Lovebird, about 63s.; Peach-faced Lovebird, £6 to £7 10s.; Black-cheeked Lovebird, 42s. to 55s., all per pair.

WHAT ARE THEY? (H.J.C.).—(1) They are Madagascar (Grey-headed) Lovebirds. (2) The bird with the grey head is the cock, the other (practically all green) is the hen. (3) They will require a large husk, log, or barrel; and you must supply either a natural live branch with leaves on for them to cut up to their liking, or you must supply pieces of thin bark, leaves, etc., as they line their nest receptacle with such rubbish. (4) Canary, white and spray millet, a few whole and crushed oats, green food, ripe fruit, if they care for it; also grit, cuttlebone, and water. As a rule this species are very wild till they become accustomed to you and their cage or aviary. Avoid approaching them suddenly or hastily, or you may lose them in a fit.

BUDGERIGARS (A Beginner).—I can only advise patience. The birds are evidently not yet in breeding condition, and a single pair in a cage take longer to settle down to nesting than do several pairs in an aviary, but they will ultimately do so. Give them as much flowering and seeding grass as they will eat. As regards the cere, this does not rule so dark in the yellow variety as in the green, some hens being dark brown, others a sort of dark cream colour, and then others which come between the two extremes. Foreign birds are not like Canaries, and do not settle down to breeding as soon as they are put up for this purpose, often trying one's patience sadly before doing so. Though many breed in cages, there is always an element of uncertainty about it, which only gives zest to the pursuit of foreign bird keeping; that which is "as easy as shelling peas" soon becomes monotonous and uninteresting.

AVIARY BIRDS (T. T. Baines).—Your query mostly refers to British birds, which will have been answered by Mr. Norman in his column. Cutthroats like a few insects when rearing young, but if your aviary contains growing trees and bushes they should capture a good many for themselves. You can help them by supplying live ants' eggs, caterpillars, gentles (these must be well cleaned—that is, white right through). For the Waxbills, supply millet sprays ad lib when there are young hatched out; they will catch many flies and help themselves to the live food supplied for the other species. Flowering and seeding grass, when obtainable, is the green food most favoured by foreign species, and British species are also very keen after it.

GREEN PARROT (Billie).—Many Parrots do this; if it had a mate they would feed each other with the regurgitated food. Give it a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water once a week, so long as the voidings are not watery loose. Also half a teaspoonful of syrup of phosphates in the drinking water, say twice a week, will be beneficial. As regards a book on Parrots, you cannot do better than get our Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," as the same treatment will answer for your bird perfectly, if you double the proportions of canary and white millet in the seed mixture given in the booklet. In all other respects the treatment is similar. Our manager will send you the booklet, 2½d. post free.

HOW MANY (E. Tewthwaite).—It is only really a large cage. You ought not to put in more than four pairs the size of Budgerigars. Will you not find their chattering rather a nuisance in a parlour? The following would agree with Budgerigars: Madagascar Lovebirds (about 5s.), Red-headed Lovebirds (63s.), Black-cheeked Lovebirds (about 50s.), and Blue-winged Lovebirds (10s. 6d. to 21s.), also Canary-winged, Tovi, and Tui Parrakeets (40s. to 60s.), all per pair, but you must not exceed the four pairs, as this will tax your accommodation to the utmost. In such an aviary-cage you must not mix Parrakeets with Finches, etc., and if you decide to have the latter please repeat query.

AUSTRALIAN PARRAKEET (E. Hackett).—The species of Australian Parrakeets are almost legion. You do not say what kind yours are; how can I help you? Parrakeets, with only one or two exceptions, use no nesting material, but deposit their eggs on the bare wood of the nest cavity. For a nest receptacle, a hollow log, box with concave bottom, or a small barrel will meet their requirements. For the seed-eating species a diet of canary, white millet, oats, and a little hemp and a few sunflower seeds, with greenfood, fruit if they care for it, will about meet their need. Of course, you must supply the ordinary essentials, grit, cuttlebone, and water. I cannot help you further till I know what kind of Parrakeets yours are. If you do not know this, describe their size and plumage.

YOUNG GREY PARROTS (A.T.S.).—The time is very variable, but these are always a very precarious purchase, and I should only buy between May and September. It is usually during these months that the supply is greatest. When you get one, you must ascertain how it has been fed, and continue this for a time, gradually bringing it on to the adult diet. You will find all details as to how to treat, etc., in our Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free, from our Manager.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Manchester Reader.—The cutting is not suitable for reproduction in our own columns, but we have handed it over to the Editor of the "Poultry World."

W. Pratt.—We have dealt with this idea before.

W. P. Montgomery.—The wing is that of a Bramblefinch; a hen, we should say.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

HOPE, GT. BRIDGE STREET, WEST BROMWICH.

BUDGERIGAR BREEDERS

Don't forget; best hatching results are only obtained when using my "Improved Secure" cocoanut husk nests, which have withstood all competition for over 25 years. I originated husk nests and, although imitated, nothing has yet equalled them for successful breeding results. Don't be misled; cheap, clumsily-made substitutes which fall to pieces when in use are dear at any price, causing losses and disappointing failures. Having bred thousands of Budgerigars I know their requirements. Am not a dealer and don't keep a bird shop. Parks, Zoos, and trade supplied, 4/6 dozen; smaller quantities 5d. each. Note changed address; larger premises: Harper, 26, New-st., Dudley. (1537)

AVICULTURAL SOCIETY

Those who are interested in British and foreign birds in freedom and captivity are invited to send in their names, with references, to be proposed as members of this society, whose monthly magazine has been published since 1894, with articles by all the best known and leading avieulturists, beautiful coloured plates and black and white illustrations, portraying birds of many species. Dr. Butler, the Marquis of Tavistock, Mr. St. Quintin, Mr. A. Trevor-Battye, Miss R. Alderson, Mr. Teschemaker, Mr. Seth-Smith, and others are constant contributors. Nearly 420 members, including aviculturists in the United States, Australia, and Africa, etc. Editor, Hubert D. Astley, Esq., Brinsop Court, Hereford, to whom communications should be addressed.

BUDGERIGARS

500 finest adult green Budgerigars, show plumage, 5/9 pair; hens, 3/3 each; yellows, 7/9 pair; hens, 4/3 each; all Budgerigars on seven days' approval, our risk: G. Chapman, High-st., Birmingham. (1563)

These are some of the Contents:

SEEDS AND THEIR USES.
By W. Hobden. A most interesting article on the food values and properties of the various seeds used by bird-keepers, giving also the different birds the various seeds are suitable for.

HOW TO PROFITABLY BREED BUDGERIGARS.
By W. H. Gibb. The breeding of Budgerigars is one of the most interesting phases of Foreign bird-keeping. In this article Mr. Gibb gives a full description of the methods he has found most successful in housing, feeding, and breeding these charming little Parrakeets.

SOME SIMPLE METHODS OF BIRD-CATCHING.
By J. W. Steel. A soundly-instructive article, giving some simple methods of catching the various British birds. It also tells how to make birdlime, and the uses and abuses of this material; in fact, is a complete guide to the art of bird-catching.

MISTAKES BIRD-KEEPERS MUST AVOID.
By Claude St. John. Mr. St. John's thoroughness in answering queries on the subject of Canary breeding is well known to the majority of our readers. This article, written in the author's best vein, gives in detail mistakes in bird breeding which must be avoided by all who would make the greatest success of their hobby.

STARTING A COLLECTION OF CHEAP AND BEAUTIFUL FOREIGN BIRDS.
By F. Meakin. This is a very helpful article for those who are thinking of taking up the keeping of Foreign birds. It describes the most suitable cages and their fittings, the various commonly kept Foreign birds, their average price, feeding, and management, etc.

A REVIEW OF THE 1913-14 SEASON.

HYBRID BREEDING IN OUTDOOR CAGES. By G. R. Pippet.
A HANDY GUIDE TO BIRD MEDICINES, AND THEIR USES.
THE SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT OF BRITISH BIRDS. By F. Terry.
A YEAR WITH THE WILD BIRDS. By H. Norman.
MY METHOD OF BREEDING CANARIES. By E. T. Sheppard.
Etc., Etc.

No matter what variety of birds you keep, whether novice or old hand, there is information in this bird-keeper's encyclopædia of the greatest use to you. Each article is written by an expert, and in their experiences of failures and successes you will find the way to the top of the ladder.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

Kirkby-in-Ashfield.
I say with the best of confidence that Trower's Egbisco is the best of food I have ever used rearing Canaries. Give it a trial, fellow-fanciers. C. Brown & Son.

St. Neots.
Bird Seed arrived this morning; the quality is splendid. Thanking you for bird-keeper's quick and prompt attention. A. B.

Warwick.
I thought I would like to tell you that my Blackcaps and Larks have done well on your Cecto, and sing much earlier than when fed on other foods. I like your seed for Finches. S. B.

Alexandria, Egypt.
Miss Butler is much obliged for the books received in excellent condition.

Rhondda Valley.
I used your Egbisco last year with great success. E. M. L.

Musselburgh, N.B.
Seed arrived in good condition; very pleased with same. H. T.

Toddington.
We were very pleased with the seed received from you, and hope to place another seed order with you soon. C. B.

St. Alban's.
I have been advised to put my Thrush in a show; he is a speaking advertisement for your food. R. A. A.

Tottenham.
I write to tell you how pleased I am with Egbisco, and consider it a grand food for Canaries. W. H.

Leadgate.
I bought a tin of your Egbisco when at Newcastle a month ago, and I may say I have had good results.

Haydod.
Would you please forward me 1lb. Cecto. It might interest you to know that I have hand-reared eleven young birds with your valuableCecto mixed with mealworms. The birds are four Blackcaps, three Pied Wagtails, two Yellow Wagtails, two Whitethroats. J. S.

Worthing.
Kindly send me by reutrn of post invoice for 7lb. bag of Egbisco. I have used it for two years for my Crests, and find it first class. I use no eggs.
T. Gale, C.C.C.

Astley.
I have received the seed you sent me. I am greatly pleased with it, especially the Canary, which is fine. F. C.

Limpsfield.
Please send 2lb. Softbili. I might just mention my little Lark has thrived well on your food. R. O.

Colchester.
Please forward two at 6d. Egbisco, one at 3d. All my customers are doing wonderfully well, better than those that are hanging on the old-fashioned egg and biscuit or rice. The hens feed better and the young ones digest it easier and grow faster. I saw a week-old on Egbisco as big as others at fourteen days on egg and biscuit from just as good parents.
R. J. W.

Astley.
Seed arrived all right, and I am quite pleased with it.
J. C.

Broadstairs.
I am well pleased with your seeds and food. I cannot speak too highly of your Softbilo. I have recommended all your foods to my friends in Broadstairs, Ramsgate, and Margate. E. H.

Torquay.
Please accept my best thanks for the beautiful seed you sent me.
M. H. A.

Pendlebury.
I have never found anything better than your Cecto for Larks, Waxwings, and Nightingales. It keeps them in the pink of condition. W. L.

Midhurst.
I promised to call again at your stall at Palace Show. I am very pleased with the things I purchased from you.

LOST VITALITY RESTORED

The greatest food for your hens when run down; it restores them to wonderful breeding conditiou; hens, which have hitherto been bad feeders, after having "Phosto" will feed and bring up their young in an almost surprising manner; young birds fed on "Phosto" have health and size, full of vigour, and will leave the nest in a wonderful condition. The proof of these statements can be tried for a small outlay. Once you try "Phosto" you will never be without it. Prices, in tins, 1/-, 2/6, and 4/6. Use DITCHFIELD'S Famous Bird Medicines as supplied to the London Zoo.

Ditchfield's Gird Medicines have been used for over six years by most leading fanciers, and have been proved to be the most reliable. We have over 2,000 testimonials, and are receiving letters every day from fanciers, telling us of the marvellous results of our Bird Medicines. See below.

SPECIAL OFFER.—If you have any birds you are relying upon for the breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, we guarantee you a perfect cure. We have the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing birds into breeding condition. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, not singing, going light, egg binding, feather plucking, and inflamation of the bowels. In 7d. and (treble size) bottles 1/1. Special size, 2/-. This medicine is invaluable for young birds just getting on hard seed.

Mr. Hatton, Atherton, writes:—"Your medicine for soft moult is excellent stuff; it has cured my four birds; they are now in full song." Mr. Fletcher, Chademoor: "Have used your tonic drops for 18 months, and they have never failed to do as advertised." Mr. Harris, Dorchester: "The effect of your tonic drops is marvellous." Mr. W. Reid, Grecnock: "Your medicines has beeu a great success, for both my birds are now singing. Mr. Sammons, Southend-on-Sea: "You have got a genuine remedy, which no fancier should be without." Mr. Roberts, Gayswater: "Your medicine for egg-binding is marvellous stuff." Mr. A. J. Gamble, Royston: "I find your tonic drops the most reliable medicine I have ever used." Mrs. Warren Vernon, Lamanecha: "I have reared many birds this season through having your tonic drops at hand."

Over 1,500 Birds in Stock.

Now is the Time to secure exceptional value in all varieties of Canaries. I have over 1,500 birds in stock, every one of which I guarantee to be untried and ready for immediate Breeding. I am offering EXCEPTIONAL BARGAINS in Songsters, Stock Birds, and Matched Breeding Pairs. My stock must be considerably reduced during the next few weeks to make room for this season's youngsters. As regards the quality of my stock, they have made a firm reputation during the last few years, and it is sufficient to state that during the 1914 show season, just ended, they won over 450 prizes at open champion shows in hottest open competition. In addition to this, I supplied a large number of birds that won for my clients all over the Kingdom. Letters proving this are filed here for the inspection of my numerous visitors.

If you require a real good stock bird (cock or hen), or a first-class songster, in any of the varieties named below, let me send them on approval. I am so confident I can please you that I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the Kingdom at my sole risk, on ten days' approval.

Kindly note the following prices, but remember it is not only the price you pay, but the value you get that is important. The birds I am now sending out are worth much more than the prices charged, as you will agree if you accept my offer.

2,000 BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIRDS

in stock. Beautiful Green Budgerigars, 6/- pair; yellows, 8/- pair; Bramblefinches and Greenfinches, 2/- pair; extra large muling Linnets, guaranteed to Mule and in full song, real beauties, 2/6, 3/6, and 5/-; Linnets from the same place as the champion of the world, 1/6 and 2/-, singing hard; one of these birds have been lately sold for £5—it was bought off me at my stall in the Leeds Bird Market. Linnets taught by the champion Linnet of the world, will sing anywhere, indoors or out, with new cage and a packet of special singing mixture, 3/6; and a few champions, with quality notes, right for contest singing or catching, 5/-. I challenge the world with this class of bird. Larks, singing daylight and gaslight, as straight as arrows, and as steady as rocks, perfect in feather, they are singing with full voice, 2/- and 2/6; a few hand-reared ones, will sing anywhere indoors or out, 4/6, and one, a real champion, right for contest singing, with quality notes, a treat to hear, 6/-, he is a topper, with new cage 1/6 extra. Muling pairs, and can be seen, building their nests; Linnet and Canary, 5/-; Greenfinch and Canary, 4/-; Redpoll and Canary, 4/-; splendid cock Goldfinch, with beautiful blaze, with hen Canary, 7/6; beautiful cock Siskin Mules, Goldfinch Mules, Linnet Mules, Greenfinch Mules, 10/6, 12/6, and 15/-. These birds can win at any show; they are the right sort, and they are constantly singing all the day through; they are all good birds. Pure Seifert Roller hen Canaries, the real blood, 3/6 and 5/-; beautiful Yorkshire Canaries, 15/- a pair; beautiful Norwich, large birds, 15/- a pair; they are grand birds, and they are winners at open shows. The best Birdlime in England, 1/8 a pound; if you find better throw mine away and I will return your money. The original Linnet whistle, 6d. each. My book of secrets, 1/-; it tells you how to make Nightingales sing, Siberian Goldfinches, and English Peartree Goldfinches, how to make Larks, Thrushes, Blackbirds sing in five days, how to make Linnets sing with their wings down at one another, how to train them for contests, how to moult them, the cause of soft moult, and the only cure and the proper food for each bird I have mentioned, and the proper rules under which the champion Linnet of the world won all his prizes. It saves thousands of birds from dying. It is acknowledged to be the best book published of its kind. Will be sent by return of post for 1/-. 2,000 birds in stock. Postcard before birds. Testimonials every post. Only honest dealing done with me: Harry Allen, The Real British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds. (1544)

THESE ARE SOME OF THE CONTENTS:—

SEEDS AND THEIR USES.
By W. Hobden. A most interesting article on the food values and properties of the various seeds used by bird-keepers, giving also the different birds the various seeds are suitable for.

HOW TO PROFITABLY BREED BUDGERIGARS.
By W. H. Gibb. The breeding of Budgerigars is one of the most interesting phases of Foreign bird-keeping. In this article Mr. Gibb gives a full description of the methods he has found most successful in housing, feeding, and breeding these charming little Parrakeets.

SOME SIMPLE METHODS OF BIRD-CATCHING.
By J. W. Steel. A soundly-instructive article, giving some simple methods of catching the various British birds. It also tells how to make birdlime, and the uses and abuses of this material; in fact, is a complete guide to the art of bird-catching.

MISTAKES BIRD-KEEPERS MUST AVOID.
By Claude St. John. Mr. St. John's thoroughness in answering queries on the subject of Canary breeding is well known to the majority of our readers. This article, written in the author's best vein, gives in detail mistakes in bird breeding which must be avoided by all who would make the greatest success of their hobby.

STARTING A COLLECTION OF CHEAP AND BEAUTIFUL FOREIGN BIRDS.
By F. Meakin. This is a very helpful article for those who are thinking of taking up the keeping of Foreign birds. It describes the most suitable cages and their fittings, the various commonly kept Foreign birds, their average price, feeding, and management, etc.

A REVIEW OF THE 1913-14 SEASON.
With Names of Principal Winners, Norwich Plainheads, Yorkshires, Greens, Cinnamons, Rollers, Whites, Border Fancies, Crests, Lancashires, and Lizards, Scotch Fancies and Belgians, Dutch Frills, Hybrids and British Birds, Foreign Birds.

Have you heard one of my BANDMASTERS?

The following is a fair sample of the numerous letters I am receiving every day from satisfied clients: "Castlewellan, Co. Down, April 18/14. You will be pleased to hear the bird arrived here quite safe on Thursday. He is in splendid health and singing beautifully. The Station Master and clerks had quite a delightful time with the wonderful little bird, which entertained them from 1 o'clock till 3.30, when I called for same. I have had a good number during the last 4 years, but your bird is without doubt the best I have ever heard. -J. Harland to Joe Thomas." Large numbers of recent letters similar in tone to above are filed here for the inspection of my visitors.

I have now in stock nearly 300 cocks in full rolling song, with many changes of tours. They have been imported by me direct from the rooms of some of the best breeders in Germany. They have not been picked over, and include some exceedingly good birds that will give satisfaction anywhere. Kindly note the following prices:- Cocks, specially trained and in full rolling song, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Pure Seifert Hens, guaranteed from same pure strain, 3/6, 4/-, 5/- each. I have also a few very good hens, B.R.C.C. rung, and bred from the best winning strains, at 7/6 and 10/- each. I invite any fancier requiring Rollers to come and hear them sing and make his own selection. To those unable to come, I am prepared to send one or more birds on 10 days' approval to any address in the kingdom, at my sole risk. I guarantee absolute satisfaction to everyone, or cash returned in full.

If you wish to insure success during the coming breeding season, you must obtain a copy of

CHARLES HOULTON'S FAMOUS WORK,

'CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS'

Edited by G. E. WESTON and C. A. HOUSE.

Proceed on the lines laid down in this wonderful work and SUCCESS MUST FOLLOW.

By detailed stages the book leads you from the beginning of this fascinating hobby to a successful issue. First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed: nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg-binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

CONTAINS 16 COLOURED PLATES

BIRTLEY, CHESTER-LE-STREET AND PELTON FELL (Amalg.)

Meeting Ap. 25, Mr. Forster chair, before a good turnout of members. The first business was the feather show schedule. Classification as for last N.F.S. was adopted. Letters read from judges chosen accepting their respective engagements. Mr. Forster put a good idea before the meeting, which seems to give everyone an equal chance, namely that prizes for closed rings for most points gained by three nominated birds be competed for at the three annual shows. This idea was adopted by the meeting. Election of officers for Pelton Fell resulted as follows:—Sec., Mr. J. Robinson, No. 1, Lonsdale Street, Newfield S.O.; chair, Mr. J. Stanger; treas., Mr. I. Redpath.

Besides the rules, it contains a list of officers and committee, the syllabus for 1914, classification for the table shows, N.F. and members' shows, and a list of members' names and addresses. The society is open to a twenty miles radius.

OBITUARY.

Mr. John Lewsnap.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. J. Rukin, I have to write to tell you that one more good fancier has passed away. This is Mr. John Dewsnap, the well known Lizard breeder and exhibitor, who died on April 22, at the age of sixty years. He will indeed be missed wherever the Lizard Canary is known. I know I am voicing the sentiments of all fanciers in tendering to his sorrowing widow our earnest expression of sympathy in her bereavement. Mr. Dewsnap was interred at the Charlesworth Independent Congregational Chapel on April 25, a large number of friends and relatives being present, amongst whom Messrs. Bradley (New Mills), Hambleton, E. Fuller and Ollerenshaw (Glossop), along with myself attended to pay our last respects to our fancier friend. May he rest lightly is the wish of those who knew him.

We are holding an open show Oct. 10, writes Mr. N. L. Croft, hon. sec. Crewe O.S. Mr. C. Houlton is to judge. Will secretaries please note, to avoid clashing, and will fanciers please support us in this our first venture for some years.

Mr. Wm. Wilson, the well known Glasgow naturalist, is removing from 247, Argyle Street to larger and more commodious premises at No. 233. Fanciers in Glasgow, and visitors to the city should give Mr. Wilson a call. Cage Birds' "Nutshells," and all books and literature published by us are obtainable from Mr. Wilson.

The Committee of the Wimbledon and Dis. C.B.S. have arranged a very interesting and instructive evening for bird lovers, writes Mr. G. Griffith, the hon. sec., at their meeting on Monday next, May 4, at 8 p.m., at headquarters, 6, The Broadway, Wimbledon, when Mr. C. E. Weston, the well known authority, has kindly consented to have a "Chat" with the members, his subject being "Some Point about Bird Keeping and Mule Breeding." Fanciers who have not heard Mr. Weston are advised to take advantage of this opportunity. The club room is easy of access, trams and buses passing the door, and it is opposite the railway station (L. and S.W.R., Brighton and District lines). Visitors heartily welcomed.

The show of the Llanelly C.B.S. has been fixed for January 12 next. Mr. H. Norman will judge British, Foreign and Mules, and Mr. J. Robson the Canaries.

In proof of the statement made in his advertisement of Norwich Plainheads this week, Mr. W. Rudd, of Norwich, has sent for our inspection the prize-cards won by the birds in question.

We understand from Mr. Allen Silver, sec., that Major Boyd R. Horsbrugh has accepted the presidency of the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League, to which he was unanimously elected, and that the League has a very progressive programme in view.

From Mr. W. Rudd, the celebrated bird specialist, of Norwich, come samples of his 1914 colour feeds. Mr. Rudd rightly lays stress on the fact that these are sold quite pure, as received from Spain, containing no added sugar or oil to deepen the colour and increase the weight. The "Excelsior AI Red Feed" is excellent, hot as fire in colour, and beautifully ground, while the "Excelsior Yellow Feed" cannot be beaten by anyone needing a yellow blend. Mr. Rudd also puts up a very convenient and good mixture of egg and colour foods, ready for use (called "Orange Blossom" feed), and this is sure to be widely appreciated. Mr. Rudd's "Eggertine" food (a fine combination of ground biscuit and fresh egg) we can also highly recommend. It is unquestionably one of the best on the market, and will rear young from the shell, while for birds out of condition, or as a change of diet, it is invaluable.

TO READERS ALL.

Full Eggs, Full Nests and Full Pockets are the worst we wish you.

Surely the Limit!

A Robin's nest containing three eggs has been found in an oil stove in the scullery at Lindsay House, Bishop Stortford, the residence of Mr Percy Hay.

Moscow's "House of Song."

Called a "house of song," a large birdcage, to contain specimens of the birds of the district, is to be erected in a public square at Moscow.

The Epping Forest 'Gales.

We hear that the Nightingales have been later than usual in filling the glades of Epping Forest with their melody, but they may now be heard singing in the Loughton and Chingford districts.

Country Rambles

The following rambles have been arranged: Border City (Carlisle) O.S., May 3; meet Post Office 9.30; West Bromwich C.B.S., May 10, to Clent Hills, etc.; meet 8.30 a.m., King's Head, Hagley Road.

"A Wail from Aintree."

We have received a letter, signed "Yorkshireman," concerning the above controversy, but as it is made up practically entirely of insinuations against, and abuse for, other fanciers, we cannot publish it. The correspondence is now closed.

The Patronage of Specialist Clubs.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following clubs should apply to the respective secs., stating date of show, number of classes, and judges: Northern Border and S.F.C.C., M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle; Midland Counties Y.C.C., W. Wells, Helmside, Erdington, Birmingham; Norwich P.H.C., F. Cunliffe, 19, Lark Street, Burnley; Northern C.C., Geo. Dobson, 103, James Street, Blaydon-on-Tyne; Northern Norwich P.H.C., F. W. Laidlow, 55, Colston Street, Benwell, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Yorkshire C.C., J. Greaves, 279, Hollings Road, Bradford, closing date May 9; Foreign Bird Club, A. Silver, 303, Streatham High Road, London, S.W., closing date May 20; Yorks and Lancs. British Bird and M.C., T. H. Inman, Thornbury, Bradford; Northern Y.C.C., R Tindale, 6, Gill Street, Benwell, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Hospital Egg Week.

May 12th to May 19th are the dates fixed for The Poultry World's Hospital Egg Week. Last year over 27,000 new laid eggs were collected by poultry keepers and distributed amongst the inmates of the Metropolitan Hospitals, and this year it is hoped that the grand total of 30,000 eggs will be reached. As last year, egg collectors have been appointed in the various large centres, and eggs received by them will be forwarded direct to the offices of our sister paper The Poultry World. A full list of the egg collecting depots will appear each week in that journal till Hospital Egg Week. We shall be pleased if any reader of Cage Birds who can act as an egg-collector or promise a number of eggs no matter how small will write Editor "P.W.," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will send full particulars of the scheme on application.

PRIZES FOR NEW VARIETIES

And the Breeding of British and Foreign Birds.

"Cage Birds" desires to stimulate the production of new varieties of Canaries, Mules and Hybrids, and the breeding of all kinds of birds in Cages and in Aviaries.

Is it true that bird breeders are not progressive are lacking in initiative? We heard this view expressed by a well-known fancier not so many days ago. He had nothing to say against the enthusiasm of the bird keepers of to day, readily admitting that the vitality of the hobby was undeniable, that never before had the love of bird-keeping been so wide spread, so general amongst people in every walk of life.

But he held that in one respect at least bird keepers were not making the best use of their birds. He referred to the breeding of them. Canary fanciers in particular were apply "resting on their oars." Notwithstanding the plastic material they had at hand, they were content to jog along with the few present-day varieties, making no serious attempt to evolve new and attractive forms of their little pets. How badly they compared in this respect with fanciers of pigeons and poultry. And this lack of initiative—this tendency to concentrate on two or three varieties only—was not good for the Canary Fancy and did not make for progression.

Well, we think there is a good deal of truth underlying the above remarks. We would extend their scope to cover breeders of Mules and Hybrids, and, most strongly of all, keepers of British birds. It is quite time, surely, that cage-bred strains of many of our native Finches, and even insectivorous species, became an accomplished fact; that this should come to pass may be, indeed, of great importance to the future of this branch of our hobby.

To encourage all readers to try what they can do in the matter of evolving new varieties of the Canary, of producing new kinds of Mules and Hybrids, and breaking fresh ground in the breeding of British and Foreign birds in cages and aviaries, Cage Birds is adopting the scheme outlined below which we hope will commend itself to, and stimulate into action, every bird-keeper who can possibly join in it. Next week we shall deal with some of the openings that present themselves for breeders to take advantage of in the four sections.

Cage Birds suitable and valuable mementos are offered to any breeder who succeeds in

(1) Producing and rearing any new variety of Canary, bred in either cage or aviary.

(2) Producing and rearing any new variety of Mule or Hybrid, bred in either cage or aviary.

(3) Breeding and rearing in a cage any species of British or Foreign bird which has not previously been so bred.

(4) Breeding and rearing in an aviary, any species of British or Foreign bird which has not previously been so bred.

The mementoes we offer take two forms:

(1) A large suitably-inscribed silver medal in case.

(2) A hand-coloured certificate, suitable for framing.

The choice will rest with the successful breeder.

Cash Prizes for the Best Written Accounts.

In addition to the medals and certificates, we shall award to the sender of the best written essay in each of Sections 1, 2, and 4, that is, three guineas in all. In Section 3 the sender of the best written essay will receive

A Cash Prize of £1 1s.

A Cash Prize of £2 2s.

This prize is generously offered by that steemed aviculturist, Mr. W. E. Teschemaker, who takes a special interest in the fostering of the breeding of British and Foreign birds in cages. Mr. Teschemaker asks us to mention that it was Mrs. Warren Vernon, one of our most skilful and enthusiastic lady aviculturists, who suggested to him the excellent idea of rewarding, in the manner of our scheme, this section in some special manner.

Rule 6, of course, applies also to the awarding of all essay prizes, to compete for which the essays must be of not less than 1,000 words in length. In fact, the explicitness and helpfulness of the details given will be the chief features taken into consideration when making the awards.

The Governing Conditions.

(1) Claims for Cage Birds Breeders' Prizes must be lodged with Editor within ten days of the young birds being hatched; and an independent witness skilled with birds shall certify to having seen the young in the nest or with the parents.

(2) All young, excepting only Canaries and Mules and Hybrids, must be entirely reared by their own parents, hand rearing not being permissible.

(3) To qualify for Cage Birds Breeders' Prizes the young of Hardbills and Softbills must live for at least three weeks after leaving the nest, young Quails six weeks, and the young Canaries or young Mules or Hybrids until after their first moult. By "young" is meant one, or more.

(4) Our definition of a cage is: A cage to come within the scope of Section 3 must be one that can be easily moved, without being taken to pieces, from place to place by one person.

(5) Written accounts of the breeding, for publication in Cage Birds, must be lodged with us within four weeks (28 days) from the date the young birds leave the nest.

(6) The decision of the Editor of Cage Birds will be final and binding in every case and he shall have the right to call together a committee of expert bird keepers if need be to assist him in coming to the said decision.

With regard to the Quails, a number of species are popular as aviary inmates, but many bird-lovers may not be aware that the smaller species also make wonderfully good cage birds, and there is no doubt they could be bred in a cage without much difficulty.

We have not debarred hand-feeding in the case of Canaries and Mules and Hybrids, as we are aware that some fanciers believe in making a practice of this, or of indulging in it to a more or less limited extent, and we have no desire to put any undue difficulty in the way of the winning of our prizes. It should be remembered, however, that some hen British birds will rear their own young quite well in captivity. Notable instances are the Greenfinch, Redpoll, Linnet, and Siskin; in the aviaries of Mr. Teschemaker last summer a hen Bramblefinch, too, fully reared five youngsters from five eggs.

We realise that in a scheme of this comprehensive nature the details are bound to be open to individual differences of opinion, and we shall be delighted to hear the views of our readers, whether critical or commendatory, and, needless to add, to act upon any that seem to us to make for the betterment of our project.

TIMELY HINTS.

Winner of Half-Crown Cash Prize.

Before pulling the heads with the fluff on, light a match (or a piece of candle, which will burn more), and when ready to pick, just touch the top, when the fluff will burn off and leave you the head of seed quite easy to pick. One has no trouble then of cleaning away the fluff.—E. W. Nichols, 1, Milford Street, Cambridge.

A Sure way with Egg-bound Hens.

This is a simple, safe way, and never known to fail. Place the hen in a small travelling cage, in the bottom of which there should be a piece of flannel. Put the cage on a boiler, or oven, where it will be warm, but not too hot. The hen will probably lay within a few hours, or will recover without laying, when she may be returned to her cage, and the egg will come the next morning. If necessary, keep in a warm place all night, but care should be taken to see that she is not over-heated. This way is far superior to steaming, and using olive oil.—H. Teat (Ancaster).

When Spring Cleaning.

To fanciers preparing their bird-cages and rooms, I should like to give a few good hints on redecoration. (1) For the insides of cages get a stone of white lime and add, while it is boiling in water, some tallow, say ¼-lb (or else you may have the same amount of table salt). This makes a fine and pure distemper, which dries with a gloss, and does not rub off as well as being a sanitary disinfectant. (2) For the outsides, get ¼-lb. of concentrated size, pennyworth of vandyke brown, and pennyworth of burnt sienna in water. Melt size in about ½-pint of boiling water, and mix in the remainder; this will make an ideal stain for cages, and not injurious to the birds. The cost of both is about 7d. If you want to colour the insides of the cages, dry colours (such as ultramarine blue) can be bought in pennyworths at the oil and colour stores. Add in the quantity desired, while the lime is boiling (slacking).—G. F. Cooke

OUT OF CONDITION AND THE WAY IN.

By J. STEEL (Dalkeith).

A contribution of the greatest importance to Breeders of Birds of every kind.

WITH the advent of May a recruit to the Fancy will be experiencing that deferment of hope which maketh the heart sick. Daily for about six weeks he has vainly inspected the nests for that tangible evidence which may spell multiplication, or perchance his hopes have been raised to concert pitch by eggs, only to be dashed flat by reason of their infertility.

By now he has doubtless reached that stage when Micawberisms are ineffective to console, and doubtless also he has sought many opinions. Generally, the most obvious feature in the stock is badly matched pairs, and we may guess that in his endeavours to at least get something he has been shuffling his pack in a manner not at all conducive to good results in Canary breeding.

The various breezes which are taking place in his room show that such shuffling has been recent, and is being resented. Nor does it require the penetration of a Sherlock Holmes to discern a lack of condition in one or the other, or both, birds of his matchings. In his endeavours to impart fitness he has unknowingly been contributing to the opposite, as fatness does not predispose to reproduction.

Giving Them a "Liver."

Enquiries will probably reveal the fact that he has been feeding up with egg-food, maw and inga since the Ides of March, what time his stock have been restricted to such exercise as is afforded by a half share in an 18 inch cage. We may cease to wonder at the listlessness of the hens, and "I don't care if it snows" air of their partners. A similar method is employed to give geese a liver weighing up to 4lbs., the fois gras of epicures.

We have here a typical instance of premature pairing, in other words while the birds were not in breeding condition, and the evils which may result from injudicious attempts to force matters, stimulating and fat-producing foods, and doubtless the birds are just about as disgusted with their owners' forceful methods as he is with their dilatoriness.

It is quite a common mistake with breeders to attribute delay in coming into condition to ill-health, and straightway start dosing their birds with drugs. That many healthy stocks are naturally late is just as true as that many unhealthy are abnormally early. That heat and light have a wondrous effect in awaking the sleeping desire we have yearly proof in the many instances of broods produced in the first and second months by artificial employment of heat and light.

Another point worth noting is that late-bred birds of the previous year, and those which have undergone a protracted moult, are often late in coming into condition, and when the breeder is aware of this it is unwise to resort to extremes in stimulation, for this is much more likely to produce the state of affairs described than awaiting the termination of the period of cessation and recuperation which nature demands.

THE BIRD BREEDER'S FRIEND.

A dandelion plant (photographed by Mr. S. Crook) in just that "ripe" condition best suited to the breeders' needs.

The treatment of backward stock, to be effective, must depend entirely on the cause, and whether such arises from an omission or otherwise in the management. The instance I have pictured in the beginning of this article comes under the latter category, and is the most common error to which the inexperienced fancier is liable, surfeiting. These birds I would at once separate, putting all the hens into the largest cage or cages available, and the cocks might be permitted to remain in the breeders, where they will be less liable to enter into acrimonious discussions on Home Rule.

The food supply I would reduce to good, sound canary seed, with a modicum of German rape on alternate days, and each and all would get a full strength dose of glaubers salts twice weekly. This treatment I would continue for a fortnight or three weeks, and its effect would be to remove some of the adipose tissue and stimulate the action of the liver and digestive organs. A daily bath and abundance of fresh air and sunlight will play no small part in this hardening process.

The Virtues of the Dandelion.

As a stimulating food I am quite convinced nothing equals the succulent seed of the dandelion, and I now begin by supplying three ripe heads (not more) per bird, previously cutting off the downy part to prevent making a mess. These heads I would arrange in as many lots as there were birds, to prevent the more assertive getting more than their share, and on alternate days I would supply a mixture of rich egg-food and maw seed, equal parts, in the proportion of one small teaspoonful to each pair of birds, and gradually increase the supply of dandelion heads till they were getting as many as they cared to consume, but never increasing the supply of egg-food.

At the expiry of a month or five weeks from the beginning of treatment, the beneficial effects will be discernible in the flapping wings and shrieks of desire on the part of the hens, and the wild outbursts in song of the cocks. When this latter sound comes to a pitch which would be insufferable to anyone but a fancier, it is time to pair up, and it will be found that the time entailed in the process of preparation has been well spent, but it should be borne in mind that the curbing of his impatience at the outset, and common-sense treatment of his stock, would have saved him that time, and rendered the corrective part unnecessary.

Cases that Cannot be Cured.

That some birds, hens in particular, are by reason of some defect in their reproductive organs, unresponsive to any treatment for periods which may extend to years is well known, but such state in an otherwise healthy individual only occurs in isolated cases, and is extremely unlikely to be a feature in a stock. This, however, cannot be said of a failure to reproduce, due to inherent weakness, a state which I have already dealt with in these pages, and for which I can offer no remedy.

No doubt the young fancier likes to have corroboration as to the effectiveness of any remedial measures of which he may hear or read, so I will quote a past and future instance. A few months ago I purchased a trio of Canaries from one of the most experienced fanciers in Scotland. These were in his opinion, two hens and a cock, and I saw no reason to doubt his opinion, nor did any of the many fanciers who saw them in my room. The backward state of one of these supposed hens called for a supply of the dandelion heads, and eight days from the beginning of such treatment "she" proved to be the most incessant songster in my stock, and was sent on April 10th to a Bristol fancier, who could doubtless corroborate.

The other instance I will stake my reputation on has yet to be proved, inasmuch as I only got the bird two days ago from a fancier of Musselburgh. This is another alleged hen; she has been paired up as a hen, and in no feature, except colour and eyes, has the appearance of a cock, and her peculiar marking makes recognition an easy matter. So healthy is this bird, and so convinced am I that it is simply a very backward cock, that I will treat it in the manner I have described, and return it to him within 14 days in full song and ready to pair up.

Coming to the Finches, it is early yet to expect results from the hens, but if backward I would advise a supply of dandelion heads for both them and the cocks intended for hybridising or Mule breeding, and as at this season few, if any, of the other wild seeds are procurable in the succulent state, an effective substitute may be improvised by germinating those preserved from the previous harvest, these, plus certain forms of insect life, constituting the natural food of the Finch species at this season

The seeds supplied must be those most favoured by the particular species for which they are intended, and are all procurable from stores and collectors (see CAGE BIRDS' advert. columns). It is advisable to discard, or at least greatly curtail, the supply of such oily seeds as sunflower, flax, inga, and hemp, while the succulent wild seeds are being employed, and a careful inspection of the samples should be made, as many of these wild seeds are absolutely worthless by reason of their being badly gathered and imperfectly dried. An examination with a seed microscope may reveal the presence of millions of weevils, and disclose the fact that the sample consists largely of empty husks.

The Birds of Flamborough Headland.

By J. FEW (Wigan).

A SECOND (or guide rope) hangs down, by which he can signal and inform those above whether he wishes to be pulled up or lowered. His hands are filled with grass, as a protection from the chafing of the rope, and as he descends or ascends he collects the eggs from the ledges and places them in the bags at his sides, a hooked stick enabling him to reach any in awkward positions. In one part where the cliffs considerably overhang, a steel rope has been secured to the face, by means of which the operator is able to draw himself under until loaded, when he leaves hold and swings back to the perpendicular. When the linen bags are fairly full of eggs, the signal "Up" is given, and hand over hand the rope is hauled in, until the head of the climmer appears over the edge of the cliff. He is then able to take the weight off the rope and assist himself up the slope. The eggs are placed in a basket, unusually "pretty," or rarely-marked eggs being put on one side, the remainder being sold at about one penny each.

The season commences in the third week in May, and finishes at the end of June, or, at the latest, the first week in July, during which period, it is calculated, each gang collecting from 300 to 400 eggs daily, or, allowing for wet weather, an average of 100,000 eggs per season. These are sold to collectors, and are also made use of in other ways. Notwithstanding this enormous drain upon the eggs there appears to be no diminution in the number of the birds; in fact, according to some authorities, they increase annually.

At an International Congress of Naturalists, principally interested in bird life, a special excursion was made from London to Bempton to see the myriads of sea-birds which breed on the ledges of the steep chalk cliffs. There were representatives present from various parts of Europe and America, many of whom had travelled extensively in different parts of the globe, and these visitors admitted that they had rarely, if ever, seen anything to compare with the extraordinary sight to be viewed on the Bempton cliffs.

No Egg and No Green Food

A Novel Method of Rearing Young Canaries and Mules.

By W. J. STAGG (Birmingham).

I AM writing on the rearing of Canaries or Mules without the use of egg-food in any shape or form. I mean a food that can take the place of the egg without losing in size or quality or quantity of the young birds bred, and which is also readily eaten by the parent birds. It costs very little, it is very easy to make, easy to prepare for the birds, and is next to no trouble in any way. This may seem a lot to say about a food containing no egg, but I can assure all of its value, and if any will give it a trial this coming season it will do all I have said and am going to say about it.

I have kept birds a long time, and when I first tried this method I had for breeding one pair of Norwich, one pair of Yorkshires (both pairs of good strain), one H.M. cock Goldfinch to run with two Norwich hens, and one not H.M. cock Greenfinch with one Norwich hen. All the Canaries were of different ages. The Finches were fed on a mixture of hemp, linseed, teazle, inga, and Spanish canary seeds, double the quantity of Spanish to the other seeds. This was for Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday. On Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday I fed them with plain Spanish canary seed, and the egg drawer was half full of soft food, with a little ripe apple added.

Feeding the Old Birds.

The Canaries were fed on Spanish canary-seed, with a little rape added, except on Sunday, when they had a little of the Finch mixture. I watched the birds until the hens showed signs of wanting to go to nest. This was about the first week in April. Then I drew out the wired slide and let the cocks in, put in a nest-pan lined with felt, and left them like this till the hen laid her first egg. I removed the eggs until the third was laid, then started the hen to sit (I replaced the first egg with a dummy one). This is how I worked with all my birds. While the hens were sitting I removed the cocks and gave them plain canary-seed till the 12th day, when I started to add the soft food, giving a small teaspoonful at a time.

The Treatment of the Young.

When the young were hatched I gave the hen the following diet: Two parts canary-seed and one part German rape in the seed pot, and one teaspoonful of soft food in the egg drawer. When the young were four days old I added a little crushed hemp to the seed and a little oaked rape to the soft food, and kept them on this till they left the nest, when I dropped the oaked rape, and afterwards the hemp. I left them like this for a week, then I let in the cock and parted the young off in the other side of the cage (the wired slide between) for the hen or cock to finish them off. I put in the side with the young the soft food only, with a little crushed canary-seed added. No water until they could feed themselves; then I gave them a little. I kept this up until I found them eating the seed; then I started to drop the soft food and added uncrushed Spanish canary seed until they were on this altogether, when I put them in a large flight cage, 6ft. by 4ft. by 2ft., and kept them like this until the moult.

I have given you my method of breeding and feeding, and here is the "no egg food" and how to make it. Go to your baker and ask him to sell you as many plain scones as you think you want. Have them not more than two days old, and bring them home, keep them in a cool, dry place, wrapped in a damp linen cloth, until ready to use them. Renew your stock twice a week. You can buy them at 4 for 3d. or 2 for 1½d., so they will not cost a lot. When you have birds ready for the soft food get one of the scones and grate it up on a bread-grater. Then add one small tablespoonful of blue maw-seed. This is all you need add until you want to put in the soaked rape. If it seems a bit dry moisten with a little lukewarm water. The soaked rape should be drained first before adding.

High Commendation.

This is the food I bred my Canaries and Mules on, and reared every one of the young hatched. It is just sweet enough, and the birds take to it quite easily and seem to like it as well as anything, and feed their young well with it. You can give them as much as they will eat without any fear, and as many times as you like in a day. It is just the food for anyone to use who, like myself, is away from the birds all day. Give them a feed before you go out in the morning and another when you come home at night, not forgetting to change the water as well.

Saves Time and Trouble.

You will notice I have not mentioned anything about the green food (such as watercress, etc.). Well, I never use it, as I think the soaked rape acts as a green food. But should any readers like to use green food instead of the rape, they can add it if they like. I think the method I have outlined, however, will serve as good as any. It has been proved a good one by me. I bred 16 Goldfinch Mules, 11 Yorkshires, 8 Norwich and 6 Greenfinch Mules, total 41 birds, from 4 cocks and 5 hens, taking three rounds of each hen. This I think is good. My food does away with the trouble, time and care of making egg-food, and the chance of overdoing it with the birds and causing illness. Anyone can mix it and it is always ready for use and takes a long time to go sour in hot weather; all you need worry about is getting good healthy birds to start with, giving them good clean seeds and cages, and a clean place to be in, then you have nothing to fear.

I keep my birds in cages (double breeders) 36in. x 18in. x 10in., with slide in middle (wire and wood). They are in a room by themselves and have no heat whatever, winter or summer. I give my birds cuttlefish bone to peck at all the year round. If a bird seems a little backward I give a few dandelion leaves. When once they are in breeding condition you can't go wrong, I can assure you.

Birds and the Fruit Crop.

With regard to the suggestion to place receptacles containing water near to the trees and bushes carrying crops of ripening fruit, as a means of preventing, to a certain extent, the destruction of the fruit by birds, I may state that we have planted alongside a stream of excellent water, from which birds can easily obtain all the water they require, a row of bush apples, including the varieties Gladstone and Ribston Pippin, also an old standard tree of a Russet sort. I find, however, that I cannot keep the Blackbirds and Tits away from them; in fact without netting the trees cannot keep a single fruit long enough for it to ripen. I have known Blackbirds to tear holes in old fish netting in order to get at the fruits. Moor hens also cross the stream and eat the fallen Russets, of which they appear particularly fond. H. F. THE TRAPPING OF INSECTIVOROUS BIRDS.

By A. JACKSON (Rotherham).

THE following hints on the most approved methods of capturing insectivorous birds may be appreciated by some of your readers. The methods I am about to describe are those usually followed by the professional bird-catcher. The first and most important item is to purchase a number of reliable spring net traps. There is a right and a wrong way of doing everything, so don't get the idea that any kind of article fitted with a spring will do for catching birds.

The traps I am illustrating are the most satisfactory types I know. These I can recommend to do all that is required in the way of catching birds humanely and unhurt. I have tried the oval-shaped wire net-traps, but I can't say I ever did any good with them. I merely mention this to prevent fanciers speculating on worthless articles.

The Baits and the Baiting.

For the larger species, such as Jays, Magpies, Blackbirds, Hawfinches, etc., I use the round design (see sketch No. 1), and for the smaller birds, such as Redstarts, Wagtails, Chats, Nightingales, etc., the trap illustrated in No. 2 sketch.

Having your traps you now require a supply of bait, namely: live gentles, mealworms, and a number of very small ripe tomatoes (or other suitable fruit of a bright red colour), not forgetting a few bits of clean white bread, not too old; also last but not least, a small carrying cage to put the birds in when caught.

Supposing you are out for the larger species, Jays, Magpies, Thrushes, etc., the most suitable locality to set your traps is some quiet, unfrequented spot, near a wood or plantation. Set your traps a matter of about 30 yards or so from the wood side. Place a piece of clean bread on the bait holder, then a little of the fruit, and lastly pin one or two live gentles on the fruit. Conceal the parts of trap that are visible with some light material; leaf-mould is as good as anything, and shows up the bait wonderfully. Having set your traps a matter of 100 yards apart, get well out of sight, so as to give the birds a chance to return. If there are any birds at all in the neighbourhood you will not have long to wait before you obtain a capture. When after Hawfinches I always bait the traps with a pod of garden peas, and have taken a great many with this bait.

For the smaller Softbills, I procure a number of the traps as sketch 2, as these are more suitable for setting on rubbish and manure heaps. For catching Wagtails there is nothing better, as they can easily be set by the sides of running streams; Wagtails love a shallow stream. When setting, it is only necessary to lightly conceal the wire framework, and to bait with live gentles or mealworms. To catch Nightingales the trap should be set in the evening near the side of a wood, and baited with a live glowworm. This bait can always be found where Nightingales are.

The Usefulness of Gentles.

Having caught your birds, give them a liberal supply of live gentles, the finest of all foods for fresh caught softbills. On the second day, amongst the gentles mix a little of the stock food that you intend to use. Decrease the live food and increase the stock food from day to day, until you have the birds thoroughly on stock food.

Don't place the birds in cages the first week; keep them in a large packing case, well sanded on the bottom, with the food and water in shallow dishes inside, so that the birds can easily find them. Under the top of the packing case (that is, inside about two inches from the roof) stretch a piece of small mesh net very tightly. This will prevent the birds from damaging their plumage. If these instructions are carefully followed out success is assured.

How the Blue Grosbeak Was First Bred.

Success at the Twelfth Attempt, After Troubles and Trials Galore!

THE Blue Grosbeak is one of those beautiful species which reach us from South America, or, perhaps I should say, which used to reach us, for it has been rare on the market for the past few years. The male, which is about the size of a Bullfinch, is a deep, rich blue, the lesser wing-coverts lighter, the top of the head gleaming with a wash of cobalt; the wings and tail black. The female, for want of a better term, I will describe as tan-coloured. It is a native of the warmer parts of S. America, Brazil, the Amazon countries, and Guiana, and does not range northward in spring into the States.

Its place in our markets during the past few years has been to some extent usurped by its larger relative, the Northern, or Brown-winged Blue Grosbeak—a species which I never saw until some half dozen years since, but which has been not infrequently imported since. A fortnight since I saw a beautiful male in London for which only the moderate sum of one guinea was asked. This latter species is known to science as Guiraca caerulea, the first of which words is not a Latin but a native name, and perhaps has reference to its note; the second means "sky-blue." Unfortunately, very few females of G. caerulea have been brought over. Mrs. Galloway was the fortunate possessor of a pair, which she exhibited with success, and I think I recollect that Mr. Chiozza Money, M.P., wrote me that he also had secured a pair. It has not been bred in cage or aviary, I believe. I expect that we should have seen but little of the Brown-winged Blue Grosbeak but for two facts, the first of which is that it winters southward of the United States, and the second that that most enterprising German dealer, Herr August Fockelmann, of Hamburg, keeps several collectors working for him in Mexico.

The "Promise" of Mexico.

Unfortunately, Mexico has been in a very disturbed state, as we all know, for some time past; quite a year ago Herr Fockelmann wrote me that his collectors dared not leave the coastal district, and it is in the interior, and especially in those wonderful canons, through which the rivers flow, that the most interesting birds are to be found, as all readers of that most fascinating book, "Two Bird-lovers in Mexico," will recollect. With the events of the next few days the interests of aviculturists are vitally concerned, for a glance at a map will show us that as long ago as 1848 Uncle Sam bit off a large piece of Mexico (Texas), and it looks very much as if he now intended to swallow the lot. Now, Uncle Sam in the days of his youth was an inveterate bird-slayer; he used to have picnics in the woods where the unfortunate Passenger Pigeons nested, and pot them wholesale, until he had exterminated all but one big flock which flew away northward, never to be seen again. But Uncle Sam in his old age has become a reformed character, and we may be nearly sure that, should he annex Mexico, the exportation of birds from there will be a thing of the past.

However, to return to the Southern Blue Grosbeak. In 1904, when I secured my first pair, it was to be obtained from almost any dealer for a comparatively small sum. It was a delightful thing to see it flash across the aviary—a streak of dark blue against a green background—or to listen to its plaintive warbling song, delivered almost in a whisper from the shelter of some thick shrub. It seemed so hardy and so much at home in captivity that I thought it ought to be very easily bred. There are many undertakings, however, which look very easy until one comes to grips with them, when one begins to find out gradually a number of unforeseen difficulties.

Shrubs Deadly to the Young.

In the first place some of these foreign Grosbeaks are, in the matter of diet, intermediate between Hardbills and Softbills; they require a mixed menu, consisting partly of seed, partly of soft food, partly of green food, and largely of live insect food, and some of all of these comestibles they give to the young. The green-food I always find the greatest difficulty in an aviary, because, however much one may supply, the old birds always seem to supplement it with the tender green leaves of shrubs; and, when once they begin to feed with shrub, the end comes quickly. For all shrubs are poison to young birds. Secondly, though this Grosbeak is normally harmless enough, when actually nesting it will give the other inmates of the aviary no peace. Thirdly, I found that males in immature plumage would pursue the females and make some pretence of building, but would not settle down to business. Lastly, I found that adult males, if allowed to help themselves freely to live insect food, would throw the young out of the nest and induce the hens to nest again.

I had nothing but failures for the first three years. Then I placed a pair, which had nearly succeeded in rearing a brood, in a small aviary by themselves. This method, however, was even less successful, It is competition which keeps us all going, both birds and men; without competition the Grosbeaks became fat and lazy, and did not even lay a clutch of eggs.

The Home which Collapsed.

In 1909, therefore, I once again placed the old pair in the large aviary. They built a charming little nest in a privet, so small and frail that it hardly gave room for the three large white eggs, boldly splashed with red; it was a mere sketch of a nest, much like that of a Blackcap. But, alas! unlike the latter, it was not well woven; day by day it sagged more and more on one side, till one morning it collapsed altogether. This was my eleventh attempt! But the aviculturist must never say "die"; when difficulties fence him round, he must "up and at 'em."

Time passed, but the Grosbeaks did not seem to be nesting again. I decided to have a good look for a nest, and, if none was to be found, to remove the birds from the aviary and give some other pairs a chance. So I thoroughly examined the outer flight, bush by bush, and almost inch by inch, and could find nothing. I returned to the house for the hand-net, and was just going to use it when I saw the hen Grosbeak take a short flight and very neatly catch a fly. It was a little thing, but it is only by observing the little things that the aviarist can find out what is going on in the aviary. For instance, if he sees a bird with its tail bent in semi-circular fashion, he knows that it is sitting, and sitting in a domed nest; if he sees that the lower part of the breast is rather bare, he knows that it has been sitting for some time; and if he sees a Hardbill catching a fly, he knows that the young are hatched. But I had to hide myself for twenty minutes before I could locate the nest; it was in a flowering spray of privet at the extreme end of a branch.

This time I determined to dole out the live-bait very carefully, every few hours, and only just enough to satisfy requirements: everyone who has done it knows what this means! Everything went well for a time, and the young grew apace. But one afternoon I had to catch a bird in this aviary, and, in order to do this, I had to drive it into the covered house (where the food was placed), and close the small opening through which the birds fly in and out. I always close the opening with my pocket-handkerchief because, should one forget to remove the latter, one is sure to miss one's handkerchief before long and thus be reminded of the fact. On this occasion, having caught the bird, I started off for an afternoon's sea-fishing. Hardly had we put our anchor down and baited our lines before I put my hand in my breast-pocket and experienced a dreadful shock. My pocket-handkerchief was at that moment in the opening of the door, and the young Grosbeaks were starving!

It was a time for action: we made things move, but two and a half hours had passed before those young birds got another square meal—a near thing! However, this time we were successful—our twelfth attempt! My esteemed friend Dr. Butler has expressed his conviction that success in breeding birds is simply a matter of luck, and perhaps he is quite right. Nevertheless some of us have to try a good many times before we get a little luck!

I think that I was the first aviarist to point out that young males of this species take three years to acquire their full colour, and the colour still improves for another two years.

DRY HEAT FOR AILING BIRDS.

THE disadvantage of using the kitchen range is the difficulty of maintaining the heat during the night. Of course, the bird to be treated could go into a small cage, and be put into the oven or on top of the range while the apparatus was being heated up. Such an apparatus would often save the life of a valuable bird, and if not required for other cases could be used as a hardening-off cage as well, by a proper regulation of the lamp and by gradually admitting more and more air to the top, or hot-air chamber. Of course, aviarists having radiators in their winter bird-rooms could easily fix such cages, provided with metal bottoms, to stand on the top of the respective radiators, which would always be ready for use.

Now, as a final word, the substance of this article is a provision for ailing birds, or any which collapse from climatic or other causes, such as travel prostration or with birds past treatment, to bring them into a condition for treatment. A bird picked up almost lifeless, and practically incapable of movement, must be revived before it can be treated, but in the majority of cases two or three days, or less, in a hot-air chamber will be all that is required.

I have not supplied diagrams, as the whole apparatus is so simple as to render such unnecessary. Some exhibitors use a heated drying cage to dry their birds in after washing them for a show. Well, to such I will say, all they require is a drying cage on a larger scale, and capable of being quickly heated up to 80 degrees F., or higher. Others having an incubator could use such in any emergency. I am sure further directions are unealled for, but if anyone has any difficulty in the matter, it can be cleared up through the query columns.

My Parrot Finches from Australia:

This article is No. 43 of the new series entitled "Through a Birdroom Window," being personal birdy experiences Related by that eminent aviculturist the Rev. C. D. FARRAR.

AN old gardener once said to me: "I've known folk as could resist anything but temptation, and I ain't one for putting it in their way. Folk is only too ready to hunt hard for it on their own, and they mostly find it." What brought these words to my mind were those Parrot Finches. Remember, I was told, the very last thing before I left home, to go to no birdshops; and the very first thing I did on leaving St. Pancras, was to drive straight to Charing Cross, deposit my luggage, and then hasten away to the East End. There temptation met me and I fell. I had only just entered a birdshop when a great railway van drove up, and a cageful of birds was handed in. I felt in duty bound to stay and see what that box contained. It is not every day you have the luck to see such a cargo opened.

The consignment hailed from Marseilles, and contained the usual assortment of little Finches, but among them I spotted in a moment some birds I knew well by seeing them in books, and a single specimen of which I had once possessed. It all happened quite by chance. One evening I saw offered for sale or exchange, "a little green bird with a red head"; the modest price asked being 5s.; to send off a wire for that bird was the work of a moment, for I knew it could only be an Australian Parrot Finch.

To send off a wire I knew was one thing; to get the bird would be quite another. Would not telegrams be converging from all parts of England on that one bird? In these things one doesn't count by time, but by anxiety and suspense; and to me, the term of waiting seemed like an eternity, or like one of those sermons that seem never going to end. That time my luck must have been in the ascendant, for I got the bird, but from that day onward I had never the luck to alight on another until the particular day on which I entered this shop.

When One Must Dissemble.

Long experience has warned me to suppress all outward marks of eagerness when about to buy any new bird, so after leisurely examining the consignment, I asked the price of the Parrot Finches, and so far as I remember, I think it was about 35s. the pair. As I knew this was exceedingly moderate and as Parrot Finches are always scarce, and these were in beautiful condition, I decided to take two pairs, for I remembered the saying of the same old gardener. "Nature made folks in twos, sir, but three be trumpery. Four is all right, sir, when its divided into two twos, but five's a crowd." I always admire the skill with which a dealer will catch a particular bird out of a big cageful.

I popped them into a travelling cage, and the next day carried them down to Yorkshire. I must say I did not feel very happy on the journey, for on the luggage rack I had half-a-dozen small cages, and should anyone meet me at the other end, what should I say? Fortunately, I was not met, and so I managed to get most of my parcels safely through without being spotted. I notice that on these occasions it is not the value of the bird that is noted, but the numbers. I am very seldom asked what I have given for a bird (perhaps it is just as well), but how many have I brought back?

I carried my treasures up to the birdroom and let them loose in a compartment in which were dwelling some Longtailed Grassfinches. Parrot Finches are exceedingly wild when first put into a strange place, and dash with horrible bangs against the wire netting; so that it is well to leave them for a bit to get accustomed to their new surroundings.

The Food Presents No Problem.

With regard to food you need have no sort of anxiety, as all Parrot Finches want is good canary seed and millet, clean water, and an abundance of green food. I find this is best supplied growing in pots, and by choice grass.

When I came back to the birdroom after a decent interval I missed one of the Parrot Finches. Hastily looking about, I saw him, to my great grief, with one leg caught in the wire netting, and hanging head downwards. By the position of the leg I saw in a moment that it was badly broken at the thigh, so that I knew the case was quite hopeless. I have many a time mended a broken shank-bone with a match splint, and effected a perfect cure, but a broken thigh is beyond my skill. If I had not been a priest, I think it would have been helpful to say things; as it was I could only look them and think them. However, it was really nobody's fault, but an accident pure and simple; and the only thing I could do was to catch the poor thing and put it out of its misery.

I set my mind on breeding Parrot Finches, and with this end in view provided all sorts of tempting nesting sites—cocoa nut husks, small baskets, and boxes of all sorts and sizes, but nothing seemed to suit the taste of the birds. At last, I remembered to have read somewhere that old straw hats were great favourites with many small Australian Finches, though why they should be I could never imagine, as old straw hats would not be common objects in the Australian Bush. However, there was the fact set down in black and white, so off I went in search of one.

It was not a difficult task, as all the hats in our house (except the ladies') are distinctly old and shabby. I found a battered old thing that would have disgraced a scare-crow, and first having cut a small circular hole in the crown, and inserted a long twig through the aperture to serve as a perch, I nailed it up sideways by the brim to the walls of the aviary, and awaited results.

The Parrot Finches were soon hopping around it, wildly excited, and the next day they had summoned up courage to enter it and explore the interior. Evidently it suited their ideas of comfort, for forthwith they commenced to line it with great diligence.

The birds behaved very well and for days were busy carrying hay into the old hat, till one wondered how it could hold so much; but the odd bird soon caused trouble, I suppose he could not bear to see others happy; at any rate, he gave the happy pair no peace. The moment one of the pair lighted on the entrance twig he would make a savage rush, and try to dislodge it; and Babel was a Quaker meeting to what then went on. I saw that the only hope of a succesful ending was to catch and remove the odd cock. This I soon did with the help of a net, and then once more peace descended.

In about a week the hen began to stop a bit inside the hat, but she was so exceedingly timid that the slightest sound, the most quiet opening of the birdroom door, was quite enough to make her dash wildly out of the nest. I had a spy hole in the birdroom door for taking observations, but no matter how quietly I turned the handle, she always heard me. I felt sure there were eggs in the hat, though I couldn't see them, but I felt equally certain that they would never hatch with a hen behaving as this one did. Still I determined to be patient, and to give them every chance, but when after three weeks had passed, and the same performance went on each time I opened the door, I felt that I must get the steps and have a look inside that hat.

I carefully inserted my finger in the hole and felt. There was nothing. The wretched hen had never laid at all. As I slowly descended to the floor, I thought of the words of a quaint old fellow I once knew: "Well, sir," he was fond of saying, "we're born to trouble, as Adam said when he found Eve in the Garden!"

I was much afraid that I had got hold of a barren hen, and, as I did not want to lose a whole season, I advertised for a hen Parrot Finch. For a wonder I got one. It must have been one of my rare lucky days. I caught up my hen to avoid all complications, and took her away out of sight and hearing, and introduced the new comer. Alas, for the inconstancy of bird nature. The cock accepted her without a murmur.

In a few days the new hen was busy exploring the old hat, and all my hopes revived. The newcomer was not such a bundle of nerves as the former one had been, and merely put her head out of the hole when the door of the room opened, and after a bit did not even trouble to do that. All went well for some days, when a new disaster overtook me.

Foolishly, as I now see, I had left in the compartment the Long-tailed Grassfinches, as I considered them quite harmless. One morning when I entered the birdroom to feed, I heard a most unholy noise going on, and looking up I saw the poor Parrot Finches dashing about and scolding wildly, and the wretched cock Long-tail coolly looking out of the hat. When I saw that bird sitting on his neighbour's nest, I became at once primitive man with passions bloodthirsty and elemental. There was something in the cool way he sat there, looking out, that was offensive in the last degree, and when I drove him away he merely settled into a neighbouring bush, and used language suited only to a three bottle buck of the old school.

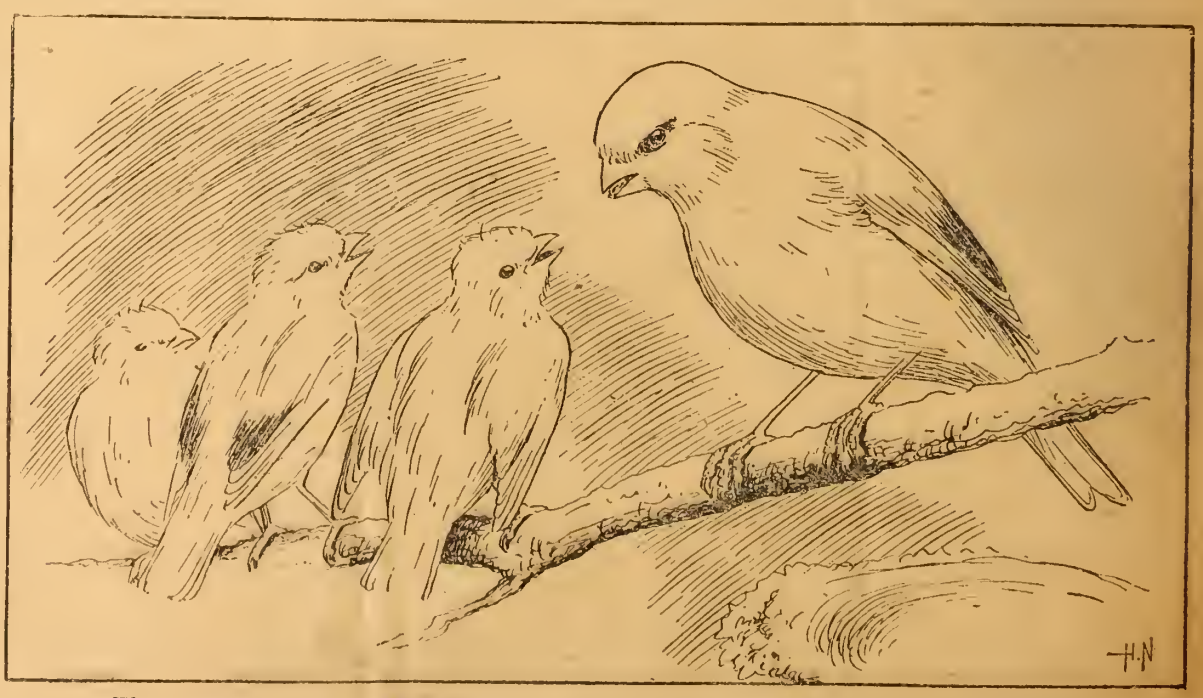
It only took me a few seconds to get the net and transfer him to a cage, but I felt it was too late, the mischief was done. The hen had been so badly scared that she refused to go back to the hat on any terms. After waiting a whole day, I knew that the eggs, if any, were spoilt, so I made up my mind to have a look. Sure enough, there was a full clutch, and all well on towards hatching. Any intelligent man will understand that it was a situation calculated to amuse the ungodly, but without any real fun in it.

It was August when all this happened, and I felt somehow that for that year, at any rate, my chances were gone. Then one day I heard that a rival member of our society had succeeded where I had failed, and as I read of his success I felt as cold as a poodle that has been shaved for the first time. But there, things might have been worse, as the man said in the old legend, as the Devil carried him off. "How so?" asked a friend. "Why," said he, "the devil might have made me carry him." I might have lost my Parrot Finches in various ways. As it was, I still have them lively and well, and who can tell whether I may not be successful another time. The life of the aviculturist is one of perpetual looking forward, and notwithstanding the gibes of the comic papers, he is the most hopeful of men. He must be, or he would soon go mazed, as Devonshire folk say.

Of course, I see now that the mistake I made was in not giving those birds a place to themselves, but as Mrs. Brown said to Mrs. Duckett, on a certain historical occasion: "We all makes mistakes, and in course you're only flesh and blood, as is only grass arter all, as the saying is."



WE WISH ALL BREEDERS MANY SUCH PROMISING BROODS!

THE FASCINATING PURSUIT OF MULE AND HYBRID BREEDING.

By E. COLLINS (Barnstaple).

A splendidly helpful article for beginners by one of our most successful breeders and exhibitors.

As I stood admiring the beautiful Greenfinch-Chaffinch Hybrid exhibited by Mrs. Middleton, of Exeter, at the Crystal Palace Show in February, I found myself wondering what would be the next sensation in bird hybridism. Three months have passed since then and most breeders of Canaries and Hybrids are now in the midst of another breeding season, and are no doubt finding sufficient work to keep them well occupied during their leisure hours.

I propose in this article to call attention to a few important points connected with the breeding of Mules and Hybrids, which may prove useful, as the season progresses, to novices, also to those who have not yet entered the lists, but are thinking of adopting Mule or Hybrid breeding as a hobby.

Many of the older and experienced breeders of Hybrids are no doubt aiming at something sensational, but most beginners will be content to follow the well-worn track, and wisely pair their birds with reasonable hope of success. And it is better so, for it is a hobby in which one has to feel one's way, as it were, and it would be unwise to attempt the more difficult crosses until one has gained experience.

Perhaps no branch of the interesting hobby of bird-keeping presents so many difficulties and disappointments to beginners as that of Mule and Hybrid breeding. These difficulties I will deal with individually, in order as they occur during the breeding season, and will endeavour to show in what way many of them may be overcome. With all its difficulties, however, it is the most fascinating of hobbies, and, as in all pastimes where "chance" plays an important part, its difficulties and its "glorious uncertainties" are its chief attractions. There is no doubt that if Mules and Hybrids were as easily produced as Canaries the attractions and fascinations of the hobby would to a great extent disappear.

Where the Hybrid Breeder Scores.

We should remember that there is a very great difference between the breeding of Mules and Hybrids and that of Canaries. In the latter case the breeder aims at the gradual building up of a stock of Canaries which will be likely to produce a fair percentage of exhibition specimens. With this end in view he proceeds, by judicious mating of his birds, and by the introduction of new blood, to produce in his stock those qualities which, in his opinion, make for the ideal specimen. This, in most cases, is the work of years, and unless one can afford to buy his winners we generally find the men of greater experience in their hobby capturing the chief prizes at the shows.

In the breeding of Mules and Hybrids the mode of procedure is entirely different. There is no building up of a stock (except in the case of those who are building up a stock of Sib-bred hens for Light-Mule breeding), and therefore no correcting of faults, or gradual breeding in of good qualities. As most of my readers are aware, we have to be satisfied with the result of our first cross, for although some breeders claim to have bred from a Mule yet we must remember that in the producing of any kind of Hybrid we are working contrary to the laws of Nature, and it is only in very, very rare instances we get beyond the first cross. The exhibition Hybrid, then, must be produced at the first time of asking, as it were, or we have to begin again.

Selection for Breeding.

It will be easily understood from the above that one cannot be too careful in the selection of Finches and Canaries intended for breeding, as much depends upon our choice. I am afraid this matter of selection does not receive the careful attention it deserves. Of course, I am assuming that it is the aim and ambition of every breeder to produce a specimen which shall be a credit to its owner, and that being so, it is essential that we should get the best birds we can buy for our purpose. Of course, this does not necessarily mean that we should pay a very high price for them, for it is not always the exhibition bird that is the best for Hybrid breeding.

Suppose, for instance, we are thinking of pairing a Goldfinch to a Canary in order to produce a good dark Mule. In this case a large Siberian Goldfinch should be mated to a large Norwich Green hen, and the hen should be a yellow. The Finch should be a big bold bird, with a large rich blaze, and would probably cost about fifteen shillings, while the hen should be obtained from some well-known breeder of Norwich Greens, for about twenty to thirty shillings.

This may seem rather a big price for beginners, but I can assure my readers that it will give them much more pleasure to have only two such pairs in their bird-room than to have ten or a dozen pairs of common birds bought at about seven or eight shillings per pair. I can think of nothing more discouraging than to have a large stock of cheap Canaries or Mules, which one finds it difficult to dispose of at five or six shillings each.

The Best in the End.

I cannot warn beginners too strongly against putting up too many pairs for breeding, and thus making hard and disappointing work of what should be a pleasant recreation. To those with a fair amount of leisure I would recommend four or five pairs for the first year, the pairing to be as follows:

1. Goldfinch and Canary.
2. Greenfinch and Canary.
3. Linnet and Canary.
4. Siskin and Canary.
5. Twite and Canary.

Or Goldfinch and Greenfinch, if any would like to include a British pair in their first attempts. My reason for selecting the Greenfinch hen for beginners is that she is generally a good mother and will attend to her offspring, whereas most British Finch hens refuse to have anything to do with either incubation or the rearing of the young.

There are many who are not in a position to pay regular visits to the bird-shops in order to select their Britishers. In this case it is best to place yourself in the hands of a regular dealer, explaining to him what you require. Pay a fair price for your birds and always have them sent on approval. I strongly advise purchasers to adopt the deposit system with CAGE BIRDS when dealing with strangers. When purchasing your Canary hens, explain for what purpose you require them.

VICTORIA

Egg & Biscuit FOOD FOR CAGE BIRDS

BECAUSE hardboiled Eggs and breadcrumbs or biscuits have become, by long usage, considered by many Fanciers as being the one and only medium for successfully rearing Cage-birds, is no criterion that such is really the case.

Why incur unnecessary trouble and expense by preparing Food in the old-fashioned way, with the attendant risks of the Food soon becoming sour, when you have at your disposal Victoria Egg and Biscuit Food? This is reliable in every way, is quickly prepared, does not become sour and is infinately more economical.

Canaries and other Cage Birds welcome it, and rear strong, well-developed chicks. Made crumbly-moist with hot or cold water or scalded milk, is ever ready for use.

A 3d. Packet will practically rear a nest of youngsters.

THE BLACKCAP.

By H. MEAKIN (Luton).

IN the "Nutshell" Booklet, No. 25 Mr. H. J. Fulljames speaks of the Blackcap Warbler as his "absolute ideal among British birds as a cage pet." This opinion is not his alone, for Mr. G. E. Weston has frequently recommended this charming songster, especially to the man (or woman) who keeps only a few birds.

The Blackcap arrives here in April, and leaves these shores sometime in September to spend the winter in Italy, Asia Minor, and North Africa. One of two, however, stay with us the year round. He breeds all over Europe, south of 60 degrees latitude, except in the south-east, where he is represented by the Orphean Warbler. The nest of the Blackcap is found amid very dense foliage, away from the road side, but he has been known to make his home in a large garden.

Like all insectivorous birds, the Blackcap must be kept in a good suitable cage. If housed in some old "soap box," and allowed to get dirty he will soon sicken. A suitable cage would be one at least two feet long, by sixteen inches high, and ten inches wide. The food vessels should be inside the cage, but so arranged that the bird cannot soil them from the perches. Three perches are necessary and these should be of different thicknesses.

A Consumer of Fruit.

The Blackcap is largely a frugivorous bird and therefore a constant supply of ripe fruit is needed. In winter the ever-ready banana is pressed into service, together with grocer's currants (carefully soaked). At other times berries of all sorts may be offered—blackberries, and those of the privet and elder.

The great thing to keep in mind is to provide as much variety as possible. Thus one day banana should be offered, the next day blackberries, the next ripe pear, and so on. In addition our friend needs some good quality insectile food (many such are advertised, mixed ready for use, in CAGE BIRDS) and a few live insects, smooth caterpillars, flies, gentles (well scoured), or mealworms.

The Blackcap's cage must be cleaned out much oftener than, for instance, that of a Linnet. By this is meant the sand tray must be removed, scraped, and refilled at least three times a week. Some fanciers recommend that the tray should have merely a piece of newspaper on it, which can be renewed each day. It is a good plan to have two trays so that the bird is not kept waiting, as it were, and allowed to soil the cage bottom. The tray not in use can be hung in the sun, and so thoroughly disinfected.

The perches must be kept spotless, and the food vessels cleaned very frequently if our friend is to live free from sore feet. This may seem, to the outsider, a lot of trouble; but what true fancier minds the time and labour spent when he is rewarded by seeing his pet in perfect condition and hearing it pour forth its beautiful melody as only a Blackcap can?

Some years ago a writer in CAGE BIRDS gave some excellent advice on "meating off" this species. When freshly caught, he said, it should be put in a clean cage with, if posible, a canvas top. For food a banana, with a few mealworms stuck on it, should be given. The next day another should be provided, but this time let a very small quantity of insectile food be sprinkled on it. The third day the insectile food may be increased, and so on until at the end of a fortnight it will be eating the artificial food quite well.

Most Blackcaps take to cage life very readily, but others give a little more trouble. It is a good plan in the latter case to hang the cage on a level with one's head, and never pass by it without offering the little inmate some dainty in the way of food.

During the moult Blackcaps should have a constant and varied supply of berries, flies, smooth caterpillars, and spiders. These latter seem to act as an excellent tonic. The Blackcap has been bred by Mr. Teschemaker in his spacious aviaries but it is one of those birds the average fancier keeps solely for its song and sociability. Unlike the Nightingale, with which is has been compared, the Blackcap Warbler, soon makes friends with its owner, will sing freely while there is a ray of light of any sort, and if given reasonable care and attention will be a joy if not for ever, at any rate, for a goodly number of years.

"Pleased to inform you that I have disposed of birds advertised and I ask you to kindly state this through your columns, as I find it impossible to answer the 71 applications that I had from different parts—some seem to come from the other end of the world—which shows the number of people that read your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. I wish you more than success."—T. COOK (Cambridge).

Why Some Norwich Plainhead Canary Breeders Fail.

A FEW "STRAIGHT TIPS" BY E. W. ALLSOPP (Cardiff).

LACK of grit is really at the root of this novice trouble. I fear that all we may do in the endeavour to hold novices can only be regarded as a palliative, and not a cure. The fact remains that unless our novices are provided with both grit and determination they are hopelessly beaten before they commence.

Now it must be patent that if I am going to treat of only one-half of the interesting and important points relative to the Norwich Plainhead Fancy, I might write sufficient to fill a book; or, as it is said in Wiltshire, keep on "till the cows come home." But will just briefly refer to three or four little matters, and then give some one else a look in.

That truth is often stranger than fiction is a fact which has been brought home to me on more than one occasion by novices who, in spite of what has been already written, still cling to the belief that the old hands possess the real secret of breeding "toppers," which they will not divulge. With a knowing wink, the novice adds: "Yes, and there's something they know, too, when they're showing."

Some of us are Sane!

Well. I have lived long enough to know that it is not always policy to assume that everyone, or anyone, with whom you come in contact, has a "tile" loose; but I will say that every novice who thinks thus has not yet exercised the brains he has had entrusted to his keeping.

About the best way to tackle the question of whether the old hands really possess the secret of turning out winners by a certain formula, is from the money point of view. Briefly, if there is a secret process, then there must be quite a lot "in the know," and if they have combined, or formed an Association to hold the secret and dominate or control the market value of our breed, then it is quite the cutest Association I know of; and what is more to the point, I am outside in the cold.

Fortunately, I have no experience of prices ruling fifty years ago for Norwich Plainheads. I can safely say, however, that winners were comparatively as scarce then as now, and commanded just as much respect if one were a buyer. If the secret was known at that time, therefore (as it would appear to be), then I can only conclude that old breeders, to ensure the demand being more than the supply, just kept a bucket of water handy in their birdrooms, so that when a nestful of winners came along the pick of the basket only was retained; much on the same lines as those in the mind of the little girl who, being introduced to the newly-arrived twins next door, naively asked the nurse, "Which one are you going to keep?"

Who "Holds the Secret"?

Now, supposing there be such a thing as a Combine amongst the leading breeders to hold the secret of how winners are bred, you may safely bet if there is any question of £ s. d. involved, there would, if I know anything of human nature, be sure to be an awful rumpus at times, when we outsiders would almost certainly hear a thing or two. No, my friends, when a sure process for producing winners, other than the one which has always been in evidence to those that have eyes which see and a brain that works is evolved, then you may put the shutters up; with such a process in force, the Fancy, like little Willie, would long since have been dead!

The fact remains that, to my own knowledge, during the past few years, from five to ten, and even twelve to fifteen pounds have frequently been offered and paid for outstanding specimens of our breed, whilst six guineas for a stock pair is not unheard of; and please don't run away with the idea that the buyers are a "wee bit saftie," for having had a little to do with them, I can assure you they are not. This is the point where "the money speaks," for these buyers as a whole would long since have found the weak spot in any "Combine," and brought the prices tumbling down years ago. Real good specimens of our breed, in spite of the growth of the Fancy, are, comparatively speaking, as rare as ever they were; and what pleases me is, they are always likely to be so.

Just how you are going to breed a "topper" I cannot definitely say, except that true pairs of stock birds are absolutely necessary, and in yourself certain qualifications and opportunities are required, which I have already casually touched upon. What I do strongly advocate the beginners to fully realise is the importance of making one's self a part and parcel of the whole—the breeder weaving himself with his birds. With the important matter of pairing your stock, do please stand absolutely upon your own. There is, in following out this advice, no need to be rude to the friends who wish to counsel you upon the wisdom of utilising this or that pair. Listen with respect, with interest, with pleasure; offer them your cigarette case or cigar box, but after that, just have your own way. If you have had three or four years' experience with your stock, and can at any moment of the day or night conjure up a vision of all the birds in which you have put your trust, and have not failed to note all their good and bad features, who then in the wide, wide world is better able to arrange the pairing of your stock than yourself?

"Looking through the Window."

When you consider the fact that breeding upon careful and definite lines will allow you to match two birds decidedly weak in head and neck points, and yet produce some of the best youngsters in this respect in the room; another pair quite on the small side, yet producing some of the largest; another pair both clears, and yet producing almost self greens, and so on, does it not strike you that oftimes the criticism of your friends is not warranted? After all, it is only based upon the outward appearance of your stock, and 'tis only yourself that is capable of "looking through the window" of your stock birds. What if, at the end of the moulting season, your friend does say, as he scans the youngsters: "What did I tell you? I am sure you would have done better to have paired the other way round." Perhaps it may have been so, but after all, although you have apparently not improved upon the parents, you have nevertheless made some substantial progress. If certain faults remain in evidence, apparently as strong as ever, in spite of counteracting influences, then you now know the strength of those faults, and when you are on the way of measuring the strength or depth of faults, or weaknesses, then you are on the way to success.

I appreciate that it is often a difficult matter even to diplomatically shake off well-meaning friends, but obviously, if you have the advantage of knowing the innermost secrets of your stock (which you should have), the advice of friends, though well meant, is extremely likely to be misleading. Hence, if you have to choose between losing a friend and preserving the right to exercise your own judgment and brains, then lose the friend. Don't be a jujube, or a jellyfish in the Fancy, to be easily squeezed as anyone may desire! The failure of many to exercise the courage of their convictions is the reason of their failure. To such I would advise the text, written large in their birdrooms: "Save me from my friends."

THE PASSING OF THE OLD-TIME "MULE KING."

Some Interesting Reminiscences of the late John Williams (Liverpool) by that Well-Known Exhibitor and Judge, CHAS. HOULTON, St. Helen's.

I AM sure the whole of the cage bird fanciers throughout the United Kingdom, and particularly the older fanciers, will deeply regret to hear of the demise of Mr. John Williams, late of Yanwath Street, Lodge Lane, Liverpool. "Old John," as he was most familiarly called, was also described as the "Mule King," and truly his multitudinous exploits as a "team builder," an exhibitor and judge, fully merited the Royal title. For some years he has been in failing health, and the last time I travelled with him to a show he was very shaky and he then said his doctor had advised him to retire to his native heath in North Wales, as a last resort to stave off the slow but sure last call upon failing human nature.

To go back to his early days as a Mule exhibitor will cover a period of over 40 years. He was a veritable glutton for work, and although his business as a master tiler, when at times he would have 40 or 50 men on full work in some of the largest hotels and public buildings, gave him plenty to do, he still for over 30 years found time to keep a large stock of show birds, including Yorkshires, Norwich, Mules and Hybrids. He would travel all over the Kingdom with his birds to shows.

Some of his exploits were most romantic, some were savouring of trickiness, some were most bold, fearless, and enterprising, and it was a common thing for him to be at a show in the extreme North, and a telegram would arrive, calling him to the South to come and see the latest young Mule or Hybrid, which promised to become a champion. Off he would go by the next train available, and if the new budding champion satisfied him, he would plank down almost any price they liked to ask to secure it. Twenty, thirty and more sovereigns have been put on the table—thus tempting the breeder or owner to sell.

Only the Very Best Wanted.

Second-raters were no use to John, and he stuck like a leech, once he got his eye on the right stuff, until he secured it. The first-known Canary-Bullfinch to be bred and exhibited was being shown at the Palace show, and friend John went specially down from Liverpool to see it. He was quite satisfied, so he told me, that it was bred from a Scotch Fancy cock and a Bullfinch hen. It cost the old man very large sums to secure all the rarities for very many years.

Some people say a man such as he was is a "deck sweeper," and ruins the Fancy. I do not think so. He might sweep the deck; men with long purses have many times made poorer fanciers and breeders smile with glee when the sovereigns came along, and made them more keen to go in for breeding high-class birds. We cannot do without the moneyed men, any more than in any other enterprise in life, if the Fancy must be a success.

I remember a very crafty trick performed by John at one show at Prescot. A certain Yorkshireman was an exhibitor, and one of the premier judges of those days was officiating. Our old friend was also showing Yorkshires, and these were supposed to have been bought from a first-class breeder and exhibitor of Yorkshires. When the Yorkshireman's exhibits arrived, old John noticed the labels tied on with coloured string, all alike, and in the same position on the cage.

"Oh! I see how he beats me every time, I will do him one this time," said John, so he took the labels off, changed the string, put the string on his own labels and on his own cages in the same position as they arrived on the Yorkshireman's cages. Old John's birds scored well, and the others only did moderate. The old man was pleased with himself, and it was hard to make him believe his birds had won on their merits. I think they did, for I saw them all, and old John's friend from Yorkshire had supplied him with tip-top birds.

Another keen piece of diplomacy he used to operate was to induce, in various ways, fanciers to enter in the Mule and Hybrid classes, so as to get full classes; but when I had collected a very strong team and was able to chase him hard in the Mule classes, John used to try and get me to take one show whilst he took another on the same date. This was done up North for several years, with pecuniary advantage to both parties. For my part I should never have thought to suggest it, but our esteemed "Mule King" of the old days was out always to win all he could. No one could blame him for that.

When the historical undisputed Canary-Bullfinch which was bred by Mr. Wilkinson, of the Conservative Club, Middlesbrough, had got through its first moult, several prominent exhibitors were trying to buy it. I received a wire one morning from Wilkinson stating his lowest price. Wilkinson had also wired friend John Williams. I could not get off and make the journey, but old John found time to do so, and had planted the money on the table and just completed the purchase when my reply wire was handed in to Wilkinson. I was too late. This happened when Liverpool Show was being held, and we both wanted this bird in our team.

The Fate of the Canary-Bullfinch.

The late Mr. Barnesby was judge of Mules and Hybrids that day. The Canary-Bullfinch was in the dark Canary-Mule class. Mr. Barnesby put it out as not being a Canary-Mule. Old John at once went to Mr. W. Hughes, the Sec., and entered it in the class for Hybrids between two British birds. It got 4th. So far it did not do what John wanted it to do. I was 1st and 2nd in the Hybrid class with my Goldfinch-Bullfinch and Greenfinch-Bullfinch respectively, and Mr. Dewar was 3rd, with, I think, a Linnet-Bullfinch.

Mr. Funston, of Liverpool, was one time a great rival to old John in Mule classes, and afterwards whilst they were showing as Funston and Williams they were most formidable. John used to get capable men to moult most of his best birds, and also to wash and get them up for show.

He was a very noticeable figure on the opening day of the Palace show. You would see him waiting at the Sales Office window, often the first there. He had quickly run round the show, and had got his eye on some bird or birds worth picking up and adding to his stock.

One Little Lapse.

Only once did I find him a bit slow. He bought all my best living show birds when I gave up showing a team, except one young promising dark yellow Goldfinch-Canary. I wanted 30s. for it. John declined, saying he wanted them ready for the bench. I moulted this bird and exhibited it at Liverpool under Mr. C. A. House, and he easily won in his class. Old John found he had made a mistake, so he tempted me on until I let him have the bird at his own offer of £7 10s. He won many prizes with him after, including at Crystal Palace.

The Fancy would be all the richer for a few more enthusiasts such as he was, and his memory will ever live in connection with Mule and Hybrid history. Such old-time strong men in the Mule and Hybrid Fancy as Messrs. Crossley, of Kendal, Dewar, Smellie, Mauchan, Pettigrew, Funston, Denny-Hunt, E. Pretty, C. Martin, Fowler, of Halifax, Duncan, Browning, Cross, Blount and Needham etc., could, if they are all alive yet, tell many interesting stories of old John's escapades in the Fancy. We want more of his sort to keep the Fancy strong, for it is the man who is liberal with his money when he sees a good thing that keeps the mare jogging along merrily.

Bird-Room Appliances Explained.

By H. NORMAN (Carshalton).

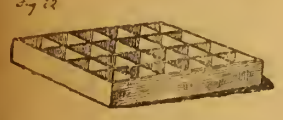
AN egg cabinet, or box with division, is a necessity in a well-managed bird-room. I have seen one or two very daintily-made cabinets on the market, but a nicely made box with divisions answers the purpose equally as well. The one depicted, Fig. 22, is made for 24 pairs—that is, a division for each pair of birds; each division should be numbered, the numbers to correspond with those on the cages. When the hen in No. 5 cage lays the egg is taken out and put in the division marked No. 5, until she has laid sufficient to set her. By the use of this simple arrangement there is no fear of the hen being set on the wrong clutch of eggs, and, of course, where high-class stock is bred, one has to be careful over these matters.

Fig 22



There are many foods upon the market now for the rearing of young birds, and most of them are excellent preparations invented by vendors who understand the requirements of birds, but still the majority of fanciers pin their faith to the old-fashioned method of feeding with hard-boiled eggs and bread crumbs or biscuits. Fig. 23 shows different utensils used for making the mixture. A is made with three pieces of wood upon which is nailed a piece of fine gauze wire or perforated zinc; the egg is pressed through this with the wooden spatula B; some fanciers use the blade of a knife, but I prefer the wood, which can easily be washed and kept handy. One end of A is open, because when used for sifting seed the husks can easily be blown away. C is a round sieve,

Another arrangement at D was much in use some few years ago; it consists of a metal cylinder, with a perforated interior, and a wooden plug. The egg is placed in the cylinder and forced through the perforations with the plug. Although this is a very admirable arrangement, it is not quite so easily cleaned as the others, and as cleanliness is so very important, especially during the breeding season, it is scarcely so popular.

At Fig. 24, B, is shown a proper mincing machine, which can be used for egg, bread, biscuit, or anything else; these mincers are particularly useful for grinding up biscuit; one can grind several pounds and store it in a tin for use as required. A is a handy little seed mill now on the market, and one the fancier frequently makes use of for cracking hemp, sunflower, etc.

We now come to the bathing arrangements. The bath is a wonderful conditioner, and frequent bathing, particularly in the summer, is almost as necessary as food. A bird that is a little bit down will frequently brighten up after a splash or two.

The bath should always be made use of in the morning and taken off at mid-day. Metal baths are not quite so much used as formerly, but the one shown at Fig 25, A, is still popular where just a bird or two are kept. At B are depicted two forms of glazed baths, a square one, and an oblong; the latter is made in two or three sizes, and is mostly used in aviaries. The square one is placed in the bath cage shown at C, and hung on to the doorway of the cage. When these bath cages are first purchased they should be thoroughly painted, or they soon become rotten and useless; see that they are made large enough.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

TO lay down a rule and say that cocks should be fed on equal proportions of canary and rape seed is wrong; they should be dieted in accordance with their temperament, and the use that is intended for them. I have no desire to coerce anyone into my views on the feeding of the cock birds; let each one study the subject for himself, for because so and so says this, or so and so feeds his birds in such and such a manner is no criterion that it is a correct method.

I have been in some breeders' rooms during the autumn, when an old bird's song should be at its best, having just finished the moult, and have found them in rank song, so rank that in one room the birds kept repeating two or three tours, and it was only occasionally that they would bring their full complement. The cause was not far to seek, as they were being dieted on a mixture of canary and rape. Where a number of cocks are kept together in one room, their song will become rank quite soon enough without the aid of canary seed.

Keeping the Voice Low and Sweet.

My experiments prove to me that the best staple diet to keep a bird's voice sweet and low is best German summer rape seed alone, and in cases where this is found not to be sufficiently nourishing, a little egg-food, or mixed seed may be added, as necessity demands.

Cocks can be placed under three headings in respect of treatment. First, those required solely as stock birds. Second, those for stock, and afterwards as tutors; and third, those required solely as tutors. The first will require a treatment that differs very little from that given to the hens, as their singing qualifications are only a secondary consideration, the object will be to bring them into vigorous condition at the time they are needed for breeding. They can be allowed to fly in the flights until the end of January, amongst the hens, caging them off separately the first week in February, or earlier if it is made necessary by their becoming pugnacious and coming into breeding condition. Those that come forward too early should be induced to "wait awhile," by curtailing the egg-food and mixed seed; increasing the quantity to that advised for the hens on the approach of the breeding season. No benefit will be derived by darkening the cages of the cocks.

The bird that is wanted for a stock bird, and afterwards for a tutor, should be treated a little differently to number one. During the time it is not in the breeding cage, it should be kept in a song cage and cabinet, or a shutter cage, the doors being kept closed or partially closed, and opened out to full daylight for a period not exceeding one hour each day. The staple diet should consist of the best German summer rape seed, but small quantities of egg food and mixed seeds may be given occasionally; it is not advisable to lay down a rule as to the quantities and periods when these extras should be given. The fancier will ascertain this, for the temperature of the room and the different temperaments of individual birds will have to be taken into consideration.

It is not absolutely necessary that the tutor should sing for youngsters before it moults, as its song will be quieter and steadier afterwards. Of course it is advisable to place the youngsters under tuition as early as possible, and the best singer should only be allowed for them, so a little care will be required with the bird that is to be used in the breeding cage, and afterwards as a tutor.

There are two objects in view with this bird; firstly, to bring it into breeding condition, yet not to feed so liberally that the value of the song would be greatly impaired. Some fanciers do not advise that a bird should be kept with the sole object of using it as a tutor; they contend that using it in the breeding cage will reduce the bird's stamina, so that it will afterwards sing quietly enough to be used as a tutor. This may be correctly said of the few, but with the majority a rich stimulating diet that is required to bring the bird into breeding condition will be found to have a detrimental effect on the quality of the song.

Take Care of the Classical Song.

The song of a classical singer is too valuable to be lightly dealt with, either by feeding on stimulating foods, or allowing it to remain for any length of time in the company of inferior singers, or under the baneful influence of the calls of the breeding hens. The voice of a bird when in rank breeding condition is invariably pitched in a high key, and it appears to delight in repeating two or three of the higher toned tours, and, dwelling on its faulty passages, will deliver them as objectionably as possible.

It is difficult to keep the voice in the normal tone in the warm weather, and one of the chief difficulties is to provide a suitable tutor at the time the earliest bred youngsters are finishing the moult, which will generally be in August. In our endeavour to maintain the low, sweet, well-connected style of song, the diet should be the best quality German summer rape seed. Canary seed cannot be used with impunity, and where the bird keeps in good health and song it should not be given at all. A little egg food may be given occasionally, also a spray of green food, grit, and fresh clean drinking water daily; an occasional spray with chilled water would be beneficial.

This method of keeping and feeding a tutor would not prevent it from being used to breed with in the height of the breeding season, but it is very doubtful if it would fertilise the eggs earlier. We are all eager to produce something from our best singer, and if this could be done without any injury to the bird's song by carrying out the following simple instructions. The selected hen for this cock should be fed in the usual way to bring her into breeding condition. Give her a lined nest pan and a supply of nesting material, and when she commences to build a nest, take the cock into the breeding room, and run him into the hen's cage. After copulation has taken place, he should be immediately run back into the song cage, and taken out of the breeding room.

Fertilising the Eggs.

I have had on several occasions this year hens that have evinced the desire for copulation, on the first sight of the cock, before he was placed into the hen's cage. Whether this one intercourse will fertilise the eggs or not we have no means of ascertaining at the time, because it is often difficult to judge when she will lay her first egg; so the cock should be placed once each day, or on alternate days, until the first egg is laid. If repeated until the second or the third egg is laid, it would give every opportunity for the whole clutch to become fertilised. It is usual for four days to elapse from the first introduction of the cock before fertile eggs are produced.

On occasions I have had hens lay the first eggs before the cock had been run with them, and as soon as I have perceived this, I put the cocks with them. Their second eggs in each case were unfertile, but the third and fourth eggs have been fertile. The hen will go to nest and sit where the cock is used in this manner, just as though they were allowed to remain together as is customary in some instances, or again in others until the morning the fourth egg is laid.

Should the hen be known to be a good mother, allow her to rear her own young; otherwise, at the end of eight or nine days, test the eggs to see if they are good, and if you have a good feeding hen due to hatch about the same time—a day or two either way will make no difference—exchange their eggs; or the eggs of the common bred hen could be destroyed, and the better hen allowed to go on and lay again. Follow the above instructions as regards the use of the cock when she commences to build her second nest.

The Case of the "Sweating" Hen.

In the course of the fancier's breeding experiences, a case of a "sweating hen" will sooner or later occur in his breeding room. Probably the first thing that will appeal to him will be how he is to diagnose the complaint, and its cause, rather than to learn that the term "a sweating hen" is a misnomer. It is generally believed that the Canary has no sweat glands, as we understand the term, and for this reason it is held that the Canary does not perspire.

Probably I have given a little more attention to this subject than the majority of fanciers, and the term appears to me to be an appropriate one, because a novice in Canary matters is able to discriminate between the bird troubled with "sweating," and one that is suffering from any other illness. It has been the subject of debate on many occasions amongst the older fanciers, and individual differences of opinion still remain. By some the cause is attributed to the use of a certain pattern of nest-pan, by others to a particular kind of nesting material, and another view is that it arises from the young birds. To deal with these in the order named, we have the wooden nest-box, another of similar construction, with the exception that it has a perforated zinc bottom, the half of a coco-nut shell, the wicker, the leather, the zinc, and a later invention is the earthenware pan, now so popular. It is thought by some that none of these nest-pans allows sufficient ventilation to circulate into the nest, and therefore they give rise to "sweating." Later we got the German open wirework nest-pan, which would allow of all the ventilation that would be necessary—assuming that want of ventilation was the cause—yet the complaint still continues. These wire nests may do much to relieve, but they will not prevent or cure the trouble.

To any not conversant with the use of these wire nests, it should be noted that a lining—swansdown for preference—should be sewn in them before using, and only a small quantity of nesting material should be given, say, as much as will roll to the size of a pigeon's egg. This would not be given for the hen to build a nest with, but rather as a guide to the fancier to ascertain the hen's condition; but I believe I have touched on this elsewhere. The reason I advocate so small a quantity of nesting material is because these wire nests are too small to comfortably accommodate a nest of four or five well-nourished youngsters, a typical instance of the maker of an article being less conversant with its requirements than the one who has to use it.

Two Hens Lay in the Same Nest

And Sit on the Top of Each Other.

Sir,—We have a strange thing happening in our aviary. We have a German hen and a Norwich hen both laying and sitting in one nest. They have each four eggs (eight eggs in the one nest). The German hen, being the lesser bird, sits next the eggs, and the other one on the top of the German! I wonder if any fancier has known of such a thing before. We are afraid if we were to disturb them they might leave the eggs altogether.

Wood Pigeon Decapitated by Telephone Wires.

Sir,—I was an eye-witness to a rather remarkable thing on April 23rd. While standing at the back door about dinner time, I noticed a pair of wood pigeons flying at a great pace. The telephone wires from the next flat stretch across a piece of waste land to a telephone pole some 50 yards away. The pigeons flew straight at them. One cleared them by rising quickly, but the other did not notice the danger until within some three or four yards of them, when he brought the whole of his wing and tail surface up to the wind in a vain attempt to stay his progress. But he hit the wires in an upright position. The force of the impact severed the head from the body, which I picked up some fifteen yards away on the opposite side of the wires. I was unable to find the head at all, although I searched carefully. Have any readers of your excellent paper, Cage Birds, which I take in every week, seen or heard of anything like this?

Sir,—Forgive me taking the liberty of writing to you, but I must tell you what a fine book is "Canary Breeding for Beginners." I have followed out the instructions given therein, and the result is four young Canaries in my first nest. The cock is a Maltese bird; he has a different song to a Norwich. The young are the first to be hatched in the Grays district, and I am only sixteen. The Nightingale has already been heard around this district, and the Swallow has appeared. I have found a Swallow's nest with two eggs in it; I think this is rather early. I should like to start a cage-bird society in Grays. We have a population in Grays of about 16,000, and not a club for birds of any sort. I think Cage Birds Annual is the best book ever published for 6d on birds.

Is the Novice of To-day "Coddled" Over-much?

A Reply from Mr. Allsopp.

Sir,—I am glad to observe yet another novice has been stung into having something to say for himself, and seeing he dubs himself "Despised Novice," too, it seems without doubt that he admits he is one of those of whom I wrote "they toil not, neither do they spin, and exist in the Fancy just for what they can grab, easily." 'Tis merely this class of novice I heartily despise, and I have not failed to say so. If the cap fits "Despised Novice," and maybe others, and has awakened some sense of shame within them, I am delighted, and hope it will be "continued in our next," and even longer, for 'tis just what I have been working for. I was, in fact, nearly getting disappointed that no one, excepting myself, seemed interested.

"Despised Novice" hastens to assure W. McK that all "Welsh fanciers" are not like me. I expect the particular point he has in mind is that what I write from time to time is not cloaked with a "nom de plume," but is fearlessly put before the Fancy, whom I challenge by so doing to prove any of my statements ridiculous, false, or even worthless. Were I to arrogate to myself, by thought or expression, that my stock never produced a percentage of weeds and wasters (not of the "Welsh Queen" type though) then I should expect the Fancy to promptly tell me that I was an impostor and a humbug. It is to be regretted that neither "Mr. Mc. K." nor "Despised Novice" has confined his attentions to any debatable feature which may have appeared in the articles I have written; both have contented themselves with abuse and innuendo, neither of which is argument, nor likely to help the Fancy to progress a little bit, and is the more despicable when hurled behind the shelter of a nom de plume. Clean arguments, above-board, I simply thrive upon, and welcome, but letters of the "W. Mc.K." and "Despised Novice" order hardly seem worth the candle.

As to what I may have bred since I migrated to Cardiff (five years), show catalogues, and the experiences of those to whom I have sold winners and stock from which they have bred winners will more eloquently reply than I wish to. Satisfactory, I view it, though always upon a modest scale; and what is more, I have never declared it otherwise than a modest scale.

E. W. Allsopp.

Sir,—Mr Allsopp should not try to ride roughshod over the novices. Of course, I did not try either to drive him to his kennel, nor yet to muzzle him, but we cannot allow his thoughts and pen to run riot without a protest. I rather like his breezy style of writing, and will grant him credit for being a satirist, but not a humorist: but, then, being a Scotchman, perhaps I cannot detect the humour. I have no wish to hurt any Welsh fancier's feelings, and am sorry if my letter conveyed that impression. Well, Mr. Allsopp and fellow fanciers, may you all breed more birds than you care to, and, Mr. Editor, may your circulation be as large as you can cope with for years and years to come.

A Homing Siskin Mule

Spends the Day in Epping Forest.

Sir,—A friend of mine, living within 100 yards of Epping Forest, in the Chingford neighbourhood, has a cock Siskin Mule which is liberated each morning about 9 a.m., when it flies right into the Forest, returning at evening through the open window into its cage hanging on the kitchen wall. As the bird has been doing this daily for some considerable time now, it clearly goes to prove that it has no dread of a cage, and is perfectly happy and contented. I have heard of birds doing this sort of thing once or twice, but not keeping it up day after day, as this bird does. On one occasion he evidently got too far off to reach home before dark, but he was there very soon after daybreak, and seemed quite pleased to have reached home again.

The Sad Loss of a Noted Scottish Fancier.

Sir,—I was very pleased to read in Cage Birds the good fanciers are trying to do for Mr. Moreland and his son. But I would like to see a better response coming from the Falkirk District. Mr. Moreland has sent his big hamper with twenty birds in it to all the club shows in Stirlingshire, and he does not forget the rest in Scotland. He has done a lot for the fanciers in Falkirk, and the only way to pay Hughie back is by putting our hands in our pockets. Here is a chance for true bird fanciers in Falkirk. It will not be Mr. Rennie's fault if he does not get a big sum, for he is always there if there is any good to be done.

A Bell.

Sir, I was very pleased to see the several letters under the above heading, also the generous and practical offer from the proprietors of the "Filup Feeder." I also thank you for your appended footnote to my letter on the subject, and I am sure you merit the thanks and appreciation of the entire Fancy for your kindness in opening a Cage Birds fund on behalf of our old friend Mr. Moreland. I understand that a local fund in support of your own has been organised by Mr. Rennie, Secretary of Falkirk and District C.B.S. (of which club Mr. Moreland is one of the original members), the idea, I suppose, of this move being that by a local personal canvass quite a number of contributors could be reached who otherwise might be unfortunately overlooked. I sincerely wish both efforts the success that ought to be theirs for such a commendable cause. In the meantime I am glad to enclose my donation of 5s. to Cage Birds fund. Of course, opportunity, I daresay, will be forthcoming locally of giving further. Thank you very much for being so good as to open your valuable medium for discussion on the matter, and the great interest you have personally taken.

When I Was a Novice, About 15 Years Ago, in London.

Sir,—Seeing in your valuable paper, Cage Birds, so much about the novice has put me in mind of when I first started in the Canary world. Unfortunately, travelling about, I have been unable always to continue. In the beginning I bought a whole nest of common Canaries, chancing the sex, for 12s., and sold out three which were cocks at 7s. 6d. The hen I kept to run for songsters. I then bought, as I know now, a faulty Crestbred cock; then I felt I must have a plunge for a Crested hen, so I hied myself over to the same house, in Peckham, and found a hen for a moderate sum; then I bought a cock which was a half-Roller for the other hen. Then I got to work, for having read up all I could about Canaries I had got a decent bit of knowledge. The birds paired well and hatched three from the Crests and four from the songsters, when I was offered a hen to run with the half-Roller, and being eager, I bought it. Yes, and I bought something else, for, having put it up in the bird-room, I was surprised to find the Crested hen dead in cage, and cock refusing to feed the young. My wife and I took it in turns to hand-feed, and the young ones would have us at it early morning. The cock went next, so I sent him for post mortem; next morning another, so sent that off too, and got a wire, "Isolate at once, bird fever." All parent birds died, but I saved all the youngsters. That didn't damp my ardour, and I went in again, but, as I said, I had to give up through moving, as I had to go where sent by my employer. After a time things became more settled, so I, or the wife I should say, as she is as birdy as myself, was offered a bird which, the rev. gentleman who made the gift told me was bred wild in China, and for which he had to give the same price as here for songsters, a Chinese cock and a good Norwich hen. I am told that of all his friends to whom he had presented a Chinese bird I was the only one who had any results. I found that the progeny from these were longer coming on to seed, and out of three nests, eleven in all we reared only five (two are lovely songsters). The Chinese is a rattling feeder or else we should not have reared any. I also dropped on two Norwich hens from a man who was giving up (a novice), and from another a double yellow Norwich cock. One of these hens I used with the Chinese; the Norwich cock I ran with the two Norwich hens, both of which are from the same strain. I have bred out some of the faults in the cock, and have three of the best paired up with the two old buff hens and a lovely green (not quite self), so I am hoping to have something towards the show bench, not this season. I still have the Chinese, and am trying with the daughter to see if the youngsters are any better in coming on to seed. I think it was the cock not being acclimatised to this country. His note at beginning is like the Roller (have any been let loose in China?). Seeing in Cage Birds, which I have regularly, so much about egg bread, etc., I may say I have found nothing better than new laid eggs and Osborne biscuit. My advice to novices is to go to a breeder of note and get a pair with the blood, even if rough, and see the results. Ask him to point out their relative faults; then you have something to go on, and it will be a pleasure to see what you can do. Read up in Cage Birds the letters of every fancier who is kind enough to give his own experience; that is where the knowledge is to be got, and you will have the shows to compare your own with.

The Champion Heavyweight of the British Wagtails.

Sir,—I was much interested in Mr. J. Craig's letter, for which I beg to thank him; I may add that I am always grateful to anyone who can tell me anything interesting about birds, because I am a learner. When I spoke of the Grey Wagtail as the "Champion Heavy-weight," I did not mean that it actually weighed more than the Pied but that, of the three Wagtails in the heavy-weight class (the Grey, Pied and White), it was the most doughty warrior. I see that Mr. Craig doubts this. Perhaps some other reader will give us his opinion. I think the statement was correct for this district, because one summer I made a collection of photos of the bridges over the River Teign, and thus had an excellent opportunity of noting that almost every bridge had its pair of Greys, and, as the ivy that covers the masonry is the favourite nesting site of both species, it looks as if—in this district at all events—the Pied had been compelled to give the Grey best. I have a note that the Grey weighs 5drms., but I have no note of the weight of the Pied; perhaps some reader can supply this. Though rather shorter than the Grey, it is apparently, as Mr. Craig points out, stouter in the body. I expect that Mr. Craig is also right in saying that it has the larger egg; according to Saunders it measures .8in. by .6in., and that of the Grey Wagtail .75in. by .55in.

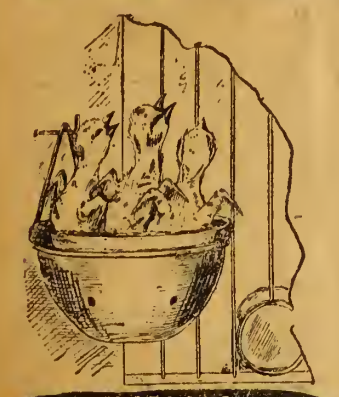
THE 'FILUP' FEEDER

FREE TRIAL FOR 14 DAYS'.



The most sanitary and up-to-date method ever invented for hand-feeding all young birds.
It has been supplied to all the most prominent bird breeders in Great Britain; also to South Africa, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, America, India, and places too numerous to mention.
Unsolicited testimonials have been received from Fanciers who have saved and reared their best birds with this Feeder, and many noted exhibition birds owe their existence to it.

We are again making the above offer of 14 days' Free Trial, to give all bird breeders on opportunity of testing in their own bird-room the merits of the "Filup" Feeder. It's no use waiting until your hens stop feeding before you send for one. Breeders! You should have one ready to hand, and directly you see a hen shown signs of flagging in her feeding, you should at once help her with the "Filup," and in a day or two she will once more commence her duties with extra energy. Have you not noticed how weak and backward your young birds very often look first thing in the morning? Well, the reason is simple enough—their crops are not full enough overnight to keep their strength up until the morning. Every breeder should go round the whole of his young birds before dusk, and, if their crops are not full he should at once use the "Filup" on them, which only takes one minute to completely satisfy a whole nest of youngsters. You will then note a remarkable difference in their condition in the morning. They will be strong enough to let the hen know they want more food. But should you neglect to feed them overnight, you will find the majority are too weak to open their mouths even if the hen tries to feed them. They then gradually get weaker, and at last they rest in the dustbin.

Young birds are let die in thousands in this way simple because you neglect them while they are strong and can be kept strong by a little hand-feeding at the proper time.

Send P.O. for 1/3, and if sent back within 14 days your money will be returned.

Extracts from some letters received:—

Sheffield. The Feeder I had from you was a great success; all my best youngsters were reared with its aid. — G. L. SAMPSON, Bracken Moor, Deepcar.

London.—Send me another "Filup" Feeder. I keep selling mine to people, when they see me feeding young birds with it.—J. TAYLOR, 4, Whitehall Place.

London.—I find your little invention a great boon, and have already saved four of my young birds whose mother had deserted them.—JOHN ASPINALL, 44, Fitzwilliam Road, Clapham.

Worksop. Please send me another Feeder, they are just the thing for hand-feeding.—P. J., New Cottages, Scotland Farm.

Sittingbourne.—The "Filup" Feeder has just saved me four nice young ones already, so if I go on at this rate it will be worth its weight in gold.—P. GYFORD.

Plymouth.—I have 24 young ones doing for themselves, and I can safely say if it was not for your wonderful Feeder I should not have a feather, much less young ones.—W. A. DYER, Assistant Sec., W.C.O.S.

Northampton.—Your Feeder is a splendid idea and invaluable in the bird-room.—A. NIND, 48, Denmark Road.

Colchester.—Kindly despatch another Feeder. I consider them great; no one who keeps birds should be without one.—GEO. WALTON, Cavalry Barracks.

Stoke-on-Trent.—Please send another Feeder. I lent mine to a fellow fancier, and he has reared 14 young ones with it.—H. TEESE, 21, New Street, Longton.

Carlisle.—I used your Feeder last season and found it extremely useful.—F. F. LAWSON, 14, Pegin Street.

Uddingston.—I am sending for another Feeder for a fellow fancier, to whom I recommended it as an extra handy article in life-saving of many a young Canary.—H. DONNAN, Bankhead.

Walthamstow.—Your Feeder saved me at least 8 youngsters this month.—H. T. JONES, 21, Worcester Road.

Burton-on-Trent.—I think the Feeder A1, and no breeder ought to be without one. I shall certainly recommend them whenever I have the opportunity.—W. EAGLE, 65, Hunter Street.

Flint.—Both Feeders arrived safe, and one was at work in less than 10 minutes, and it knocks the old way with the match into top hats. Anyone can use them, they are so easy to work.—R. EDWARDS, Little Island.

Penzance.—I must let you know how pleased I am with the Feeder. I lost 12 before I had it, but have reared 9 since, saving 4 of my best birds. I have recommended it to all fanciers here, and would not be without it for ten times the amount paid for it.—E. HOCKING, 4, Roberts Place.

Staffordshire.—Kindly send another Feeder by return. I am highly pleased with the idea.—C. DURKIN, 9, Knappers Gate, Newcastle, Staffs.

Guildford.—Thank you very much for sending the "Filup" Feeder so promptly. I will certainly tell my friends the value of it for all young birds.—L. YALDEN, St. Nicholas Rectory.

Wolverhampton.—I left my little boy to look after my young birds with the "Filup" Feeder, and he has reared them with it to 5 weeks old. I think it is a splendid invention and so simple to use.—S. PRESTON, 228, Dudley Road.

London.—Enclosed P.O. for another of your Feeders, which are a great success in rearing young birds.—R. S. LEIGH, 19, Danvers Street, Chelsea.

Dollar, N.B.—The Feeders are invaluable, as hardly any of my birds feed. Before I had your Feeder I lost a great number.—S. A. MACQUEEN, Hillfoot.

Plymouth.—I find your Feeder a most excellent contrivance, and feed many birds with it. I give nearly all a turn from it.—K. H. JONES, Seymour Park.

London. Kindly forward two more "Filup" Feeders. I am more than pleased with the results.—R. J. BURT, Princess Road, Notting Hill.

Hove.—I consider your "Filup" Feeder is invaluable to anyone interested in birds. — W. MANTON, 31, Princess Road.

Wigan.—The "Filup" Feeder you sent me is grand, and no fancier should be without one.—H. YOUNG, 9, Fitzadam Street.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—I would not be without a "Filup" Feeder now for anything. I found it most useful when a hen was not feeding. Fanciers about here are full of praise of your Feeder. All my young have been fed with it some time or other, and are doing well.—W. CURRY, 60, Grosvenor Gardens.

Edinburgh.—Kindly send me on another Feeder as I had to let another fancier have mine; he would not go away without it.—J. ANDREW, 11, Dean Park Street.

Sheffield.—I am recommending your Feeder to my fellow fanciers, and think it a splendid invention.—R. SMITH, 345, Shalesmoor.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Your Feeder has got a grand name about here, they are doing well.—J. R. WATSON, 29, Stone Street.

Ulverston.—I cannot do without your Feeder. I find it A1.—MRS. R. STOREY, 11, Lightburn Rd.

Padiham.—They are simply champion for feeding young birds.—R. MANNION, 5, Wheat Street.

Bolton.—Every breeder ought to have one, they are really valuable in the bird-room.—JAS. NELSON, 81, Bury New Road.

A Novel Item. At the Hornsey and Wood Green Society's young bird show, during the evening one of the members showed a Yorkshire Canary that had been fed and reared entirely by hand with the use of the "Filup" Feeder. He gave a demonstration how the feeder was used, the bird still evidencing a strong regard for its "foster-mother." The bird was 23 days old, and created a deal of interest.—CAGE BIRDS, 1913.

Send P.O. for 1 3 to Sole Manufacturers, C. H. GOODMAN & Co., 24, Bedford Rd., Kempston, BEDFORD.

More Eggs Laid Joined Together.

SIR,—I see in last week's CAGE BIRDS that Mr. P. J. Brown has had a hen laid two eggs joined together, and he wants to know if any other breeder has had the same. Yes; I had a Yorkshire hen that laid two joined just the same on May 24, 1912.

Two Saucy Nesting Sites.

SIR,—From time to time we read of curious nesting places, and I thought this one worthy of note. Last week a friend of mine went to a field to bring to the station an engine which had been in use some few weeks ago, sawing timber, and in the axle of the wheel was a Blackbird's nest containing three eggs. Further, one of the men working with this engine had left his coat hanging up, and a Wren had built in one of the pockets! Yet the birds had fields and coppices all around them. I thought this very funny.

The Birds in a Dunfermline Beauty Spot.

Sir,—Pittencrief Glen is indeed a pleasure to visit, and the flowers in the glass-houses are worth seeing; but it was the birds that attracted me to the Glen, and a few notes on these may be of interest to your readers. The large aviary (about twenty feet square) has a big open space turfed (this was being energetically overhauled by the inmates) and a sheltered space with shrubs growing in it, and contains the following native birds, all in good feather and enjoying their roomy quarters:—Linnet, Goldfinch, Chaffinch, Greenfinch, Redpoll, Yellowhammer, Reed Bunting, Canary, Lark, Bramblefinch, and a Pied Wagtail. The latter followed me all round the inside of his aviary, "asking for more," after tasting the introductory tit-bit I had thrown in.

In a corner away from the smaller birds (a wise thought) are a pair of Brown Owls (one of whom came down and "whee-whee'd" to me when I spoke to him), a Buzzard, and a big Raven, his sombre black brightened up by the purple sheen. A Sparrow-Hawk (who preened himself next the netting, undisturbed by my scrutiny) and a pair of Pheasants complete the list of native birds. The Pigeon lover is well provided for, as there are specimens of many kinds—Fantails, Magpies, Archangels, Jacobins, etc., and several pairs of Ring-doves, sleepy as usual. The Peacocks and Peahens strutting about the grounds afford the children a host of delight. Beyond two pairs of Australian Green Budgerigars, the Foreign Section is neglected, unless we include the several beautiful Gold and Silver Pheasants, the deep rich crimson and lustrous gold of the one showing up in splendid contrast with the jet black and intense white of the other. These birds are able to raise the neck feathers at will, a very curious trait. The Glen is teeming with the commoner varieties of our native birds, and there is a good-sized bird sanctuary in the grounds, with open top and plenty of sheltered perches inside. With such surroundings aviculturists have the nucleus of what could be made a splendid collection, which would be both a source of pleasure and of much educative value.

The Border Fancy Canary in the South.

SIR,—I was very pleased to see in CAGE BIRDS the model of the Border Fancy Canary which Mr. Norman so kindly gave, and which has been accepted by the Southern Border Fancy Club. I feel sure most of the members are glad to know what type of Border they are to strive to breed and exhibit in the future. This past season some (and not a few) have found it very difficult to know which is the correct type of bird, for one judge goes for a rather slim bird and says others are too stout; the next week, under another judge, the exhibitor is told his birds are too slim and long. What I hope the secretary and committee will do is to give the judge, no matter who he is, or what pet type he has of his own, instructions to judge the birds to the club's standard. The Borders in the South have come on splendidly, and no longer will anything do; we have a right to demand a fair share in the good things in the way of specials given by different societies. Also I trust the committee of the Club, when deciding which show shall have the patronage of the S.B.F.C., will, as far as possible bar all shows which have a two shilling entry fee for a 10s. 6d. first prize, or three prizes given, for 1, like others, consider two shillings too much for the average exhibitor.

MODEL.

A Good Nestful.

SIR,—I was quite surprised on receiving my paper, CAGE BIRDS, last week to find that two of the birds I bred last year had the honour of being depicted on the front page. The buff hen I sold to Mr. Saunders early in the season, and she won him many honours. The yellow cock, 1st Portsmouth, was one of four yellow cocks in the same nest; three out of the four turned out to be winners. He has also gone to the same stable as the buff hen. It is a great credit to your artist, Mr. Norman, for the life-like picture of both. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

Is the Cuckoo Reforming?

The Problem of Its Eggs and Young.

SIR,—In CAGE BIRDS of July 26th, 1913, I remember it was stated that "On the estate of Colonel A. M. Blake, at Welwyn, Herts, two young Cuckoos have been found with the parent birds in attendance. This, it is said, is the third successive year that Cuckoos have brought up their young at Welwyn." There was no nest found. If the eggs were laid on the ground and the young ones hatched, they would both be reared together, but if there was a nest one of the young Cuckoos would eject the other. Other instances are on record of the Cuckoo hatching its own eggs and rearing its own young. On the 16th of May, 1888, Herr Adolf Muller, a German, was crossing a wood, when a Cuckoo started from almost under his feet. He examined the ground carefully, and discovered beneath a tussock of grass, in a little hollow, three eggs. There was no nest. Another Cuckoo was seen feeding a young one while in the nest, but the foster-parents were also in attendance. The Nightjar, however, is sometimes mistaken for the Cuckoo. According to the above the Cuckoo lays from two to three eggs to the clutch, which goes dead against the idea that the Cuckoo lays from seventeen to twenty-two eggs in a season. It may be argued that when the Cuckoo is not hatching its own eggs and rearing its own young, it will lay more eggs. That may be quite true, but if it laid from seventeen to twenty-two in a season it would soon be laid out. For many years I have been trying to find out how many eggs a Cuckoo lays in a season, and I have come to the conclusion that it lays from three to five, judging from the number of eggs and young Cuckoos I have seen in a given district. In 1913, Mr. Robert Kennedy, Beith, saw 37 Meadow Pipits' nests, and in these only one Cuckoo's egg. The Cuckoo generally deposits her egg in the nest of the Meadow Pipit in Scotland. He also found a Whinchat's nest with a Cuckoo's egg. It is rare for the Cuckoo to deposit her egg in the nest of this species here (Beith). The Cuckoo's egg was about the same size and colour as that of the Skylark (the usual type in this district). He also saw twelve Yellow Buntings' nests, and most of these contained three eggs, while none had five. He also saw eight Skylarks' nests, and most of these contained three eggs; none had five. Mr. Kennedy saw 100 nests, with 371 eggs altogether, last year.

Why Are Hedge Sparrows' Eggs Blue?

SIR,—We see some curious opinions expressed in some of the daily newspapers on bird life generally, and the one given in your last week's issue on the reasons for the colour of the Hedge Sparrow's egg is no exception to the rule. Last summer I was walking through a plantation and saw a Hedge Sparrow exhibiting signs of distress, by its well-known wings and tail fluttering, and uttering its shrill call note fretfully and painfully. I looked about for the cause and found its nest very low, almost on the ground, and a hedgehog was busy sucking the eggs. The intruder in this case didn't appear to be startled at the colour of the eggs, for he seemed to have no more respect for them, or their owner, than I have for my neighbour's cat. The hedgehog is evidently colour-blind! By the way, if grazing animals are so startled by bright colours that they cause them to withdraw, how is it that the saying "holding a red rag to a bull" has become so universally proverbial? But, really, some of the nature writers in daily papers say things that do credit to their own observations. A week ago I saw an account in a local paper of the Grey Wagtail, and the writer said it was a summer visitor. Apropos of Wagtails, I should say Mr. Craig was right in his opinion that the nest found in a ploughed field was a Yellow Wagtail's. That is the usual nesting site of the Yellow Lamster, as it is locally called.

An Auspicious Beginning.

SIR,—I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for a number of years, and seeing the notes of different fanciers about their birds, I should like them to know that I had a nest of five hatched on March 27, five birds from five eggs. I have fed them on the recipe given in CAGE BIRDS of March 14, by Mr. J. Steel, of Dalkeith; and I might tell you that they are all doing well. One of them began to sing on Friday, April 25. Such a good result comes from articles in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. I might tell you it is the recipe with 4ozs. of cod liver oil in the cake; I made the latter myself.

W. WILSON.

A Soldier Bird-lover in India.

SIR,—I have CAGE BIRDS come out here every week, and I have gained plenty of knowledge reading it which will be useful to me when I return home again. I must congratulate you on the splendid Coloured Plates which keep appearing in your paper. I bought two Canaries last week, which came from China, and I am going to try breeding with them, but it will be under difficulties, as the breeding cage will be made out of a soap box, with small mesh wire netting on the front. I am hopeful of success, however, as I think the experience gained by reading CAGE BIRDS will carry me through. I am hand-rearing three young Rock Parrots, which are getting on finely, and I expect them to pick up by next week. I reared two Mynahs last year, and gave them to a fellow going home. They could talk nearly as good as a Parrot, and they landed quite safe in England. The Mynahs are just beginning to build again, and they remind you of the English Starling as they fly under the tin roof of the bungalow with bits of straw in their beaks. They will feed on almost anything, and they love a bit of raw steak. The birds out here are not to be compared with those at home as regards singing; the Linnet would beat the lot of them put together. Wish your valuable paper every success.

Rooks Deserted Beith Manse But Have Come Back.

SIR,—Rooks deserted the rookery at The Manse, Beith, about the 21st of April, 1913, owing to a Carrion Crow visiting the rookery. The Rooks must have had young ones, and it takes a good deal to make a bird forsake its young. After the Rooks deserted their nests they did not perch on the trees at The Manse for some weeks, but they began to roost there about the beginning of August, which indicates they had not nested at any other place during the interval, and there were no young ones accompanying them. They left again about the beginning of September. No doubt they went to Caldwell, their usual winter quarters; Caldwell is about five miles south-east of Beith. The Rooks have this spring again been busy building at The Manse, and their further movements will be watched with interest. The Carrion Crow may be distinguished from the Rook by its rather larger size, stouter bill, and the bristly feathers at the base of the bill, where the adult Rook has none. The call notes, too, are more pronounced (or coarser), and are uttered more rapidly than those of the Rook. From two to six caws are uttered in succession, three being the most frequent. This latter is the best all-round test of identity in a wild state. The Carrion Crow devours a great many eggs and young birds. Although the Rook is not blameless in that respect, it is not nearly so bad as its sable relative.

Show Dates on the Tyne-side.

SIR,—I see by last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS that the Wallsend Society have changed the date of their annual show so as not to clash with Blaydon, and on behalf of the members of the Blaydon Society I sincerely thank the Wallsend members. I hardly think, however, that Mr. Greenwell, the Wallsend secretary, has put the case fairly in his report to your paper. With regard to Blaydon show dates: Since our commencement and up to and including 1912, our show has always been held on the first Friday and Saturday in November. Last year, 1913, as there was no local open show, our members fixed the show dates on the second Friday and Saturday in November, the 14th and 15th of the month. Mr. Greenwell is quite right when he says our show last year was held on the third Saturday, but, as most fanciers know, Blaydon show is a two days' show; that being so, our show was held on the second Friday and Saturday in November. Will Mr. Greenwell please note. As for this year's dates, at a meeting held on Dec. 13th, 1913, it was decided to hold our show on the second Friday and Saturday in November, (13th and 14th), and I may say that announcement was in the next week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, namely, Dec. 20. I am sorry that the Wallsend fanciers did not notice the same, or I am sure they would not have fixed on the same date as Blaydon. In conclusion I may say that we at Blaydon have no desire either to crib, or clash with, other local societies' dates, as we know what a struggle it is to keep our heads above water.

Hon. Sec. Blaydon C.B.S.

The Deposit System Recommended.

SIR,—I see a letter from "Once Bitten" recommending the deposit system. It is a well-known fact that if anyone has anything to sell there is no better medium than either CAGE BIRDS or POULTRY WORLD, and the adverts. therein are eagerly read by thousands. Some, unfortunately, are dishonest. Only a fortnight ago I had the pleasure of learning through the police that a man I had supplied with eggs at Burnley was doing hard labour for 3 months. He was a stranger to me, but sent false references. It is a very difficult thing to know who is to be trusted nowadays, for on April 1st I wrote to a man at Mildenhall whom I had had birds from several times. I enclosed the money as usual, and heard nothing. I have since written three postcards and two letters and can get no reply. He is still advertising the same birds, and probably receiving money from others, but his game will be stopped as soon as I get a reply from the Chief Constable. This incident shows that the safe way to do business is to take advantage of the deposit system, even if it does cost a little more. It is much wiser to spend an extra 6d. and get the birds, than save it and lose all.

The Fertility of Eggs.

SIR,—A discussion arose between a friend and myself, the question being: In the event of four eggs laid, two fertile and two unfertile, which are the fertile ones, the first two laid or the last two laid? I unhesitatingly said that the last two were the fertile ones. For instance, the first eggs were too far advanced, and although copulation took place, no good was likely to come of it. Another view of mine is that the cock was not quite in condition, but that by the time the third egg was being laid, good results may have followed. I really cannot see how it can be made out that the first two are the most likely fertile ones, as my friend believes. Of course, I may be wrong, but I would like your opinion, and other fanciers' views on this subject, as I think this good matter for argument. The birds are said to have been seen to pair, but a fancier knows full well that when copulation has really taken place the cock-bird will return to the perch, and in a "fainting" attitude spread himself on the perch and call (or "twitter") to the hen.

Sec. Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.

[Assuming a male-bird in perfect breeding condition, and copulation taking place a satisfactory period (at least four days) before the first egg is laid, there would be no reason why the first two eggs should be infertile rather than the two laid last. It would not be impossible, however, for the first and third to be fertile (or first and fourth) and the others infertile. If no sperms (male cells) were in the upper part of the oviduct when the yolks of the first two eggs came to maturity, then, of course, it is obvious that these could not be otherwise than infertile.—EDITOR, "C B."]

THE STOCK BOOK

Compiled by G. E. WESTON.

Simplifies the operations in the Bird room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. It affords facilities for the recording of the complete pedigree of all your birds; of your experiences during the season; an account of every bird reared. Contains both Pedigree Breeding, Young Bird and Stock Registers of simple and unique character. Cash and Profit and Loss Accounts for the year. Gives valuable hints for times of emergency during the breeding season.

Has a Bird a Conscience?

CAN IT REASON?

SIR,—I am much obliged to Mr. Teschemaker for his letter regarding the above subject, but must regret that he has devoted by far the greater part to a side issue, namely my denial that a bird has a reasoning intelligence, and only favours me in his concluding paragraph with any support of his statement that birds have consciences. I am gratified that he is interested in my remarks, and will gladly elaborate on them, but as I prefer to take things in their proper order I will first deal with the question of consciences in birds. I note that Mr. Teschemaker has amended his original statement to that 'birds (some which he mentions anyhow) have a 'moral code.'" Of course birds of similar species live almost uniform lives, owing to their instincts being similar, and may therefore be said to have a code or order of life; and that part of their lives which in man's eyes may appear to concern morality may, by a great stretch of language, be called a "moral code." But do birds recognise, or are they conscious of, this "moral code," as apart from the ordinary routine of their lives? Of course they do not. I have heard of a Rook which was killed by its fellows because it had broken its wing; not, mark you, for breaking a "moral code." Birds are creatures of nature, and nature has no use for "moral codes" or consciences, but cries insistently in clarion tones for fitness and efficiency, and ever gives "the race to the swift and the battle to the strong." Might, or fitness, then, is the only "moral code" that a creature of nature can exist under. If a bird had a conscience it would naturally encounter temptation, and it would also be sufficiently intelligent to weigh up the advantages of violating its conscience against the chances of discovery, and the nature of the punishment to be "meted out." This would require almost a subtle brain, far in excess of what a bird actually possesses—what, in fact, I called a "reasoning intelligence." I did not mean by that, that birds had no intelligence at all, but I do think their intelligence is very low. In fact, I question whether it is very much higher than that of the reptile from which the bird was evolved. Their evolution seems to me to have been on the lines of such a great physical change that I consider their intelligence has only grown to the bare extent of their needs. There is nothing in the life of a bird (i.e. cage-bird) which demands or requires a greater intelligence than that of a present-day reptile. In fact, the latter is the more naturally fit, seeing that it can live out its life independently of man, while most birds, in addition to being the direct recipients of man's charity in winter, rely then on his hayricks and farmhouses for the bulk of their food. Take the nests birds build—how can they compare with the nests of wasps and bees as architectural accomplishments? And even when the nest is built, how easily its builder is imposed upon by the Cuckoo. Take, again, migration—fish also migrate; and the migration of the eel, which leaves its natural element to find an outlet, is far more wonderful than the migration of any bird. I do not think it necessary to comment on the instances Mr. Teschemaker gives, as they are not inconsistent with what I have written, but would say, to sum up, that I believe birds to be animated by instinct rather than by reason, and that instinct works more on the impulses and emotions than on the intelligence. Anything we see that is incomprehensible to us in bird life is almost daylight in comparison with some of the wonders worked by insects. These latter surely have no "reasoning intelligence," nor have they a conscience; and neither have birds. The bare idea is positively grotesque in its fantastic absurdity, and I for one rejoice that it is so since, if a bird had a conscience, much of my faith in the humanity of our hobby would vanish, for birds would naturally be under such circumstances extremely sensitive to confinement.

A. R. COE.

SIR,—I accept Mr. T. Johnson's humour gratefully, although perhaps a little laboured, because the correspondence column is generally solemnity itself. I note that he knows all about the spring assemblies of the Rooks, but he cannot believe that the Ravens have an assembly in Iceland, which seems a little inconsistent. I can assure him that I should not waste either his time or my own in reciting as a fact anything for which there is no reasonable evidence. Not only in Iceland, but over the whole of the Western Islands of Scotland, and over large area of the mainland the Ravens have annual meetings, which are a matter of common knowledge. If Mr. Johnson has access to a file of back numbers of "The Field," he might write to the Editor of that paper and ask for some references with regard to this subject; and, with regard to the Iceland assembly, if he were to write a polite letter to Mr. Pike Ward, Teignmouth, who has a business connection with that country, and therefore spends every summer there, the latter might perhaps be courteous enough to tell him more about the matter than I could. Then, when he has enlarged his knowledge of the subject a little, he might ask himself how it is that Ravens who live in scattered pairs spread over a very large area, are able to get in touch with one another and arrange a meeting in some particular spot. He might also enquire into the return of the sea-birds to their nesting sites on our cliffs, and he will find that it is not a "fairy-tale," but a fact that some species return not infrequently year by year on the same day of the year, and are seldom more than a few days out. He then can then ask himself how it is that, whereas sailors, shipwrecked on a desert island, soon lose count not only of days and weeks, but even of months, sea-birds scattered over the great wide lonely spaces of the vast Atlantic Ocean are able to keep the calendar accurately. He will then perhaps agree with me that with regard to the ordinary affairs of life—the only things which really matter—the intelligence of a bird, though it knows nothing of the higher mathematics, or Greek Syntax, is not only similar to our own, but in some respects can achieve results which our intelligence cannot compass.

What amazes me is that these attempts to disparage the "reasoning intelligence" of birds should come from aviculturists, who have such unrivalled opportunities of testing their intellectual powers. I can forgive a certain professor for saying recently that a bird "cannot reflect," because this eminent biologist is a museum naturalist and his practical knowledge of our hobby is not large; but I cannot forgive an aviculturist for saying that "a bird cannot think of its past" because he must know, as we all know, that a bird can—and not infrequently does—die from simple grief, the mere mental anguish of comparing the present with the past. I have yet to find a student of nature who doubts the "reasoning intelligence" of birds. When our readers next attend a Kearton lecture, they should try to buttonhole the lecturer and ask him what he thinks about the matter, or, better still, they might consult the written opinion of the late Charles Darwin, the greatest intellect that ever studied this question, and a practical (not a museum) naturalist, and they will find that his conclusion was that they had "considerable reasoning power" and that "their senses and intuitions differed from ours only in degree."

Another Flying Start.

SIR,—I am getting along well with my breeding. I have nine young out of ten eggs, and five on the perches, with the other four ready to come out of the nest any time now. One hen is again sitting on four eggs, and another laid the first egg to-day (April 23).

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems), will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

YOUNG WITH SWELLINGS (H. G.).—It is not possible to be quite certain about the nature of the swellings without seeing them, but in all probability they are the result of emphysema, in which case they will appear like blisters filled with air, which, on being carefully pricked with a clean needle, will disappear. They may return in a day or two, perhaps more than once, when the pricking may be repeated. This is all you can do with birds so young. If swellings are not due to the cause suggested, there is a possibility that they may be the result of injury on the part of one or other of the parents, in which case you can only remove the culprit after discovering it by close observation. If it should prove to be the hen, then you must transfer the young to a more natural parent which has lost her brood, failed to hatch out, or even one that has a small brood about the same age.

COMPANY FOR CANARY (V. P.).—As you purpose keeping the birds in separate cages, you could quite safely keep practically any bird in the same room as the Canary. Except in the case of a highly-trained Roller whose song you wished to keep pure, the presence of another bird in the same room will not have the slightest ill-effect upon the Canary. As you only want the other bird as a pet, I would advise either a cock Bullfinch, Siskin or Goldfinch—in the order named.

YOUNG NOT FLEDGING (D. W.).—Some young do not feather quite so soon as others, but yours are certainly very late, and I should suspect that the hens did not brood them quite so warmly as they might. At this season this would account for the delayed fledging. You cannot do anything to the youngsters in the way of treatment to make the feathers grow—they are too young. If you can keep the place where they are a little warmer, do so, as this will help to remedy this trouble. Make up your egg food of equal parts bread crumbs, sponge cake, and egg, and to each tablespoonful of it add a small teaspoonful of maw seed and half a teaspoonful of freshly ground linseed. Also give a little chickweed and flower buds of groundsel as green food instead of giving all dandelion.

ROLLER BARE ON NECK (S. A. M. J.).—Glad to hear the bird has improved on its former condition. You can only treat its susceptibility to cold by keeping it in a fairly comfortable place, free from cold draughts or sudden fluctuations, but do not overdo the heat. To help remedy the bareness of the neck, add to the usual seed dietary half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake dusted with flour of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed every third day for a month, and on the following day each time add to the water as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepennypiece. Give a little green food in variety each day.

WILL NOT SIT (A. P.).—You can do nothing at all to compel the hens to sit against their will, and if you got an older hen, as you suggest, she would not be very likely to commence to sit on the eggs straightway. You would have to mate her in the usual way and wait until she had gone to nest in the ordinary course, and by that time the eggs you now have would be quite useless. If you had been provided with one or two other hens just about beginning to sit, you would have done quite right to place these eggs among them for hatching, but as things are you may just as well throw them away, and let the hens go to nest again as soon as they are ready. It is just possible that the cause of the refusal to sit is due to you interfering too much with them whilst laying, or perhaps removing the eggs and not keeping a dummy egg in the nest whilst the clutch was being laid. Next time when they begin to lay remove the egg each day, but replace the first with a dummy, which you should leave in the nest until you return the birds' own eggs on the evening of the third day, when you may take it away. The failure to keep this dummy in the nest whilst the clutch is being laid not infrequently prevents the proper development of broodiness in some hens.

SHAPE OF PERCHES (M. C. M.).—Neither the quite round nor the flat perches are the correct shape. The perches found in cages bought of dealers are often of a most unsuitable shape and size. To get an ideal shaped perch, take the round perches which are of a proper size—that is, of such circumference that an average sized Canary's claws would not quite meet underneath when the bird was gripping it. Trim one portion of this, which is to form the upper surface of the perch, down to a flattened oval, leaving the under surface round. The size naturally depends to some extent upon the variety kept, but the average perch should be of such thickness that the claws just fail to meet when the birds are gripping it. In large cages and flights it is best to have a variety of thickness in the perches, some rather thinner and others thicker than the average just described, as by this means the feet are kept more supple and cramping of them prevented.

YOUNG DYING (First Start).—There is not much wrong with your feeding, if, as I assume, you give a little fresh green food after the third or fourth day. The only two doubtful points are that you begin with the hemp too early, and you might defer the soaked rape another week or so, and then you should give it separately, and not mixed in the egg food. When soaked rape is mixed in the egg food the latter is exceedingly apt to become sour in a very short space of time, and in this condition it very soon causes trouble. Be careful to use fresh eggs, and try the following course with the next brood. Feed as now up to the third day, then continue as follows:—Give the egg food the same strength as on the third day, and mix it quite fresh at least twice each day. On the fourth day add a little scrap of freshly gathered green food, and continue this afterwards fresh twice a day. About the sixth or eighth day, if there is a large brood, you may add a little soaked rape each day, but give this in a separate vessel, and not mix it with the egg food. About the tenth day will be soon enough to commence giving cracked hemp. If at any time the parents appear to flag in feeding, add a sprinkling of maw to the egg food, and you may also try tempting them with a little soaked rape or hemp, each given separately, at once. You should have no difficulty with this regime, but if the next brood should fail, write again and repeat full particulars, and refer to this reply.

A GREAT TOPER (Ayrshire).—The excessive drinking is a common effect of diarrhœa. Keep cage floor and perches as clean as possible. Give a staple diet of three parts canary seed to one part of summer rape, mixed together. In addition to this, give a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts niger, millet, black rape and teazle. Add to the water daily for a week or so four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid. Give a leaf of dandelion daily.

PLUCKING ITS FEATHERS (H. R.).—I am somewhat inclined to think what you imagine is irritability on the part of the bird is merely the natural habit which all birds have of preening their plumage to keep it in proper order. It might, of course, be due to attacks of red mite, and it may be due to the bird's diet, which is by no means perfect. Did you examine the bird or the cage for mites? It is the cage, not the bird, that must be searched for these pests. Make yourself sure they are not present in the cage; also see that the bird is kept in a bright, healthy position, free from cold draughts or extreme and rapid fluctuations. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts canary seed to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately twice a week a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, and teazle, and on two other days give a similar quantity of egg food or bread and milk sprinkled with maw seed. Give a spray of some kind of green food daily, and allow the bird to bathe freely. In the drinking water add a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea and ten drops of lemon juice every second day for a week or so. You may adhere to the above mode of feeding regularly, which will be more wholesome than your present system.

EGGS DRYING UP (G. L. L.).—It is due to some defect in the shells allowing the moisture to escape and become evaporated during the progress of incubation. Add six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel to the water two days in every three for a week, and when the hen is going to nest again keep her well supplied with cuttle-fish; get a little old mortar and smash to a coarse powder and mix with the sand on the cage floor; and add a teaspoonful of lime water to the drinker every second day when she is about laying. This may remedy the defectiveness in the next clutch.

FIVE IN ONE (Avus).—(1) Six is certainly an exceptionally large clutch, but then the Canary's clutch varies very greatly. It is sometimes as low as a single unit, and I have known as many as eight. By all means allow the hen to go on sitting them. There is no reason why they should not all prove fertile, nor that all that are fertilised should not hatch. Should they all hatch, and you happen to have a hen or two with very small broods, hatched out about the same time, you would do well to transfer two or three of this brood to lighten the work of this pair. (2) Between three and four weeks old may be taken as the time when young Canaries can feed themselves with the aid of soft food and crushed seed, and two months is quite early enough to attempt to limit them to hard seed. The times vary according to the stamina of the young and the feeding qualities of their parents, so that some discretion must be used in the matter. (3) There is no reason why you should deprive the young of green food after removing them from the parents. For the first week or so you should give only very limited quantities, so that none may remain in the cage to become stale and decay, and also, for the same reason, avoid the more succulent stuff. Half-ripe seed heads are better than the more succulent foliage. (4) The young will begin to moult when from eight to twelve weeks old, according to the time when they were hatched. Very early hatched birds may be the latter age; late-hatched ones the former. In the case of healthy normal birds for all ordinary purposes the usual feeding, plus a little extra egg food and a rather more liberal supply of mixed seeds, is quite sufficient for moulting upon. In the case of show birds, it depends upon the variety whether it is necessary to colour-feed them. The food you name is quite wholesome and beneficial if the birds take to it freely. You might sprinkle it with maw seed to make it more attractive. (5) Certainly you could move the birds from the kitchen to the outdoor flight in summer with every success, and they would probably thrive far better than being in the kitchen. You need not fear they will die from cold. Move them in nice settled weather. See that the flight is nicely ventilated, but at the same time free from cutting draughts.

AFTER EGG-BINDING (E. V.).—I am afraid your fears that the bird would not survive are only too correct. If it is still alive, keep it in a quite warm place, caged alone, as it will be no further use for breeding this season. In addition to the usual seed diet, offer daily a piece of bread the size of a walnut, soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with maw seed, but not sugar, and also half a teaspoonful of maw seed given separately. Mix together a small quantity of equal parts brandy, glycerine, and tincture of opium, and give two drops of this in the beak three times the first day, and afterwards twice a day for three or four days. When she shows a fair improvement, stop the latter and give instead in the drinking water twenty drops of brandy, five of tincture of opium, and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea daily for a week or fortnight as may seem necessary. Steaming is often useful and beneficial when a hen is in real difficulties with egg-laying, but where you went wrong was in giving "a lot of castor oil."

POINT ABOUT CLEAR EGGS (Welshman).—(1) It is impossible to tell definitely the actual cause of the bird's death. The only reliable means of knowing this is to send the body of the bird as soon after death has occurred as possible to our post-mortem examiner for a post-mortem to be made. Judging from your description, I should imagine it was pneumonia brought on by a sudden chill, but this is only speculation. (2) Yes, certainly, clear eggs contain yolk just the same as an egg that is fertile. The term "clear egg" is popularly used to describe an egg that has not been fertilised, and to all naked-eyed appearances these eggs do not differ in the slightest degree from a fertile egg, but after being sat upon for the full normal period of incubation will, if they do not dry up in the shell, still retain the appearance of a newly-laid egg. The cause of your clear eggs from both hens was doubtless due to the cock not being in good breeding condition. If the cock in question was the one that died, you could scarcely expect anything else from him.

LIZARDS OR SPANGLES (Variegated).—(1) Yes, the Canary sometimes referred to as the Spangled and the Lizard are one of the same variety. The spangling deteriorates more or less after the first adult moult by growing less distinct and regular, and the wing tips often become tipped with grey, so that the bird is of little further use as a show bird against those in their first perfect plumage. Cases are on record where a bird has gradually moulted out into clear plumage, but these are rare. Other varieties which might give you the impression of spangled plumage are the old London Fancy, but this is now practically extinct, and the Green and Cinnamon, which are pencilled rather than spangled. I think your young birds are Greens, and the marks you take for spangles are in reality pencilling. (2) Yes, now that the weather is warm and settled, it is very good for the parents to bathe if they desire to do so whilst they are rearing young. Put in a bath daily for a few minutes after the young are, say, four days old. When the weather is quite warm, it is also a good thing to give the hen an opportunity for bathing on the last day or two of incubation.

NESTING DIARRHŒA (China).—You should have treated the hen for this complaint before the young were hatched, as you had a good opportunity to do so. If the looseness still continues, add half a teaspoonful of ground rice to the egg food each time you give any fresh, and be quite sparing with green food of a succulent nature. Also give about half a teaspoonful of boiled summer rape each morning, and in the afternoon give a similar quantity of cracked hemp, but see that the latter is sweet and sound in the kernel. For one-half of each day for three days you may add six drops of tincture of gentian and five of tincture of opium to the water. This should set matters right in a day or two. The looseness will not affect the young, unless, indeed, it lowers the hen's condition so much as to cause her to stop feeding.

RED OR GREY (Novice).—Red mites are not in the least likely to eat feathers away, though their irritating attacks may cause the birds to peck themselves until they remove the feathers themselves. Grey lice are more likely to be responsible for the loss of a large number of feathers. In either case, you must first take the necessary steps to exterminate the pest, whichever it may be. Having done so, allow the bird to bathe freely, and anoint the bare places sparingly three times a week for a month with Lanocyllin ointment. Do not use enough to cause an unsightly mess or daub the surrounding plumage. Just a slight moistening of the bare skin is all that you need do. Considering the condition of the bird, it would prove beneficial to add twenty drops of Chemical Food in the water two days in every three for a fortnight, and give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day during the same time.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

WHAT BIRD (C. Haddrell).—The bird nearest to your description that you saw with the Yellow Buntings would be the Reed Bunting. He has black on the head and white on the neck, he is scarcely so big as the yellow bird, has a dipping flight, and in settling spreads his tail, showing the white feathers on each side.

SKYLARK FOOD (Alexandre Lyon).—I have examined your food and I have come to the conclusion that you have omitted one of the ingredients given in the book, probably the lard. In making these mixtures you must keep strictly to the recipe or it will be a failure. The food sent is certainly too dry; if you wish to use it, you had better add lard or suet to the remainder, and re-bake. What have you been feeding your birds on previous to attempting this? If they were doing well, why change? And if you wish to change you should do it gradually, giving them the fresh food twice a week until they get the taste. Birds in captivity that have been fed on one particular food for any length of time will frequently sulk, and refuse to eat any other mixture, although it may be a better one. If you do not like your previous food, and cannot get on with this mixture, try another one. Here is one: Take 1lb. wheat meal (not flour), 4 tablespoons of coarse sugar, 3ozs. beef suet, 1 hard-boiled egg, mix and place in cool oven until sugar and lard are melted, stir until brown. Place in a jar, to be used as required. To this you can add a little maw and hemp seed, not ground or cracked. Or the following may suit you: 4 parts of powdered biscuit, one part of each meat meal, ants' eggs, and dried flies. Damp with boiled potato or scraped carrot. If you can occasionally add a little hard-boiled egg it would make an agreeable change, and certainly improve the mixture.

LINNET WITH INJURED FOOT (J.R.).—You cannot do better than persevere in the treatment of the foot in the way you have been doing. If you have the time you should catch him, and gently massage the injured toes night and morning. Before doing so, foment the foot with warm water, into which has been mixed a small quantity of witch hazel. Half a teaspoonful in a full-sized egg-cup, dry gently, slightly grease the finger and thumb with vaseline, and work the toes into their proper position, gently stroking and rubbing them, including the remainder of the foot and shank in your operations. After which fasten to the card as before.

LINNET AND CANARY (E. Ducie).—You should have no difficulty with your birds. The Canary appears anxious to go to nest, but you say nothing about the condition of the Finch. If he has a dark bluish-grey beak, and is in full song, he will, or has, probably already paired with the hen. You should give them a nest at once, with plenty of building materials. If the Linnet is backward, give him a good feed of cracked hemp every other day, and plenty of wild food—dandelion heads, chickweed, and shepherd's-purse. This should bring him along.

THRUSH WITH GROWTH (Young Novice).—The growth on the head of your Thrush should be lanced. If you are friendly with anyone having surgical skill, take the bird to him and ask him to operate. A kindly chemist might do it for you. Failing that, paint it with iodine once a day for three days, then miss three, and do it again. Be careful how you do it: only put just enough on to cover the lump, and hold the bird until it dries in before replacing him in his cage. See that his perches are perfectly clean. Give him in his drinking water as much glauber salts as will cover a shilling, miss a day, and repeat the dose, and again in a week's time. Buy some good insectile food as given to Warblers and feed him on it until he is better, when you can give him a less expensive food two or three times a week. Don't forget the insect food, and let him bathe frequently.

WILD BIRDS AS FOSTER PARENTS (Wild).—My only personal experience in the rearing of Canaries by wild birds is that of two eggs hatched and reared by a pair of Greenfinches in the garden; the young were fat and lusty when I removed them from the nest and placed them in a cage on the window-ledge, where the old birds fed them until they could pick up. Unfortunately, you say you have no Greenies in your district. Next to them I would choose Linnets, and, failing these, Chaffinches, and then Hedge Sparrows. If they hatch and rear safely you should remove them just as they commence to open their eyes. If you leave them later they get shy, and sometimes refuse to gape. If through any cause you are obliged to leave them, place the nestlings in a dark box or basket, and then when you lift the lid and they see daylight, they will gape, when you should pop some food in at once. Shall be glad to hear if you are successful.

TREATMENT OF BLACKCAP (Bluebib).—The Blackcap is a great favourite of mine, and whenever I have been fortunate enough to possess one I have always given him as much cage room as I could spare. A nice size would be one about twenty inches long, fourteen to sixteen high, and eleven deep, with food and water vessels inside. As you state, they are not frequently advertised, but meet with a ready sale when they are. As a caged bird for song, they have scarcely an equal, and make charming pets. They require a high-class insectile food as staple diet, with insect life as obtainable. If you have a garden you should be able to keep him pretty well supplied with tiny caterpillars, beetles, spiders, and green fly. The latter can be brushed off the shoots of the rose trees into a matchbox or sheet of paper and transferred from there to his food dish. Failing garden insects, you must use mealworms, wasp grubs, or gentles. One of the most valuable foods for the Blackcap is fruit. This you can supply all the year round. Give soft fruits when in season, and bananas, pears, etc., during the winter. Do not stint him in this; let him have a constant supply; it is astonishing what a quantity one bird will get through, and look all the better for it. The Blackcap is about 5¾ inches in length, with a black crown (hence its name); the upper part of his body is olive brown with whitish throat and breast. The hen is a similar bird, but with a brown cap instead of a black one.

HAND-REARING WRENS (Bird Lover).—Unless you have had considerable experience in hand-rearing, I would not advise you to try your hand on such tiny mites as Wrens. I do not think you would find the results worth the trouble, even if you succeeded. If you are particularly anxious to obtain one or two as cage birds, you had better do as follows. First find your nest, but on no account meddle with it. Simply watch it occasionally from a distance. When the young are large enough to leave the nest, the old ones will feed them in the vicinity. Keep an eye on them until you notice the youngsters begin to pick up for themselves. Then watch them to roost, which for some time will be in the old nest. If it is in a haystack, which is frequently the case, you can put your hand on it when they have all settled down and make your selection. You will have to feed them on live ants' eggs, green fly, and other tiny insects, placing them on the floor of the cage at first, and afterwards in the feeding dish, upon some good insectile food, containing very little biscuit meal. You will gradually get them on to this, but do not leave off the live food too early; in fact, after they are meated off they will still require some. This charming little bird still manages to get in the prize cards; but it has to be a good specimen and well shown. (2) It is difficult to sex young Thrushes, but you should select the brightest and sleekest when in the nest feathers for males, although the females frequently make the better show birds. (3) Respecting the size of birds' eggs, the size of the bird is no guide. The Cuckoo, as an instance, lays an egg scarcely larger than a Pipit, and the Snipe, a far smaller bird, deposits one double the size.

HAND-REARING THRUSHES (Pow-wow).—To hand-rear Thrushes is not a difficult matter, and many mixtures are used for the purpose. I have reared them on various foods myself, but prefer one in which hard-boiled egg is the main ingredient. Boil a fresh egg for ten minutes, break it up, with a fork and mix with it two crushed Osborne biscuits; to this add a spoonful of ants' eggs, or good insectile food that has a good proportion of ants' eggs in it. Take a small proportion of this mixture and make rather sloppy with fresh new milk. Feed as frequently as possible, do not cram them, but give them just sufficient to keep them going until next feeding time comes round, when they should be ready for more. Watch the weakest one and see that he gets his share. Your last feed at night should be a rather heavy one and given just as it is getting dark. Feed as early as possible in the morning. In addition to this food give some pieces of mealworms, dipping them in the milk before dropping them into the young bird's beak. As they grow they will not require to be fed so often, once every two hours will be enough. Mix a little grit occasionally with the food, and be very careful to keep the nestlings warm, and scrupulously clean. (2) A double breeding cage with a sliding partition is the best cage for Hybrid breeding with hen Canaries. You could run your Goldfinch with two hens, but not the Linnet and Greenfinch. As a rule the Linnet is sulky and frets if parted from his mate, and the Greenfinch is inclined to be spiteful.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

GREY PARROT (E. Hudson).—A Grey Parrot that has been over a few months and is healthy and in good feather is worth from £3 to £5, according as it has shown itself teachable or otherwise. If you get one, ascertain how it has been fed and continue so to feed it for some time, then gradually, not suddenly, get it on to the diet given in the Nutshell.

BLACK-HEADED MANNIKIN (D. Ferguson).—This is very simple; a cage not small than a double breeder with a twiggy branch at each end, and the ordinary perches removed. Canary, white millet, and millet sprays, with green food, grit, cuttlebone, and water will about meet their simple needs. They are not fragile, but no kind of bird must be subjected to draught, neither must they be kept in a darkish corner they must have light and air. They are apt to be dull in a cage, but if you furnish it as above the birds will appear at their best.

BLUE FRONTED AMAZON (Anxious).—Bathe the eye first with warm water, and dab dry with a soft cloth; then bathe with a rose-water and zinc eye lotion (from any chemist). Keep the bird strictly out of draught, yet in a light and airy part of the room. Cease spraying, at any rate the head, till the eye trouble has passed. It will be well to give a laxative once a week, a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water is about the best, and on the other days of the week put half a teaspoonful of Syrup of Phosphates in the drinking water. Do not neglect to keep grit and cuttlebone in the cage, and supply as much ripe fruit as it cares to eat.

IN POOR FEATHER (P. J. Hastings).—You should get our "Grey Parrot" Nutshell, and gradually treat and feed your bird as stated therein. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. On either a piece of plain cake, crust of bread, or piece of biscuit put eight drops of cod-liver oil and give this twice daily. Also give in the drinking water once a week one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia, and on the other days of the week half a teaspoonful of Syrup of Phosphates. Do not omit to supply grit and cuttlebone regularly, also a piece of wood for it to chew up. Ripe fruit, any kind it will take, should be given daily, also various nuts, as well as the regulation seed mixture. Do not use a metal drinker when giving drugs. Report progress in a month or six weeks.

PARROT WITH GROWTH (A. F.).—As the bird is evidently an old friend, I should let a vet. see it, and if it is possible have it removed. This is always the best way in such, as the character of the growth would be correctly diagnosed on seeing the bird, and he would tell you at once if it could be removed. In its earlier stages painting with tincture of iodine would most probably have kept it in check, but if you use this at all, you must be careful and not let any get into the eye. From your details it would appear that it does not suffer pain, but I should say it causes inconvenience. As to whether it will affect the sight ultimately, only an examination of the bird can reveal. For a thirty-year yet bird I should most certainly go to the expense of letting a vet. see it; such a course may save the bird much future pain. It is not much use my giving you all routine treatment, as you must follow the directions of the vet. who sees the bird. If you do not take this course, write me again and state the appearance of the growth where it was cut off.

SWOLLEN FOOT (F. W.).—First bathe the foot to soften it and soften the skin, then, after taking off surplus moisture with a soft cloth, paint with tincture of iodine daily so long as the skin remains intact. At the same time, if you have a vet. anywhere near you, let him examine it to see if there is any dislocation or foreign substance in the swelling. It will be well to keep the bowels moving quite freely by occasional doses (one teaspoonful in the drinking water) of Dinneford's Magnesia; also to give daily ten to fifteen drops of cod-liver oil on a piece of bread, plain cake, biscuit, or any similar substance the bird will eat. There must be something more about the swelling than is apparent outwardly, if it does not yield to the above treatment; the only other course is to let your local vet. examine it.

OUTDOOR CAGE (C. E. A. A.). I should add a covered-in piece to one end, not less than 18in., putting in a small square of glass, covered with wire netting on the inside, to light it. I should also roof it, or the wood floor will be in rather a sorry condition during wet periods, and one of the long sides, which I will term the back, should also be boarded in and have twiggy branches fixed thereto; the covered-in piece must be similarly furnished. Rush nests and small boxes may be hung against the back amid the branches, and suspended from the roof of both shelter and flight. You could put in one pair each of Zebra Finches, Avadavats, Grey Singing, Ribbon and Bib Finches.

OUTDOOR AVIARY (J. V. Such).—(1) No, it is not too big and should not be too cold (I do not know your county), providing it is not damp or draughty. With a sufficient supply of husks, if above conditions are complied with, Budgerigars should be better in the flight than a cage. The door they go in and out at must not be so placed as to cause a draught; you can meet this by having the inside walls of Section I. wood and glass. (2) Watch our columns. One pair imported birds and one pair unrelated aviary-bred ones should give you a good start. You could also put in one pair each Black-cheeked and Madagascar Lovebirds. Yes, grass and growing cereals in Section III.; if you have space, it might well be larger. (3) The difficulty is to keep the varieties separate when only two pairs are kept, and I suggest two pairs Yellows and one pair Green. (4) I should not keep Passerines (Finch-like birds) with Lovebirds and Parrakeets under any conditions, though nothing may happen for a time, a big disaster comes in the end. Canaries and British birds should do well in cages if the conservatory is neither damp nor draughty. A roof covering of some felty material for the winter would help to keep temperature more even. (5) I have already named two species of Lovebirds, and you could also include a pair of Cockatiels. (6) Partly covered under No. 1, but you can have sufficient glass (covered netting inside) to see the birds through.

CORDON BLEU (E. A. B. N.).—Get a bottle of Tonic Drops (see advertisement under Medicines); use according to directions for, say, a fortnight, then, if the bird should be no better, repeat query.

ZEBRA FINCHES, ETC. (H. C. B.). — Zebra Finches will readily rear their young on seed alone and green food; the latter may be varied, but seeding and flowering grass should predominate. The Ribbon Finches should have dry ants' eggs, also live ones if obtainable, as well as seed and green food. A little soft food (insectile mixture) may be given with advantage if they will eat it.

COCKATEELS, ETC. (R. B. C.).—(1) Nothing more is required as a rule than the usual diet of canary, white millet, oats and green food, but if they will eat them, stale crusts and broken biscuits may also be supplied, and a dish of crushed oats may be kept in the aviary. (2) Rush nests, small boxes, and Hartz travelling cages are all favoured by Mannikins and Cordon Bleus. Hay, moss, and a little hair for nesting material. (3) The diet for the Pekin Robin is a good insectile mixture (see advertisement columns), ripe fruit ad lib., and some live insects daily, mealworms, also spiders, and any other insects the garden supplies. A teaspoonful of millet seed may be given every other day if the bird cares for it.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

C. Edwards.—Death occurred from internal hemorrhage owing to rupture of an important blood-vessel leading from the lungs. Fright, excitement, exposure to strong sunlight, or anything which tends to impede the heart's action, may produce these symptoms.

Geo. Cartwright.—Bird died from a fit.

GENERAL.

BURNHOPE C.B.S.

Meeting, April 18, Mr. Rushton chair, with a fair turn-up of members. Judges elected: Mr. W. Reid, Sunderland N.F. show, July 4; and Mr. J. Riseborough, annual show, Oct. 24. The following were made members: Messrs. R. Peart, W. Laxton, M. Wall, which makes a total of 39. J. W. Robson, Sec.

NORTH LONDON C.B.A.

Meeting at headquarters, April 15. Mr. J. Robson gave a lecture on the Border Fancy. From the history of this particular variety, he proceeded to give a detailed description of the birds to choose for breeding purposes, and the standard to breed for. The lecture proved most interesting, and should do much to improve this section and make it more popular with the members. Only a fair attendance was recorded, no doubt due to the Easter holidays, but to those present I offer my sincere thanks, including Mr. H. Burton, hon. sec. of the Southern Border F.C. Visitors are cordially invited to our meetings, which are held the third Wednesday in each month (August excepted), at Library Hall, Church Street, Stoke Newington.—P. W. Jeffries, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN NORWICH P.C.

Meeting, April 18. Mr. J. W. Lawson presided over a good company. Two new members elected: J. Richardson, Gateshead, and C. F. Tapson, Ashlington. Mr. R. Tindale outlined Mr. Crawhall's scheme in asking us, along with other specialist clubs, to join Newcastle C.B.S. and hold our future table shows at their monthly meetings; he thought it would be a benefit to the mother society, and would tend to a much larger and better show if all varieties were shown together. Specialist clubs should try to help the societies that run open shows because without these societies specialist clubs would be no use. Mr. Tindale also spoke of his own scheme of granting our patronage to Newcastle's N.F. show, July 4. Both propositions were carried unanimously, so if any of our members wish to exhibit at the Nest Feather show they may do so, whether members of Newcastle or not. Fanciers in the North should join us, especially novices, as they will get a big benefit by joining us for our novice competition this year: 1s. nomination and 2s. 6d. annually. Further particulars from the sec., 55, Colston Street, Benwell, Newcastle.—F. W. Laidlow, Soc.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting, April 27, Church Institute, Paddington Street, Mr. F. Knight (chair), Mr. V. Wynn, Hon. Sec., and about 20 members present. Owing to illness our chairman, Mr. W. A. Shepherd, was unfortunately unable to be present. Three nominations were received for membership. Hon. Sec. presented the quarterly balance sheet, which showed a substantial balance in hand. An egg food competition then took place, and it was disappointing that only four members competed. After witnessing their various methods, members tested the quality of the foods, and recorded their votes in the order they considered best. Mr. W. Sanders was first with 44 points; Mr. Salter 2nd, 43; Mr. Thomas 3rd, 30; Mr. Withers 4th, 24; Messrs. E. C. Offord and T. L. Sayer acting as scrutineers. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the anonymous donor of the handsome iced cake presented for competition at last meeting. The small attendance was, no doubt, due to members being busy with the breeding, and fair reports were received from those present, one member already having 44 young birds.—Vote of thanks to chairman closed the meeting.—Fred Thynne, Asst. Hon. Sec.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

A lecture on the Roller Canary.

Meeting, Crown Hotel, Hill Street, April 1, Mr. A. Broadhurst chair. Balance sheet for 1913 was presented and adopted, showing balance in hand of over £6, while other assets are valued at £3 (and a steadily increasing membership is the best of all). The Vice-Chairman mentioned the loss the society had sustained in the decease of Mr. Clempson, and a vote of sympathy was passed to his widow, the members approving the action of the sec. in attending the funeral and purchasing a wreath from the society's funds. Messrs. Hoeley, Haynes, and Westwood elected members, and four nominations received. Decided to advertise in the Fancy Press as before. Other business was put off until next meeting to enable Mr. M. Jacquemin to give us his lecture on the Roller Canary. After reading a brief history as to the origin of the Canary, Mr. Jacquemin rapidly took us through the various ways of breeding. First the room set apart for the birds, these flying loose, nesting sites being fixed on the walls. The fancier thus breeds quantity, if not quality, but he advised anyone adopting this way to be careful as to the number of cocks introduced, either one or three being preferable to two, and pointed out that where two cocks are used they interfere with one another when the hens call, and the result is a great proportion of clear eggs, which would have been avoided by having either one or three cocks. Another way largely used by Roller fanciers was flights containing four or five hens and one cock, nests at each end (with a sufficient number to allow of a choice being made by the birds). It was advisable to let the hens be together a little time before introducing the cock, and not to put a strange hen into the flight after the birds had commenced breeding. Then there were the ordinary double breeding cages used by other fanciers. Mr. Jacquemin emphasised the fact that young Rollers learnt the greater part of their song while still in the nest, and therefore fanciers should be careful not to use a cock faulty in song for breeding, or the young would pick up the faults; that is why so many fanciers only have one or two cocks to several hens, introducing them to the hens when necessary; but there was another factor to be considered, and that was that by using one cock to one hen stronger youngsters were obtained, as both parents assisted in the rearing, the cock being likely to sing more, to the benefit of the young. This was now Mr. Jacquemin's method. His feeding was similar to other fanciers, although he only gave the egg food in small quantities at regular periods, as he preferred the young having a mixed diet instead of being gorged with egg food. He told the members they could remove all the young birds who opened wide their beaks when coming into song, as the best songsters always sang with beak closed. He then introduced some of his birds, giving us the names of the tours as sung, and this proved a most interesting lesson to the non-Roller fanciers. A vote of thanks to the lecturer closed the meeting.—J. H. Jones, Hon. Sec., per J. H. de M.

LONDON C.B.A.

Meeting April 21, "Ll Vino." Mr. R. L. Crisp chair. After the usual business Mr. W. H. Mugford gave a most interesting lecture entitled, "Off the Beaten Track," the subjects he dealt with were:—Insufficient ventilation of bird rooms; sawdust versus sand for bottoms of cages; nesting pans and material; improper feeding with rich foods; young dying after hatching; green food during nesting; bad feeding hens; egg-binding; and the benefits derived by the general use of the bath. Messrs. Crisp, Robson, Dewhurst, Easterling, and Johnston ably assisted with the discussion that followed. At the close of the meeting Mr. Mugford was accorded a most hearty vote of thanks, and was presented with a silver plated mug for most points gained in the Crest section at the L.C.B.A. annual show; this being kindly given by Mr. Watcham. After the meeting a committee was held, and Messrs. W. Buckingham, Watford, and F. Thynne, Thames Ditton, were elected members of the association. Several members not having returned their tickets which were sent for their disposal for the L.C.B.A. annual show would greatly assist to close the books referring to this by sending on to F. Knight, 64, Chaplin Road, Wembley, as per letter sent with tickets.—F. Knight, Press Correspondent.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Meeting, Cowdenbeath Inn, April 18, Mr. J. Sneddon, president, in the chair. Replies from judges were read, and the following appointed:—Scotch Fancy, G. C. T. Hope, Edinburgh; Borders, D. Hamilton, Hamilton; Yorks., C. Martin, Glasgow; Crests, J. Lindsay, Markinch; Norwich, A. Fleming, Musselburgh; Goldfinch and Bullfinch, J. Henderson, Edinburgh. Other British, J. Mason, Peebles. Sec. was given instructions, re applying for specialist clubs patronage. Fife C.B.L. report submitted by Mr. J. R. Reid, and approved; agreed that our annual subscription be paid. Sec. read correspondence from the factor of the Naemoor Estate, Rumbling Bridge, stating that Mr. W. Mowbray had kindly granted permission for our society's annual ramble on June 2 through his woods, and had also appointed guides for us. Sec. was instructed to convey the thanks of the members to Mr. Mowbray for the privilege granted, also to find cost of motor charabanc, and report to next meeting. It is hoped all members will avail themselves of this opportunity to explore new ground, and give in their names to sec. at the earliest moment, so that all necessary arrangements may be made in time. Mr. Y. Stewart was appointed judge for next table show, May 6, in Ewan's, Fountain Bar; Any Variety Buntiug or Softbill. Mr. D. Aitken handed in two 2s. 6d. specials for next open show. Other members please note. New members proposed: Messrs. Duncan and Grant.—A. Robertson, Sec.

SOUTH WALES AND MON. FED. OF F. AND F.S.

Second annual meetiug, Bush Hotel, Swansea, April 13. Mr. D. A. S. Longden presiding. There was a very good attendance of delegates including Mr. Norris Sair, vice-president. The allotting of dates in the various societies was happily a very easy matter, there being no clashing. Officers elected: Pres., S. W. Thomas, Swansea; chair., D. A. S. Longden, Swansea; vice-chair., Mr. W. J. Davis, Treharris. Decided in future to elect the officers out of the Executive Council. Mr. Gordon McLucas elected permanent sec. and treas. The Executive Council was elected to comprise representatives from Pontardawe, Mumbles, Neath, Abertillery, Swansea C.B.S., Pentrobach, Llauelly and Dis. (mixed), Welsh International (Treorchy), Cardiff Welsh United G.C., Ammanford and Swansea and Dis. F.S. in addition to the officers. £3 3s. cup went to cage bird section, Mr. Wm. John Harry (Llauelly Society) with 394 points (subject to points being verified). Mr. J. E. Jeffries, Swausea, had sent in a return of 417 points gained, but he had included 29 points at Waunarlwyd show. This society not being affiliated these points had to be deducted which brought him under the number gained by Mr. Harry. All cups will be competed for again next season, having to be won three times. Three other cups were promised for next season, one of which, from Mr. Dendle, Swansea, is for novices in any or all sections. Sec. was instructed to write railway companies with regard to the possibility of having the rates reduced for conveying exhibits to and from shows, also to draw attention to the rough handling of exhibits whilst in their charge. With regard to the accusation made by Mr. A. E. Brown, Sec. Pentrebach Society against the Sec. of the Federation who is also the Sec. of the Pontypridd Society, that he had altered the date of the Pontypridd Society's fixture in an unfair and improper manner, ultimately a vote of censure was passed upon Mr. Brown, and a unanimous vote of confidence in Mr. McLucas and the officials of the Federation was also passed, embodying that what the sec. of the Federation did was open and quite proper. Accounts were audited by Messrs. Dendle and Eley, and showed a balance in hand of over £8. This is very gratifying, and the future of the Federation looks very hopeful. Two Societies have recently become affiliated: County of Pembroke and Barry; the latter society does not intend to hold an open show this season. The best thanks are due to the president, vice-presidents, and others, who have taken such a deep interest in the welfare of this Federation, and helped to make it such a success for such a period. Information will readily be given on application to the sec. and treas., A. A. Gordon McLucas, 48, Rosser-st., Maesycoed, Pontypridd.

CUMNOCK C.B.S.

Meeting, April 18, Crosskeys Hall, Auchinleck. In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Hainey, pres., Mr. Tom Findlay, vice-pres., occupied the chair. As the attendance was rather disappointing, it was thought that it would be in the interest of the society to alter the meetings on to the working Saturday, as there were always some taking advantage of the idle Saturday for holidaying. Acceptances of the judges confirmed. Sec. drew attention to the fact that the classification had now reached the grand total of 41 classes, which, for a society of only a few years' growth, must be considered. I should like to draw the attention of the New Cumnock fanciers to the fact that, while they are inside our radius, they are still outside of our society. We, as a society, would like to get them as members, and given the necessary support, intend to add two classes for Yorks., as we learn that some of them are Yorks. fanciers. Sec. will be pleased to give any information necessary. Ramble fixed for June 13; arrangements left with sec., who has approached the Marquis of Bute for a day's outing on the Dumfries House Estate, which should prove a desirable spot, being finely wooded throughout. Sec. will postcard all members later. Meeting closed with a vote of thanks to chairman.—Alex. Wyper, Market Place, Auchinleck, Sec.

ALTRINCHAM (Open) C.B.S.

Meeting, April 22, Station Cafe, Altrincham. Mr. T. Harrison presided over a good attendance and a few friends. After a little general business, the Chairman introduced Mr. Robinson, of Manchester, who had very kindly attended to give a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead. The lecturer described to the meeting his idea of the type of Norwich Plainhead. It should possess a good round head, short neck, round full back, short wings, with good carriage, short legs, short tail, and good depth of front. In pairing to produce the bird, he said he must have a perfect hen, with the cock bird as big as he could get, with plenty of colour, as type and quality came from the hen and size and colour from the cock. He went on to say he is a great believer in double buffing, and recommended three times double buffing and one double yellowing, as in clears; he got size and quality of feather from the buffs and colour from the yellows. Referring to green blood, for colour he preferred a dark marked bird. During pairing never be frightened of giving plenty of dandelion, as you cannot give them enough, but give sparingly of soft food. Mr. Robinson then invited questions, which were very satisfactorily answered, and produced a good deal of discussion. At the close, Mr. Broadbent proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Robinson; this was seconded by Mr. Hallworth, and carried. In reply, Mr. Robinson said he was very pleased to be able to assist the society, if only as some return for services rendered to his society by the Chairman, Mr. T. Harrison, and he would be very willing to help and advise the members on future occasions; he wished them success in their efforts. Next meeting, May 6, Station Cafe, Altrincham. Discussion on sanitation of birdroom.—Chas. Bailey, Hon. Sec.

(15): 1, 2, 4, Crawford; 3, Dunlop; 5, Fraser; 6, Webster. SISKIN: 1, Swan; 2, Fraser; 3, Hadley. FOR. GOLDF. OR BULLF.: 1, 2, Fraser. Special best bird, J. Crawford, with Greenf.—T. Penman, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

Annual general meeting, Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram Street, Glasgow, April 25, Mr. W. Aitchison (president), chair. The financial statement was considered, and after some little discussion on several items was passed unanimously. Chairman presented the medals won during the past season and congratulated the winners, several of whom secured their first medal. The competitors for cup, bowl, and novice prize had proved very successful. R. Martin won the cup with 103 points. A. M. Gardiner the bowl (93), and D. Harper the novice prize (43). Result of voting for office-bearers for the current year was intimated as under: Committee—West, E. Barron (30), A. Sloan (24), A. Maxwell (21), A. Chalmers (21), J. McLay (19), W. Bishop (18), J. Young (15), F. Taylor (15); North—G. Mitchell (31), W. Grewar (30), J. Hector (29), A. Harris (24), W. Allison (19), A. G. Forrest (17); East and South—A. G. Cameron (40), J. Winter (38), W. Aitchison (35), J. F. Dewar (30), J. Smeaton (27), A. M. Gardiner (21). Judges—A. G. Cameron (25), A. Chalmers (22), E. Barron (18), G. Mitchell (17), J. McLay (16), A. Sloan (15). Auditors—J. Young and W. Hutchison. Scrutineers—R. Craig and W. R. Dunn. Sec. and treas.—J. Brown. By 22 votes to 19, the club adopted compulsory ringiug of young birds, and rings can be had on application to sec. Sec. intimated that he had decided to resign, and Mr. E. Barron, 119, Montroso Street, Glasgow, was elected in his stead. Members elected:—Messrs. Park, Glasgow; Bissett, Motherwell; Burt, Bellshill; Tawse, Drumchapel; and Kelly, Kirkeudbright. Mr. Barron, the new sec., will be very pleased to hear from prospective members.—J. Brown.

"Through my advert. in CAGE BIRDS I sold out all my stock."—H. M. PERKINS (Thornton Heath).

"Mr. R. MAYS wishes to thank all those who replied to his advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. He has got satisfaction and cannot answer all letters separately."

"Will you kindly thank all who replied to my advert. in CAGE BIRDS re canaries in exchange. I had so many replies I cannot answer them all separately."—A. FORD (Burton-on-Trent).

"Kindly stop my advert. as I have sold all my surplus stock of Norwich, and allow me to thank those who answered my advert., as there are too many to answer separately. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success."—R. JONES (Stockport).

THE BREEDING OF THE EXHIBITION YORKSHIRE CANARY.

A Lecture delivered by Mr. W. Broughton before the members and friends of the Manchester and Northern Counties C.B.S.

Meeting April 20, Mr S. T. Oldham chair, with not so large an attendance as might have been. Mr. Bull was elected a member, and nominations for judges for first nest feather to be elected next meeting. The president called upon Mr. W. Broughton to give his lecture on the Yorkshire Canary. Mr. Broughton said no had great pleasure in giving a lecture, and hoped they would give him some questions to answer. The lecturer then proceeded as follows: I think I cannot do better at the outset than refer to the standard shape: head small and round, skull narrow, neck moderately long and straight, shoulders narrow, rounded and well filled, back long, straight, well filled, wings long and evenly carried, breast round and smooth. The body long and gradually taporing to a neat waist, logs long without being stilty, thighs well clothed, tail long, straight and closed folded. Length, six and three-quarters, with correspondiug symmetrical proportions. Position: attitude erect, with fearless carriage; head, neck, back and tail in straight line, feather short, close, tight and compact; close carriage of wings and tail; colour, pure; condition, health, cleanliness and sound feather. As to shape, it will be noticed that the head is required to be small and round, with a narrow skull. As regards the neck, this should be long and straight; "straight" implies that the neck should be well filled, show no hollow from poll to shoulders, or fall away at the sides from the ehooks to the wing butts, as otherwise it cannot be straight. It should gradually widen from the head to the shoulders and run into the latter almost imperceptibly. The shoulders should be narrow and well filled; if a bird's shoulders are well filled in (as they should be) a nicely rounded back will always accompany them. On the question of size, this must not be overlooked, as bulky birds, however long they are, must not be countenanced at all in the breeding room. A Yorkshire should almost stand erect on the perch. No amount of training will give to a bird the correct Yorkshire position if position is not bred into it. Feather: Do not sacrifice this for anything, as coarse feather, in my mind, makes a bird appear to be scraggy. The Yorkshire, being a bird of position, does not require such a rich colour to show off its beauty as some other varieties. Condition and good health result from the selection of healthy stock birds with careful management afterwards. Having gathered what the good points of a typical Yorkshire should be, it is equally essential that one should have a knowledge of its chief faults. Coarse, heavy beaks, generally accompanied by coarse heads, should be avoided; don't breed with cocks with flat heads; I do not mind the hen being a bit flat in head. Flat skulls, whether wide or narrow, also tell against a bird. The former frequently accompanied by eyebrows, giving the bird a sullen appearance. The chief fault in the neck is thinness. The neck should show practically no falling away from the head to the shoulders; hollow shoulders are bad, as also are broad ones, and both should be avoided. Square shoulders are not so objectionable in a stock bird. The length of the back is determined pretty much by the length of the flights, so short-flighted birds should be rejected. Guttored or hollow backs also are rather glaring faults. The wings should not cross at the tips like a pair of scissors opened, neither should they droop, exposing the rump to view. Well carried wings go a long way towards making a well-filled back. Wide and open tails are minor faults, but are detrimental. Drop tails are a bad fault, and should be guarded against, a once bred in the stock they take a lot of breeding out. I should like to say a few words as to the advantage of the Cinnamon blood in the Yorkshire. It is that it helps you to get colour and quality. By mixing Cinnamon and Green together, we get those lovely salmon tinted Buffs. You can put Cinnamon blood into your stock without breeding Cinnamon marks by using the pink-eyed hens, as by using a pink-eyed hen to a dark-eyed cock. You will never get a Cinnamon feather if the cock has no Cinnamon blood in him; Cinnamon markings come from the cock's side, so you are compelled to have Cinnamon in the cock to produce Cinnamon coloured feather in the young the first year, but the sons of the above pair, pink-eyed hen and dark-eyed cock, mated up the following year to dark-eyed hens, will be capable of throwing Cinnamon marks, although the Cinnamon marks so bred will be hens, as it is impossible to get a Cinnamon marked cock bird by this method of pairing. Pair those same cocks to pink-eyed or Cinnamon marked hens, and you can produce Cinnamon marked cocks. I advise trying to breed your own stock birds, and you should have two sets of birds to breed from—one set to breed stock birds and the other set to breed show birds. In my experience, inbreeding has been a success, and some of my best birds have been inbred. I believe in doing this before introducing new blood, that is providing your stock has got the good points in it. Do not do it too rashly, or you will be worse off. It will take time. Mr. Oldham now invited questions, and several were fired at the lecturer, all of which were answered admirably. A vote of thanks to Mr. Broughton for his very enlightening and instructive lecture was carried enthusiastically, thus bringing to a close a happy and most instructive evening.—W. H. Tasser, Assist. Sec.

WEST BROMWICH C.B.S.

Meeting, April 21, Mr. Taylor chair, and a fair number present. The members had put before them the suggested routes for ramble and date for same. Date was fixed for second Sunday in May, the route selected being Clent Hills and neighbourhood. Abundance of bird life is about there. Next was time and mode of conveyance to nearest point. After a lengthy discussion this was fixed as motor char-a-banc to Halesowen, where we alight and proceed by foot over the route as mapped out, which will necessitate about ten miles walk. Meet 8.30 a.m. King's Head, Hagley Road, fanciers taking lunch with them. Then suggested we have a knife and fork tea before proceeding home, which will be by train from Hagley Station. Members and fanciers who care to join us, please be at next meeting, 8.30, May 5, Dartmouth Hotel, West Bromwich, to give in names and hear final arrangements.—W. G. Andrews, Hon. Sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

Meeting, April 21, headquarters, Reindeer Hotel, Rye Lane. Mr. J. S. Fairman, chair. Egg-food making was the feature of the evening. Mr. D. Reeke, 1 egg to 2 parts bread and cream crackers, 10 pairs up and 6 pairs down; Mr. H. Page, 1 egg, 2 parts biscuits, with Robinson's groats, 6 pairs up, several hens due to hatch; Mr. Taylor, Osborne biscuit, egg, with maw and boiled rape, hemp crushed, after three days, 6 pairs up, 8 young, 4 weeks old, 4 hens down with 20 eggs, hens are feeding well on this preparation; Mr. Tyrell, 10 pairs of Norwich, egg, plain biscuit, maw, rape, and hemp all mixed, hens feed well, 12 young; Mr. Gardner, 6 pairs Norwich, egg and Spratts' cage bird food, with maw and soaked rape, hens doing well, 3 young; Mr. Fairman, 20 pairs Yorke., stale bread, egg, maw, boiled rape, hemp and watercress after three days, 2nd round lettuce, fair results, 4 young, 16 hens down; Mr. Cant, 3 pairs Crests, 9 pairs Yorkshires, egg, lunch biscuit, castor sugar, maw, hemp whole after three days, with dandelion, rape with canary throughout, good results. General discussion followed, and the meeting closed. May 5, lecture on the Norwich Plainhead by Mr. J. Hodder.—A. G. Cant, Hon. Sec.

HASTINGS AND ST. LEONARDS UNITED C.B.S.

April 15, question night, smoker, and musical evening, Royal Oak Hotel. Mr. J. Stevens, chair, and a very fair attendance. Among those present were Mrs. Crofts, Miss Harman, Miss Kirk-Bullock, hon. sec. and treas., and Messrs. W. Harman, T. Veness, W. Ellis, R. Cragg, A. George. An apology for absence was received from Mr. J. Stoakes. "Question Night" was an experiment, and proved most successful. Some of the questions caused great interest and amusement, and the replies were excellent. The following are a few specimens:—"Which egg-food keeps fresh the longer—that made with biscuit or bread?" "The biscuit is better, as the bread turns sour." "I have a hen paired up for the past three weeks; the first week I had a wire partition, and the birds were very friendly, feeding each other. Seeing this, I removed partition, since then the hen has shown nothing but fight, takes no notice of nesting, and gives the cock bird an awful life. What would you do with this hen?" A member replied that he never used a partition; he put them together straight away, and if they disagreed they had to put up with it. "What is the difference between a Hybrid and a Mule?" "A Hybrid is between two British birds, and a Mule is between a Canary and a British bird." "Do you think some Hawfinches and Bullfinches shown in British classes are foreigners?" This question evoked a great deal of discussion, and some agreed there were foreigners shown in British classes, and others thought not. "Why pair a yellow and buff and not both buff or both yellow?" This also brought forth a long discussion, and many other splendid questions were asked. A very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by various members giving musical contributions. Next meeting will be the F.F. show, May 27. Point prizes will be given in each section at the end of the season. Hope to see a grand attendance.—Irene Kirk-Bullock, Hon. Sec. and Treas.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Adjourned annual general meeting at headquarters, the "Feathers" Hotel, Gt. Chapel Street, Westminster, Feb. 26, for the electing of officers for the ensuing year. Present: Messrs. J. Robson, J. Dewhurst, T. R. Trower, W. A. Shepherd, G. Oliver, O. Puck, A. Silver, C. T. Maxwell, and J. P. Carr. Officers elected:—Chair, Mr. J. Robson; vice, Mr. J. Dewhurst; hon. treas., Mr. T. R. Trower; hon, auditors, Mr. C. Cooper and Mr. A. Silver; hon. solicitors, Messrs. Nicholls, Herbert and Co.; hon. sec., J. P. Carr; hon. assist. sec., Mr. E. Stephens. A committee followed, Mr. Robson in the chair. Letter read from Mr. S. Williams, which sec. was instructed to answer. Hon. treas. was instructed to order and pay for the medals won during the past season..

Committee meeting held March 26. Present: Messrs. J. Robson (chairman), J. Dewhurst, T. R. Trower, W. A. Shepherd, G. Oliver, O. Puck, H. J. Fulljames, C. T. Maxwell, Chas. Cooper, E. Shearman, A. Silver, J. Frostick, E. Stephens, and hon. sec. Correspondence read from Messrs. Botting and Stephens and London C.B.A. Mr. Trower made comments on his attendance before the Royal Commission sitting to enquire into the Wild Bird Laws. Hon. treas. was instructed to pay Messrs. Francis and Son's account for printing, etc. Mr. J. Mace, Sheffield, was elected a member. Mr. Frostick very kindly brought to the meeting two hen Siskins which were imported from China, and Mr. Silver brought an English specimen, also a hen for comparison. The three birds were identical in size and colour, and also their "call note." A most interesting discussion followed. Mr. Frostick was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks for showing the birds, as was Mr. Silver for bringing the English bird for comparison. A classification which it is proposed to adopt at the club show to be held in conjunction with the London C.B.A. show at the Horticultural Hall, Nov. 26 to 28, was discussed at some length, and a sub-committee (Messrs. Puck, Trower, Dewhurst, Stephens, and hon. sec.) was formed to discuss the matter with a sub-committee of the L.C.B.A., and try to come to an arrangement respecting the guarantee of full prize money in each class. A vote of thanks to chair concluded the meeting.—J. P. Carr, Hon. Sec.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

EDINBURGH (Open) O.A.

Meeting April 25. The following office-bearers were elected:—President, Mr. C. R. Drysdale; vice-pres., Mr. D. Martin; committee, Messrs. Bell, Wilson, Cockburn, Reid, Petrie, Howden, West and Stewart. —R. Lile, Sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting April 25th, Mr. Massey presided over a moderate attendance. Three members were elected. The judging standard was considered, the discussion—lasting over two hours—was very interesting, and was followed intently by everyone present. It was unanimously decided that the P.R.C.C. are not in favour of any alteration in the judging standard, and also to protest very strongly to the B.R.C.C. against any alteration. Vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—A. Percival, Hon. Sec.

PLYMOUTH W.C.O.S.

Meeting Ap. 21, Oddfellows' Hall. Mr. W. G. French presided over moderate attendance. Suggestions were made to provide novice classes at open shows and to reduce entry fee to long-distance exhibitors; discussion and voting on same to take place at May meeting. Mr. E. S. Lugg gave a lecture on "Seeds and their use for cage birds," which was greatly appreciated by all present. Amongst others who have lately joined the society the following well-known fanciers' names occur, viz.: Mr. and Mrs. Middleton, late of Exeter (Mule exhibitors); Mr. Thos. Line, Barnstaple (Crests); Mr. J. Lashbrook, Sidmouth (Yorkshires); and Mr. Nicholls, Helston (Yorkshires).—Thos. Pope, Hon. Sec.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Owing to the nearness of the holidays the attendance at the meeting, April 6, at Mr. Johnston's Rooms, 6, The Broadway, was not so large as usual. Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided, the chief feature of the meeting being a lecture by Mr. John Robson on "Birdy Topics." It was announced that Mr. G. W. Saunders had presented a cup for the best unflighted Norwich bred by a member, to be won three times, not necessarily in succession. Next the chairman presented his prizes, two pretty biscuit barrels, for the judging competitions, to Messrs. A. H. Dyke and H. W. Hobden, who tied with 27 points each. Thanks were given the auditors, Messrs. S. Wright and A. R. Jay. Mr. Robson said he had chosen the subject, "Birdy Topics," because it would cover a large amount of ground, and could be made seasonable. After remarking that we lived in strange times, he laid himself out to criticise and censure the Society for the Preservation of Wild Birds for the attitude they took up with regard to the keeping of wild birds, averring that the birds were longer lived and better protected in cages than in their wild state. He also criticised the composition of the Committee appointed by the Home Office to make enquiry as to the protection of wild birds, and complained that no well known cage bird fancier was included in the Committee. He then went on to explain the necessity of studying the points and characteristics of British birds if they were kept for show purposes, although this was not essential if the birds were kept as pets only. He said a great deal of experience was necessary if success was to be attained in keeping British birds, especially the insectivorous varieties, and he pointed to the advantages of shows and meetings in gaining this experience. The breeding of hybrids, he said, required the patience of Job, although with proper experience it was one of the most fascinating branches of cage bird keeping. The difficulty of rearing the productions of rare crosses was pointed out, and the lecturer said it was most extraordinary that some of the rarest of rare crosses were effected by novices, a fact he ascribed to the little inclination the novice had at first to interfere with his birds, for fear he should upset them. He explained the method of building-up, without interbreeding, a good stock of hens for producing light mules, and spoke of the necessity of getting both good cocks and good hens if good results were to follow. Getting to Canary-breeding he gave some good advice as to the spring cleaning necessary before starting the breeding season, seeing that all the birds were in good and fit condition and properly fed, the importance of giving proper attention to pairing, and the correct blending of the cocks and hens, so as to get a correct distribution of properties and points between them. He explained the characteristics wanted, and the faults to be looked for. Other birdy matters dealt with before the conclusion of the lecture were Cinnamons, which he said were dying out as a result of a monopoly, and pointed out the essential properties demanded by the standard; and greens, which he said if they were to be kept up to standard required the occasional introduction of fight blood. A number of questions were asked and satisfactorily answered, and a vote of thanks was accorded the lecturer.—G. Griffiths, Hon. Sec.

BRIGHTON AND HOVE C.B.A.

Table show, April 8; Mr. Dean judged, afterwards giving a lecture on Canaries and Breeding, and pointing out to those present the failing of the birds staged. CHAMP. YORKS.: 1, 2, 3, Gibb; vhc, Dandridge. NOR.: 1, 2, 3, Gibb. A.O.V.: 1, Boxall, Crest; 2, Mrs. Gibb, Border Fancy. NOV. CAN.: 1, Williams; 2 3 vhc, Oakshott. A judging competition was also held, Mr. A. Goble handing in the slip nearest the judge's, and winning the club sp. Altogether an enjoyable and instructive evening was passed.—W. H. Gibb, Hon. Sec.

CLYDEBANK C.B.C.

Meeting April 16th, 81, Kilbowie-road, Mr. McGown presiding over a good attendance. Mr. Sheridan moved that two members be appointed to look after a suitable hall for F.F. Show. Mr. Simpson seconded Mr. Sheridan and sec. were appointed. Mr. McKay moved that we get a new minute book, and that the minutes be signed by chairman. Mr McBride seconded. Mr. Morton moved that we continue as we have been doing; Mr. Easton seconded. The amendment was carried. Agreed to appoint stewards for F.F. show at next meeting.—Wm. Kane, Sec.

WELSH C.B.S.

Annual general meeting at Merthyr, April 20, Mr. G. T. Jones presiding. Present: Messrs. D. H. Tedstone, J. H. Jones, E. Richards, E. Powell, G. T. Jones, W. B. Watkins, G. L. Harber, and A. E. Brown. Alterations to rules: In rule 2, all after the word "books" be struck out, and add "and forfeit all claims against the club." The last portion of Rule 5 will now appear before the secretary's voting power. Rule 6 was altered throughout, and it now states that all officers, etc., will be elected at the annual general meeting. Rule 7 was struck out. In Rule 17 the following was added: "When a member commences in a season as a novice, his points for that season shall count in the novices' section." The mixed show classification was altered, viz., Classes 7 and 17 struck out. Classes 11 and 12 made one, also Classes 13 and 14, and 15 and 16. Decided to pay Mr. H. Phillips 20s. for the loss of his bird, and the meeting regretted to hear of Mr. Phillips' accident. Club's patronage left in abeyance. Election of officers for 1914: Chair, Mr. G. T. Jones; vice, Mr. G. L. Harber; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Jones; sec., A. E. Brown; auditors, Messrs D. H. Tedstone and W. B. Watkins; committee, Messrs. E. J. Bevan, E. Powell, E. Richards, E. Lewis, F. H. Cook, and Capt. Collier. The Leach Canary Cup, Norwich Cup, and Sandiford's special, and four medals were presented to Mr. D. H. Tedstone. Mr. Tedstone's points amounted to 118, next highest being Mr. D. Jenkins with 100, balance-sheet showing a credit balance of £12 was read and accepted. At next meeting we will consider the advisability of running an open show instead of the usual club show. Will members please send me their subs. for 1914.—A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN LIZARD CLUB.

Meeting April 11, Headquarters. Correspondence read from Blaydon, and patronage was granted to that show. Sec. reported that the breed was making headway at last, three new members joining us this season, and one or two more were expected. By the numerous enquiries about Lizards in the locality, I fully expect we shall be fairly strong next season. I shall be pleased to hear of anyone desiring to join us; no entrance fee, annual subs. 2s. 6d. Further information from the sec.—G. C. Davidson, 6, Eden Vale, Sunderland.

HALIFAX C.B.S.

Supper and social evening, Trafalgar Inn, King Cross, Apr. 16. A good number of members and friends attended to partake of a substantial supper, provided by Mr. and Mrs. Morton. Mr. E. Stobart presided over the social evening, and Messrs. R. McAndrew (humorist), Wright, Copley (bass), and J. Hamer (tenor) very ably entertained with songs and duets. Mr. J. E. Priestley accompanied at the piano excellently. Mr. F. Armstrong proposed votes of thanks to the artistes, the accompanist, and to the host and hostess. He said he was most pleased to do so, as the manner in which they had been entertained and catered for that evening had been splendid. He could assure them that all present had thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Mr. F. P. Sunderland ably seconded. Mr. Copley and Mr. McAndrews suitably replied on behalf of the artistes, and Mr. Morton the caterers.—A. Sutcliffe, Sec.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S.

Meeting, Drill Hall, April 15; Mr. Wm. Whiteford presided. Proposed schedule for open show was drawn up. 88 classes in all to go forward this season. We intend putting forward a class for dark or heavy variegated hen Mules or Hybrids. The Fancy will, we hope, see with us in stipulating for dark or heavy variegated, as it is almost certain that clear, ticked, or even marked hen Mules would be most likely to carry off the honours. These, of course, have the opportunity of competing in clear, etc., Mule class as formerly. Some members had Linnets forward, and a nice table show resulted, some good specimens being shown. After judging, some discussion was carried on, and useful information imparted by Mr. Wm. Grewar who judged. This was our first table show, and we hope members will turn out in large numbers at next meeting, May 13, as we intend having an any variety British class forward then.—R. Muir, Sec.

The Shows.

LLANBERIS.

Show at Concert Hall, April 25. The entry was very fair throughout, and quality was excellent, several birds being in too high condition for showing. Norwich were a grand lot, Mr. W. H. Williams capturing special for best in show with his well-known cl. yell., but the four-pointed buff from same stables seemed to be the favourite with many; shown faultless. Yorks. classes were well filled, most of them well known. Mules and Hybrids still retained their good qualities. Goldfinches were a good class, the leader a stormer. Good specimens were shown in the variety classes and cheap birds in the selling. The local class was very good and contained a nice selection. Pres., Sir Charles Assheton Smith, Bart., and Lady Assheton Smith, visited the show and seemed to take great interest in the fixture; the hall was full of spectators and exhibitors all the afternoon, the committee striving in every way to make the show a success. Hon. Secs., Messrs. H. H. Parry and Ed. F. Jones were worthy officials, and very energetic. Mr. Clem Watson judged.

Experts have proved

is much more efficacious and less expensive than the old-fashioned egg and biscuit preparation.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

SPRATT'S
COD LIVER OIL

in preference to Egg Food.

It is much more efficacious.

It is more easily prepared and keeps sweet much longer.

It is far less expensive.

It improves the size of the birds fed upon it, assists them to feather quickly, and greatly increases their stamina.

For many years the most up-to-date Canary Breeders have regularly used Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Cage Bird Food, not only as a food for fledglings, but for a number of other purposes.

IT IS INVALUABLE

(a) For feeding during the Moult. (b) As a medium for giving Colour Food. (c) For feather producing. (d) For weakly birds requiring a Tonic. (e) For Winter-feeding of Adult Birds.

Colour Feeding

LOST VITALITY RESTORED

The greatest food for your hens when run down; it restores them to wonderful breeding condition; hens, which have hitherto been bad feeders, after having "Phosto" will feed and bring up their young in an almost surprising manner; young birds fed on "Phosto" have health and size, full of vigour, and will leave the nest in a wonderful condition. The proof of these statements can be tried for a small outlay. Once you try "Phosto" you will never be without it. Prices, in tins, 1/-, 2/6, and 4/6. THE BOOK YOU CANNOT DO WITHOUT

"Canaries, Hybrids and British Birds" is your best friend. You cannot do without it if you are a Canary keeper. It never lets you down or plays you false, but in many a difficulty it will point the way out; it will solve all your problems for you, and show you how to make money and win prizes by your pets.

In health or ailment it is a sure guide; it multiplies your pleasure and gives you the knowledge that is necessary to be right up-to-date, to have "show standard" always in your aviary, to get the very best out of your stock every time and all the time.

If you send for the booklet—as you surely should, for it is interesting and helpful on its own account—you will see that the money side need not worry you. You pay next to nothing for a few months, and have the book itself all the while you are paying for it, so that you can increase your profits and prizes by following its advice, and so make the book pay for itself.

Canaries, Hybrids & British Birds

Written by JOHN ROBSON and Edited and Revised by S. H. LEWER.

The fancier who follows out the instructions given in this work in breeding, can always be sure he is doing the right thing, and doing it at least cost, so that when selling time comes he secures the handsomest margin of profit. It is right up-to-date, and as will be seen by a glance at the selection of main topics given at the left of this advertisement, covers every requirement of the Canary keeper, from the moment of buying his first bird—in which he gets dependable advice and guidance—right through every department.

He will find all help in treating ailments, will be told how to keep birds in health, and will always feel proud of any specimens he offers for sale.

In this work there is a splendid range of illustrations. No fewer than twenty-six superb and life-like full page illustrations coloured in exact facsimile to nature in every respect. Added to this distinctive feature is a profusion of other illustrations, all of a helpful and interesting character. There are about 170 ILLUSTRATIONS IN TOTAL, including practical diagrams and plans, photographs of champions, pictures and drawings of different kinds of houses and apparatus; in short, a practical and pleasurable picture gallery of bird-life and bird requirements, such as no other work possesses. By themselves they form an education in the hobby.

To the man who breeds for prizes, this work is of proved value. Many men, previously novices, have followed implicitly the instructions here given, and have gained high exhibition honours. That is because the advice given is told in clear language, because it is advice based on expert experience, and because on all points the latest show standards are given, with full information how to reach them. In short, to possess this work means high-tide success to exhibitors; it means big profits to breeders; it means more pleasure to the man who keeps Canaries for the love of his hobby, because his birds will always be in the pink of condition, in tip-top health and singers of quality. It is just the book for you.

THIS BOOK TELLS YOU

those secrets which have brought prizes, those things which, at little cost to the owner, send the value of the birds up to top-notch rates and yield big profits to the Breeder.

THE FREE MODEL.

This model will prove to be of lifelong use to the Canary lover. It instructs, guides, and helps at every step. It is printed in true-to-life colours, and the five distinct plates of which the model is composed, and the 105 named and numbered parts, give accurate insight into and familiarity with the construction of every part of the internal constitution and organs of the CANARY.

I challenge the world with this class of bird. Larks, singing daylight and gaslight, as straight as arrows, and as steady as rocks, perfect in feather, they are singing with full voice, 2/- and 2/6; a few hand-reared ones, will sing anywhere indoors or out, 4/6, and one, a real champion, right for contest singing, with quality notes, a treat to hear, 6/, he is a topper, with new cage 1/6 extra. Muling pairs, and can be seen, building their nests: Linnet and Canary, 5/-; Greenfinch and Canary, 4/-; Redpoll and Canary, 4/-; splendid cock Goldfinch, with beautiful blaze, with hen Canary, 7/6; beautiful cock Siskin Mules, Goldfinch Mules, Linnet Mules, Greenfinch Mules, 10/6, 12/6, and 15/-. These birds can win at any show; they are the right sort, and they are constantly singing all the day through; they are all good birds. Pure Seifert Roller hen Canaries, the real blood, 3/6 and 5/-; beautiful Yorkshire Canaries, 15/- a pair; beautiful Norwich, large birds, 15/- a pair; they are grand birds, and they are winners at open shows. The best Birdlime in England, 1/8 a pound; if you find better throw mine away and I will return your money. The original Linnet whistle, 6d. each. My book of secrets, 1/-; it tells you how to make Nightingales sing, Siberian Goldfinches, and English Peartree Goldfinches, how to make Larks, Thrushes, Blackbirds sing in five days, how to make Linnets sing with their wings down at one another, how to train them for contests, how to moult them, the cause of soft moult, and the only cure and the proper food for each bird I have mentioned, and the proper rules under which the champion Linnet of the world won all his prizes. It saves thousands of birds from dying. It is acknowledged to be the best book published of its kind. Will be sent by return of post for 1/-. 2,000 birds in stock. Postcard before birds. Testimonials every post. Only honest dealing done with me: Harry Allen, The British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds. (1593) might seem somewhat risky for Canaries during the recent stirring times in that country; but read the following:—"Puerto, Mexico, April 14th, 1914. All the Norwich and Yorkshire Canaries arrived safely on April 10th. I am very pleased with them. Although they have only been put together since last Friday they have all started building.—Yours faithfully, W. P. Howes, to W. Rudd.

Another from Home.

Leeds, May 2nd, 1914. Yellow to hand this morning in good form. It is a nice bird, good shape, quality and size. I am pleased with it.—S. P. W., to W. Rudd.

W. RUDD, The Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

Over 1,500 Birds in Stock.

Now is the Time to secure exceptional value in all varieties of Canaries. I have over 1,500 birds in stock, every one of which I guarantee to be untried and ready for immediate Breeding. I am offering EXCEPTIONAL BARGAINS in Songsters, Stock Birds, and Matched Breeding Pairs. My stock must be considerably reduced during the next few weeks to make room for this season's youngsters. As regards the quality of my stock, they have made a firm reputation during the last few years, and it is sufficient to state that during the 1914 show season, just ended, they won over 450 prizes at open champion shows in hottest open competition. In addition to this, I supplied a large number of birds that won for my clients all over the Kingdom. Letters proving this are filed here for the inspection of my numerous visitors.

If you require a real good stock bird (cock or hen), or a first-class songstr, in any of the varieties named below, let me send them on approval. I am so confident I can please you that I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the Kingdom at my sole risk, on ten days' approval.

Kindly note the following prices, but remember it is not only the price you pay, but the value you get that is important. The birds I am now sending out are worth much more than the prices charged, as you will agree if you accept my offer.

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/0, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/-, per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain of winners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand, healthy, Sib. hens, for muling, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each.

FEEDING HENS.—Good sound healthy feeding hens, 3/-, 3/6 each. No breeder should be without. Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases.

I have also a splendid selection of Border Fancies, Scotch Fancies, etc., etc.

Every Bird Sent out same day as order is received.

KINDLY REMEMBER that any fancier requiring stock is invited to come and make his own selection. To those unable to come, I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the kingdom at my sole risk. I guarantee every bird to be untried. I will send on 7 or 10 days' approval anywhere, and will guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer, or cash returned in full.

EASY PAYMENTS can be arranged to suit the convenience of genuine fanciers who are not in a position to pay cash. Send a postcard for my free illustrated catalogue, containing much useful information concerning the cage bird hobby.
